Columbia Turmoil Seethes

NEW YORK—(AP)—Student discontent continued to make itself evident at Columbia University today as one group of students refused to vacate five buildings they had seized and occupied on campus, and another group blockaded and besieged the sit-ins in an effort to starve them out.

The school was still closed but the administration was hopeful that classes would be resumed shortly. The university was shut down Friday by officials, following four days of disorder and dispute on the campus and, as demonstrators continued their demands and counter-demonstrations this morning, the crisis went into its seventh day.

Sunday brought an unprecedented meeting between gruff-faced faculty members and protesting students. Meeting in the law school building, professors voted 466 to 40 to reject the full-amnesty demand by rebellious students and to condemn occupation of five buildings by sit-inners.

The counter demonstrators, backed up by 150 faculty members, refused to let anyone enter the library or send in food or drinks.

Several campus groups, including athletes, were included in this newly organized group which calls itself the Majority Coalition. They urged the sit-inners to leave the library, but said those who did would not be permitted to re-enter.

The original protesters have been seeking an end to construction of a gymnasium and a halt to the school's participation in a government defense research project.

Students besieging the rebels said they were taking things into their own hands because of the administration's failure to end the dispute. Contending that their attitude represented the majority of the student opinion, the Majority Coalition issued a statement, which said: "We will no longer suffer the condescending attitude and utter disregard of majority student opinion by certain members of the faculties and the total absence of good faith in their negotiations to end the sit-ins. Meanwhile a third group, designating itself as the Committee for Defense of Property Rights, demanded the resignation of Columbia University President Grayson Kirk, charging that Kirk has proved himself unable to protect university property and maintain order on campus. It also urged the expulsion of sit-in leaders but several professors have already been quoted as saying it would serve no purpose to expel several hundred students.

Kirk ignored the call for his resignation; said that discussions relating to a settlement of the controversy would continue in the hope that "normal operations" would resume as soon as possible.

Hundreds of students, some for and some against the sit-in, stayed on campus throughout the night.

About 400 sit-in supporters either slept wrapped in blankets or sleeping bags, or sat talking quietly.

Another 250 students, opposed to the sit-in, either slept or talked nearby in the center of the campus at the sun dial. A number of these helped faculty members patrol Low Memorial Library, being occupied by members of Students for a Democratic Society.

LBJ Taking Two Courses To Cut Viet Involvement

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—In the month since President Johnson reversed course on Vietnam, his war and peace moves suggest a basic decision to cut U.S. involvement in the conflict as fully and quickly as possible.

He appears to be working along two lines. One is directed toward finding a way out of Vietnam through a peace settlement negotiated essentially with North Vietnam.

A month of effort, beginning with Johnson's March 31 bombing limitation and call for talks, has shown that even selection of a place to meet can be a long and tedious process.

This is at least a preview of slow, frustrating negotiations to come, and it may even indicate that neither Johnson nor any successor will be able to find a negotiated way out of the war.

The alternative route Johnson appears to be developing toward progressive disengagement is to hand over the war more and more to the South Vietnamese government, making it progressively more responsible for its own survival and security. At some point along that route reduction of U.S. forces in South Vietnam would begin.

Must Face Responsibilities

It is the program often talked about in the past. But this time high officials are saying privately the time has come for the South Vietnamese "to face up to their responsibilities"—with the implication that if eventually they cannot stand pretty much alone they will have to accept the consequences.

Officials said agreement on a site could be reached in a few hours with the kind of contact now possible with North Vietnam through the U.S. and North Vietnamese embassies in Laos. Or the squabbling could drag on for more weeks.

The Johnson administration meanwhile is disturbed by the heavy flow of men and supplies poured into South Vietnam by Hanoi since the bombing stopped. Washington officials said about 10,000 truckloads of men and goods have gone south in the past month, an increase of about 25 per cent over the record levels of December and January.

Thus widespread speculation about the possibility of compromise on Paris as a site for preliminary peace talks was paralleled by some rumblings of worry about what Johnson may feel he has to do about the bombing limitation if Hanoi maintains its expanding military activity.

Johnson has about nine months more in office in view of his decision against re-election, and no one in high position in Washington thinks the odds seriously favor his concluding a peace agreement in that time.

What he is doing in one sense, therefore, is preparing for his successor a range of choices in Vietnam policy next year, with withdrawal at one extreme and military escalation at the other.

How the new dual course develops in the next few months will depend greatly on what happens in Vietnam—in the war, in Hanoi's diplomatic maneuvers and in Saigon's acceptance of responsibility.

Enemy Stronghold Invaded

SAIGON (AP)—A big U.S. force that plunged by helicopter into what its commander called "real paydirt" has found at least one enemy camp and supplies in the A Chau Valley, but the enemy troops scattered before the invaders.

The 10-day-old offensive, not announced until Sunday night, continues under a security blackout. Correspondents with the troops were permitted to report only actions in the first three days of the assault.

U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division troops and equipment into what has been a North Vietnamese stronghold for two years. Enemy guns brought down or damaged 30 of the choppers.

force would smash the staging areas and supply lines and then pull out. South Vietnamese paratroopers formed a blocking force at the valley's exit toward Hue.

Despite the heavy antiaircraft fire, casualties on both sides were reported relatively light in the first three days, with fewer than 50 North Vietnamese and 20 Americans killed. Sixteen U.S. helicopter crewmen were wounded.

U.S. Command said the operation, called Delaware, was a "reconnaissance in force," indicating that the American force would smash the staging areas and supply lines and then pull out. South Vietnamese paratroopers formed a blocking force at the valley's exit toward Hue.

Despite the losses, "the operation so far has been highly successful," Tolson said. "We hold the key terrain."

Enemy troops in the valley are believed to be mostly support units such as transportation and engineer companies, and ground fighting was reported light in the early stages.

Left Laundry

After the landing, Pfc. Jimmy R. Rose of Smithfield, N.C., and Sgt. Hillary Craig of Winter Park, Fla., followed a communication wire to a 30-building enemy camp evacuated so quickly that laundry still was hanging on lines.

The American troops found dozens of 50-gallon drums of gasoline, four Russian trucks, 300 Chinese automatic rifles still in crates, hundreds of artillery and antiaircraft rounds, a ton of rice and 100 Russian mine detectors.

The 25-mile-long valley near the Laotian border and southwest of Hue, has been a staging point for North Vietnamese troops since they overran a U.S. Special Forces camp in it two years ago.

Saugerties Youth 11th Fatal

By WALTER S. CLARK, Jr.
Ulster County's 11th highway fatality of 1968 was recorded by authorities early Sunday after a 19-year-old Saugerties youth was killed when the 1964 sedan he was driving skidded out of control and crashed violently into a tree on the left side of East Chester Street.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser said William J. Lutley, of RFD 3, Box 367, Saugerties, died of a crushed skull and lacerations of the brain. It was the first traffic death to occur in the county this month. The 11th motor vehicle fatality in 1967 claimed the life of a 10-year-old Stone Ridge boy, who was hit by a car as he was walking along Route 209 in the Town of Marletown.

Lutley was included among 25 persons who died on the state's roads during the weekend.

James Klezeno, 20, of Florida, was killed Saturday night when his car struck a utility pole beside the Pine Island Turnpike near the Orange County community of Warwick. Robert Ticehurst, 47, of Newburgh, was fatally injured Sunday when his car crashed into a tree in that city.

According to reports of Kingston detectives who investigated the Sunday morning fatality, Lutley was traveling east on East Chester Street seconds after making a left turn off Broadway shortly after 3 a. m.

Investigators said that the 2-door sedan owned by the victim's mother, Mary M. Lutley, of Saugerties, went out of control on the left side of the street and traveled some 160 feet before it slammed with terrific force into a tree.

The vehicle was demolished as it virtually wrapped around the tree. It was reported that parts of the car were found more than 150 feet from the scene of the crash.

Engine 1 and Truck 1 from Central Fire Station in command of Deputy Chief Harry Sills responded to a call and firefighters assisted police in extricating the operator who was trapped in the wreckage. A door was pried from the vehicle before the youth was freed, it was reported.

Fireman William Schwerdtsetter applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to the victim until the arrival of Doctors Ambulance. Lutley was removed to Kingston Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Emergency treatment was applied by the ambulance crew on the way to the hospital, but to no avail.

Before the car came to a stop against the tree, it slammed into a fire hydrant, putting it out of service until repairs were made by a crew from the city water department.

Engine 1 remained at the scene of the city's first traffic fatality of the year until a tow truck hauled away the wreckage of the car and then firemen washed down the pavement which was smeared with gasoline, authorities said.

U.S. Command said the operation, called Delaware, was a "reconnaissance in force," indicating that the American force would smash the staging areas and supply lines and then pull out. South Vietnamese paratroopers formed a blocking force at the valley's exit toward Hue.

Events at Columbia took a new turn yesterday when 250 students who oppose the rebellion and want to return to classes besieged the rebels. Youths Face Court Action On Robbery

Facing charges of second-degree robbery in connection with a police investigation of reported holdups at Cabans Cash Market at 220 Downs Street, four youths today appeared in City Court and received adjournments.

The cases were put over until May 1 and the defendants were remanded to the county jail in lieu of bail.

Accused of participating in a holdup at Cabans on October 17, 1967 were: Douglas Van Dyke, 17, of 12 Stuyvesant Street; Bruce Broadhead, 18, of Colonial Gardens; Gerald Barber, 17, of 21 Ann Street and James Adams Jr., 18, of 42 Sycamore Street, all of Kingston.

Adams and Broadhead also were charged with second-degree robbery as the result of investigation by city detectives of a holdup last Friday at the Downs Street market.

Aaron E. Klein appeared as attorney for Broadhead at arraignment this morning. William P. Curran, attorney, represented Van Dyke. The other two defendants requested an adjournment for the purpose of obtaining counsel.

The arrests were made by detectives at the homes of the four youths on Saturday night. Acting City Judge George Back fixed bail and committed the four in lieu of bail for the weekend.

Adams and Broadhead reportedly went to Cabans' market shortly before 5:40 p. m. on April 26 and allegedly threatened the proprietor, Mrs. Mary Caban if she did not comply with their demands for money. Police were told that one of the pair had his hand in a pocket and made a motion as though he had a gun.

After reportedly taking $20 from the cash register, the two youths fled in the direction of a nearby cemetery. Search of the area was conducted for hours by detectives and uniformed police officers.

Fire Victims Die In Albany Hospital

Two victims of area fires—a Kingston man and a 72-year-old Barclay Heights, Saugerties man—died during the weekend at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

They were Louis Van Dermark, of the West Shore Hotel, Railroad Avenue, city, and Albert Fisher, of Box 306, Barclay Heights, whose wife Pauline perished in fire at their home on April 19, according to a hospital spokesman.

Van Dermark, who suffered first, second and third degree burns of 70 per cent of his body when fire broke out in his room at the hotel on April 22, died at the upstate hospital on Saturday, it was reported.

Fisher died Sunday, a hospital spokesman said.

VanDermark apparently had been smoking in a chair when the fire erupted. He was carried from the smoke-filled room by another roomer listed as John McGrath. City firemen made a good stop of the blaze which occurred in a third floor room.

Fisher and his wife were in their home on the afternoon of April 19 when the fire broke out. Donald Yaw of Lomontville, a serviceman for Culligan Water Conditioning, who was driving past the house when he noticed the fire, and Harry Blaber, an employee of Smith Avenue Moving Co., ran to the burning residence and pulled Fisher, a semi-invalid from a bedroom window.

Intense heat from the roaring flames prevented Yaw and Blaber from entering the house to attempt a rescue of the woman.

Sign Papers To Incorporate Housing Fund

A certificate of incorporation of Kingston Neighbors Housing Development Fund Corporation was initially signed Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the office of Attorney S. James Matthew.

The original signers are Arthur Randolph, Franklin Street AME Zion Church; Doug S. Meyers Jr., Ulster County Community Action Committee; Harold Van Allen, Kingston Area Council of Churches; the Rev. Philip Sanders, New Central Baptist Church; the Rev. James P. Veatch Jr., Trinity Methodist Church; Donald H. Glass, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer.

After all church and civic organizations have signed the original certificate of incorporation later this week the papers will be filed with the state.

The new organization is being formed by the representatives signing for the church and civic groups who were part of the Kingston Neighbors Association.

Shocking Method

DENVER (AP)—Another method of shocking smokers into giving up the habit has been outlined here.

This method uses electricity. The device is a pocket-size electronic cigarette case developed at a Veterans Administration Hospital in Coral Gables, Fla.

Each time the smoker reaches for a cigarette, he gets hit with an electrical shock, Dr. Malcolm Kushner explained. Eventually, he said, this builds a conditioned response against smoking.

The shock can last from 30 seconds to three minutes, depending on how long the top of the case stays open, Dr. Kushner said.

He said that pilot studies produced promising results. Tests on 20 persons showed five gave up smoking for 16 to 21 months, and nine others cut down on the number of cigarettes smoked.

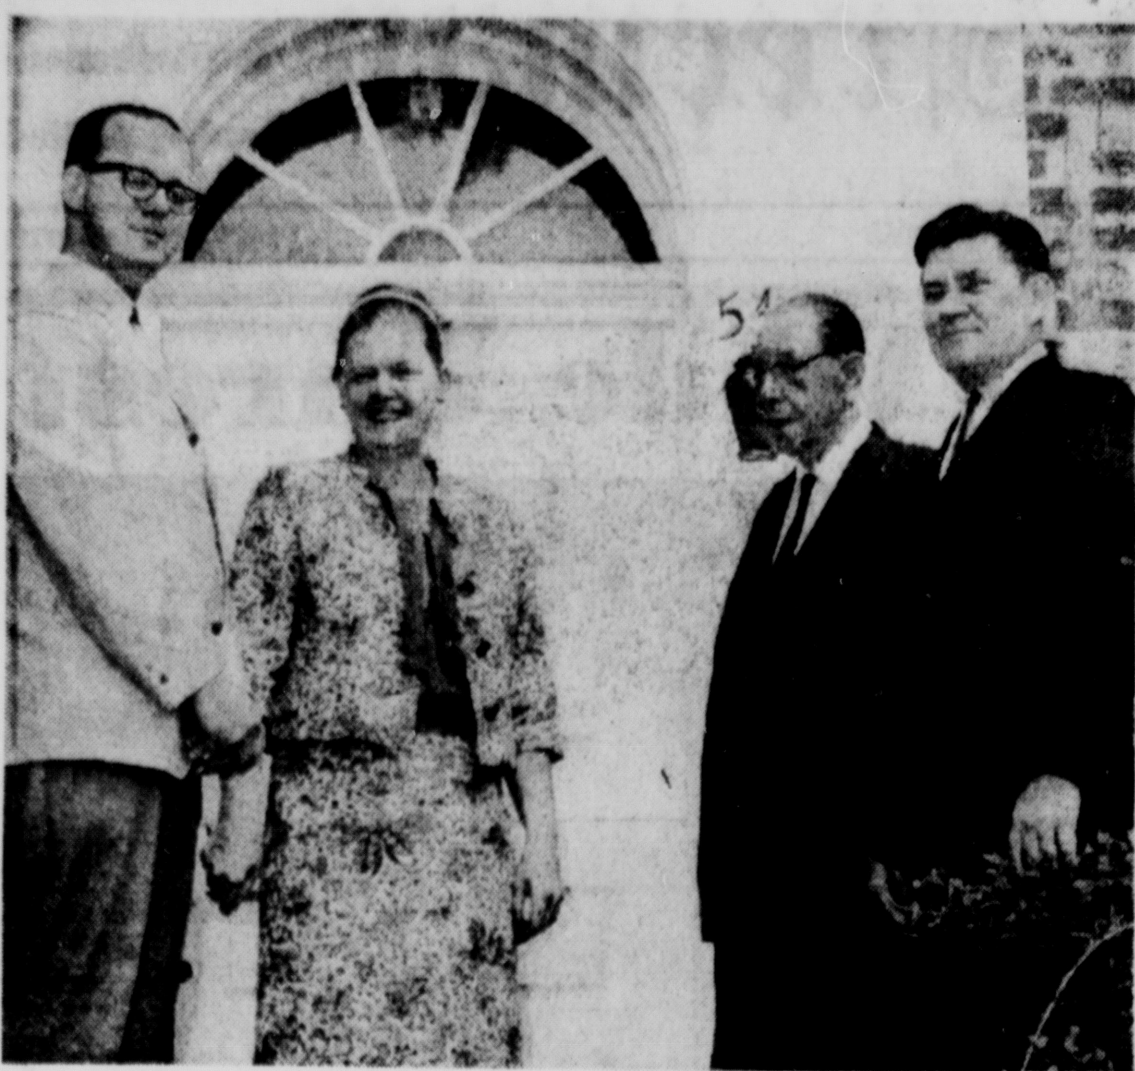

The device was described at a Veterans Administration Cooperative Studies in Psychiatry Conference here.

30 Day Sentence

Charged with criminal possession of stolen property, Carlton Whipple, 32, of Berne Road, Town of Wawarsing, was arrested Saturday night by Ellenville State Police after an investigation of the theft of a quantity of wire.

Whipple appeared before Wawarsing Town Justice Herbert Weinsoff and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and a $200 fine.

Sergeant Henry S. Rhodes said that Ronald Lachance, 23, of Middletown, previously was arrested on similar charges involving the theft of wire from area bungalows. He received the same sentence as that imposed for Whipple, authorities reported.

Youths Face Court Action On Robbery

Facing charges of second degree robbery in connection with a police investigation of reported holdups at Cabans Cash Market at 220 Downs Street, four youths today appeared in City Court and received adjournments.

The cases were put over until May 1 and the defendants were remanded to the county jail in lieu of bail.

Accused of participating in a holdup at Cabans on October 17, 1967 were: Douglas Van Dyke, 17, of 12 Stuyvesant Street; Bruce Broadhead, 18, of Colonial Gardens; Gerald Barber, 17, of 21 Ann Street and James Adams Jr., 18, of 42 Sycamore Street, all of Kingston.

Adams and Broadhead also were charged with second degree robbery as the result of an investigation by city detectives of a holdup last Friday at the Downs Street market.

Aaron E. Klein appeared as attorney for Broadhead at arraignment this morning. William P. Curran, attorney, represented Van Dyke. The other two defendants requested an adjournment for the purpose of obtaining counsel.

The arrests were made by detectives at the homes of the four youths on Saturday night. Acting City Judge George Back fixed bail and committed the four in lieu of bail for the weekend.

Adams and Broadhead reportedly went to Cabans market shortly before 5:40 p. m. on April 26 and allegedly threatened the proprietor, Mrs. Mary Caban if she did not comply with their demands for money. Police were told that one of the pair had his hand in a pocket and made a motion as though he had a gun.

After reportedly taking $20 from the cash register, the two youths fled in the direction of a nearby cemetery. Search of the area was conducted for hours by detectives and uniformed police officers.

Fire Victims Die In Albany Hospital

Two victims of area fires—a Kingston man and a 72-year-old Barclay Heights, Saugerties man—died during the weekend at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

They were Louis Van Dermark, of the West Shore Hotel, Railroad Avenue, city, and Albert Fisher, of Box 306, Barclay Heights, whose wife Pauline perished in fire at their home on April 19, according to a hospital spokesman.

Van Dermark, who suffered first, second and third degree burns of 70 per cent of his body when fire broke out in his room at the hotel on April 22, died at the upstate hospital on Saturday, it was reported.

Fisher died Sunday, a hospital spokesman said.

VanDermark apparently had been smoking in a chair when the fire erupted. He was carried from the smoke-filled room by another roomer listed as John McGrath. City firemen made a good stop of the blaze which occurred in a third floor room.

Fisher and his wife were in their home on the afternoon of April 19 when the fire broke out. Donald Yaw of Lomontville, a serviceman for Culligan Water Conditioning, who was driving past the house when he noticed the fire, and Harry Blaber, an employee of Smith Avenue Moving Co. ran to the burning residence and pulled Fisher, a semi-invalid from a bedroom window.

Intense heat from the roaring flames prevented Yaw and Blaber from entering the house to attempt a rescue of the woman.

Sign Papers To Incorporate Housing Fund

A certificate of incorporation of Kingston Neighbors Housing Development Fund Corporation was initially signed Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in the office of Attorney S. James Matthew.

The original signers are Arthur Randolph, Franklin Street AME Zion Church; Doug S. Meyers Jr., Ulster County Community Action Committee; Harold Van Allen, Kingston Area Council of Churches; the Rev. Philip Sanders, New Central Baptist Church; the Rev. James P. Veatch Jr., Trinity Methodist Church; Donald H. Glass, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer.

After all church and civic organizations have signed the original certificate of incorporation later this week the papers will be filed with the state.

The new organization is being formed by the representatives signing for the church and civic groups who were part of the Kingston Neighbors Association.

Shocking Method

DENVER (AP)—Another method of shocking smokers into giving up the habit has been outlined here.

This method uses electricity. The device is a pocket-size electronic cigarette case developed at a Veterans Administration Hospital in Coral Gables, Fla.

Each time the smoker reaches for a cigarette, he gets hit with an electrical shock; Dr. Malcolm Kushner explained. Eventually, he said, this builds a conditioned response against smoking.

The shock can last from 30 seconds to three minutes, depending on how long the top of the case stays open, Dr. Kushner said.

He said that pilot studies produced promising results. Tests on 20 persons showed five gave up smoking for 16 to 21 months, and nine others cut down on the number of cigarettes smoked.

The device was described at a Veterans Administration Cooperative Studies in Psychiatry Conference here.

30 Day Sentence

Charged with criminal possession of stolen property, Carlton Whipple, 32, of Berne Road, Town of Wawarsing, was arrested Saturday night by Ellenville State Police after an investigation of the theft of a quantity of wire.

Whipple appeared before Wawarsing Town Justice Herbert Weinsoff and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and a $200 fine.

Sergeant Henry S. Rhodes said that Ronald Lachance, 23, of Middletown, previously was arrested on similar charges involving the theft of wire from area bungalows. He received the same sentence as that imposed for Whipple, authorities reported.

Hold 18-Year-Old For Five Murders

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — Thomas Charles Fuller, 18, is being held in Coles County jail without bond for a preliminary hearing Tuesday on charges of murdering three brothers and two sisters of a girl he reportedly dated.

The youth was arrested Sunday near Eastern Illinois University some 13 hours after the five children of Mr. and Mrs. William Cox were shot to death outside their home near Mattoon.

The dead children were found Saturday night in and around a barn on the family farm, Deputy Coroner Jess Caudill said each of the victims had been shot in the head with a small caliber pistol and the two girls' heads also had been battered.

Killed in the slaughter were Lewis, 16; Theresa, 9; Mary Catharine, 8; Gary, 7, and Kenneth, 5.

Police said a teen-age daughter, Louise, 16, was home at the time of the slayings but was unharmed. Friends of the family said Louise, whose twin brother, Lewis, was killed, had been dating Fuller.

Authorities declined to discuss possible motives for the slayings and said they had no comment on whether the brown-haired youth made any statements.

Fuller offered no resistance when he was seized by police near the university in Charleston, which is some 10 miles east of Mattoon. Police said he was carrying a .22-caliber revolver.

Police said Fuller, a construction worker, and two elder sons were working on a truck several miles away from the two-story white frame farmhouse when the murders took place. His wife and the oldest daughter, Mrs. Christine Cline, 21, of Chicago, took another of the Cox family's 11 children to Mattoon for treatment of a burn.

Besides Mrs. Cline, one other child does not live at home.

When Mrs. Cline returned to the farm to drop off her mother, Fuller asked for and received a ride back to Mattoon, police said.

The bodies were discovered a short time later by other members of the family.

CHARLES FULLER

STAGGERING TAX — Darren and Eloise Erlin may be in hock to the federal government for the rest of their lives as the result of a $1,088,000 tax claim levied against them by the Internal Revenue Service. The claim was assessed after narcotics agents said they found 337 pounds of marijuana in the Erlin's California home. A 1937 federal law provides a $100-per-ounce tax assessment on marijuana unless the owner has a tax stamp. Erlin, 22, a designer and manufacturer of hippie-type clothes, plans to contest the law in court. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Travia Against Surcharge On State Income Tax

BY CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia flatly ruled out any surcharge on the state income tax as the legislature returned today from a 2½-week recess to grapple anew with fiscal problems.

"I can't — under any circumstances — go for a surcharge of any kind," the powerful Democratic leader said. "I couldn't get any votes for it in my house."

Travia acknowledged in an interview that the unfinished fiscal business the lawmakers left behind on April 10 was the most pressing problem demanding their attention upon reconvening this afternoon.

Defers Action

Before going on vacation the Democratic-controlled Assembly approved a plan for balancing Gov. Rockefeller's $5-billion-plus budget largely by postponing $200 million in state — aid payments and calling in $95 million in loans. But the Republican-ruled Senate deferred action on several key bills after Rockefeller called the plan "fiscally irresponsible" and indicated he would veto the measures. The Republican governor insisted that the legislature should support his budget by major tax increases — including a 10 per cent. across-the-board surcharge on the state income tax, a cent-a-gallon boost in the gasoline tax and a dime-a-fifth increase in the liquor tax.

Republican and Democratic lawmakers alike have been highly reluctant to vote higher taxes in a year when they will be running for re-election.

Upon returning to the Capitol, Travia told reporters that any surcharge was absolutely out of the question. The gasoline and liquor tax proposals could be considered "negotiable," however, he added with a smile.

At the same time, Travia said he would not discuss the state budget situation with Rockefeller and GOP legislative leaders unless they were willing to consider the fiscal plight of New York City and large communities upstate simultaneously.

"We should talk about it all — it's all connected," Travia said. "I'm not going to talk about little parts of it."

The Brooklyn lawmakers said he was especially concerned about the fiscal problems confronting New York's Mayor John V. Lindsay, who is seeking $100 million in extra assistance from the state to close a revenue gap in his next city budget.

"It's true he has a gap, and something should be done to help him," Travia said. In the same vein, the speaker maintained that such upstate cities as Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse had a right to expect more help from the state in meeting the special problems encountered in highly urbanized societies.

Travia said he was prepared to sit down with Rockefeller, Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges and other GOP leaders to discuss "the whole gamut of urban problems." But, he added, if they only want to talk about the state budget, they can count him out.

After Rockefeller raised his veto threat, Brydges tried to get Travia to reconsider the question of raising income, gasoline or liquor taxes, but Travia refused to meet with him. Travia maintained that, since the Assembly had passed a complete budget-balancing plan, the next move was up to the Senate.

Senate Republicans indicated they were willing to vote some tax increases, but they were unwilling to take the lead with Assembly eventually would fall into step.

Meanwhile, both houses had approved the appropriation bills in Rockefeller's budget, so the state has had the authority to pay its bills and its employees. Only the revenue measures remain in question.

Seek May Adjournment

As the legislature returned to action, most lawmakers were aiming for final adjournment of the 1968 session by the end of May. Travia has said, however, that the backlog of business could keep them on the job well into June — or even beyond.

Besides the fiscal problem, they must deal with such controversial proposals as Rockefeller's compulsory health insurance plan, the governor's gun control bill, the judiciary's request for more judges and Rockefeller's plan to help private utilities build atomic-fueled power plants.

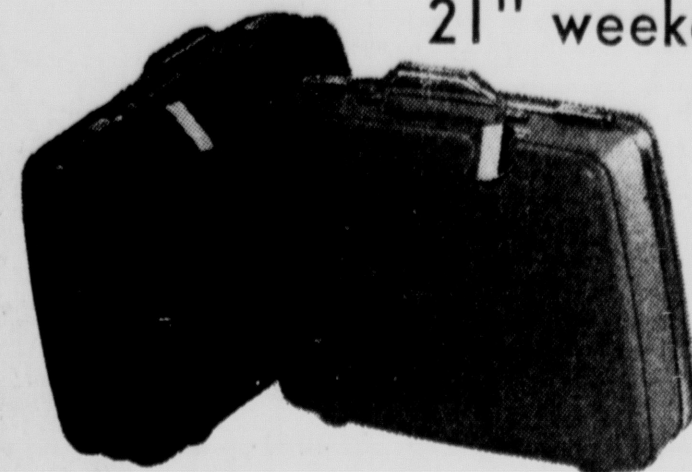

Travia said he believed the compulsory health insurance bill was "dead" because organized labor had denounced it as inadequate, while business was opposing it as too costly.

Uninterrupted Deficits

With an uninterrupted string of budget deficits that have accumulated to the sum of $50 billion, this is no time to spend $2 billion a week more—commensurate with the costs of the Vietnam war. This equal expenditure has been urged by some civil rights workers for the alleviation of the crisis in the cities.

Richard M. Nixon, front-runner for the Republican nomination for President, gave our alarming budget deficit as the reason he will not engage in competitive bidding with his rivals "to buy the allegiance of the Negro." He realizes that the Negro would suffer the most should our economy fail. It was in a sense also an answer to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's suggestion of spending $150 billion of private and public money in the next decade, to rebuild the cities.

However, Nixon is not turning his back on the cities. He has repeatedly expressed his sympathy for the Negro poor. He has called for "tax and credit" programs that would enlist private enterprise in the drive on unemployment and for housing. And he has promised that he would offer, within the next two weeks, major statements on urban problems that will contain specific programs, for alleviating the plight of the poor.

Nixon's moratorium on criticism of President Johnson's Vietnam policy so long as there is a chance for negotiating peace was rejected by both his Democratic opponents, Senators Kennedy and McCarthy. Even Vice President Humphrey, though unannounced, indicated he will alter his stand on Vietnam.

Both on the war and the urban crisis, Nixon stands apart. He is hewing to a line of responsibility both in government finances and in the war. He is furnishing a definite alternative from the ultra liberal views of all other announced candidates.

Clean Air Possible

By limiting particulate matter—soot, smoke, dust and fly ash—clean air could be procured in areas where air pollution predominates. This was the conclusion of a Federal conference on air pollution in the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area including 17 counties with 16 million residents.

The recommendations would reduce pollutants by as much as 60 per cent from such sources as coal burning power plants, incinerators, industrial plants and motor vehicles. To achieve these results, the conference advocated the upgrading of existing coal furnaces, and limiting the pollutants. Also, to apply standards for burning heavy fuel oil, which generates 21 per cent of the emissions.

The conference also called for methods for disposing of solid wastes. Burning garbage contributes one-fifth of the particulate in the abatement area. Suggestions include compacting the garbage and using blocks for building, burning refuse to generate power, and using refuse for fill in areas where coal has been mined.

Air pollution control is a long and difficult process. But it can be done by communities determined on having clean air. There are some methods of achieving it.

Auto Smog Curb

California has led in the requirement that all new cars have special equipment for reducing fume discharges from exhaust pipes and crank cases. The Federal government followed in each case. Now California has made mandatory a third smog-control device to keep evaporation of gasoline from gas tanks and carburetors to a minimum. Again, the Federal government is expected to impose similar rules on all states.

Engineers think new gasoline evaporation can be cut down with a small metal can in which vapors can condense and return to the fuel-feed system. It would cost $10 and be installed when a car is made.

Evaporation accounts for 15 per cent of the automobile fumes that make up smog, it is believed. In California, where the auto-fume problem is the severest in the country, cars are held responsible for about 30 per cent of the smog. About 300,000 gallons of gasoline a day evaporate unused in the state.

The new fume-control canister would not only reduce fumes but would increase the amount of gasoline put to full use. It should be wholly effective in a decade, as about 10 per cent of automobiles are renewed each year. Thousands of deaths and the ruin of vast urban and other traffic areas could be prevented if a national ruling were made now and put into effect.

Merchants in areas where looting and arson take place are advised to empty their windows of displays that might lead to looting. It's just good common sense to remove temptations at such a time. Specialty shops have to take their chances because it takes all day to dress their windows.

Off and Running!

David Lawrence Says

Johnson Could Tip Scales for Humphrey

WASHINGTON—Although no intimation has come from the White House, it would not be surprising if President Johnson makes the opening address at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in August. Without endorsing any of the candidates for the nomination, he could readily delineate what the nominee should stand for as a forthright defender of the Democratic administration of the last four years.

It is not illogical for Mr. Johnson to argue that whoever is nominated should be in a position to endorse the acts of the administration in both international and domestic affairs. In fact, he told a group of aides to democratic congressmen, at a meeting on Thursday, that he wouldn't be an "uninterested bystander" during the coming campaign because "the record of this administration" must be defended. The theory is, of course, that, since Republicans will do plenty of attacking anyhow, it would not be wise for the Democratic nominee to spend time criticizing what the head of his own party has done.

Two of the aspirants, however, for the Democratic presidential nominations—Senators Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy—have made many speeches deploring certain phases of administration policy. Mr. Johnson wouldn't have to mention any names in his address to the convention, as the delegates would be well aware that Vice President Hubert Humphrey has not been among the critics but has upheld the administration viewpoint throughout.

President Johnson feels that he and his associates have a good record. Hence, it is natural for him to believe that the Democratic National Convention would be making a mistake if it did not formally vote approval of what has been accomplished. While the Vietnam War issue has caused most of the dissension within the party, the President may by next August have gotten peace negotiations started—a circumstance which could certainly alleviate some of the criticism of his policies.

If the contest for the presidential nomination appears to be close, a speech by Mr. Johnson at the convention might be enough to tip the scales in favor of Vice President Humphrey. For many of the uncommitted delegates might be persuaded by the argument that the party could hardly go before the people with a lukewarm attitude toward the Democratic administration's policies. Mr. Johnson doubtless would urge, therefore, that the nominee must be someone who wholeheartedly supports the performance of the present administration.

The President's speech at a fund-raising dinner in Chicago on Wednesday night of last week gives a hint of his position. He made a few jibes—some jocular and some serious—toward Messrs. Kennedy and McCarthy. It was an indication that the topic of party unity at least has not been banned for discussion by him in the next several weeks.

Mr. Johnson, in his speech, made what appeared to be a veiled reference to the attempts of some of the candidates to appeal to youth groups. He said that no nation can long endure when citizen is turned against citizen, and "generation against generation by the mean and selfish spirit of partisanship."

Presumably the emphasis during the campaign will be on domestic issues. While the President himself may not wish to discuss the Vietnam situation, there will be widespread interest in his exposition of what might be done to solve the problem of domestic disorders and why he thinks a Democratic President would be better able to get results than a Republican.

Renunciation of another term is not being taken to mean that Mr. Johnson has removed himself from political debate. His support could be very helpful to the party nominee and, if withheld, could be a handicap to the man whom his party chooses at the convention.

Certainly a President who could himself have been renominated but forsook public office in order to be able to handle the international situation regard to politics becomes an influential figure in national politics, especially among independent voters. So, while it may be unprecedented for an incumbent President to make the opening address at a nominating convention, the contingency for the August 1968 gathering is not being crossed off by the politicians.

Critics to the Contrary, We Can Trust Those We Elect

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Today's great sur over "credibility in government" reflects adversely not only upon some men in public office, but upon many American citizens who spread widely the notion that mistrust should be our watchword.

In the Saturday Evening Post, Daniel P. Moynihan, the urbanologist, quotes a Britisher as saying of the American approach to government that the "one all-important secret" we have is "the knowledge of how to trust one another."

Trust is indeed a root matter in our democratic system. We elect a president and U. S. senators to speak for us in the large, and a representative to attend to our narrower, more local concerns. Implicit in this process is the idea of trusting.

If, in advance, we have reason not to trust an individual, presumably we do not elect him. If, in office, he proves unworthy of trust, we may cast him out and choose another.

General mistrust of political office-holders would, however, be thoroughly destructive of the system.

It is one thing to argue that President Johnson has created a "credibility gap," and that SOME others in government have followed suit. It is quite another matter to contend that no politician in office is to be believed or trusted.

The logical consequence of so broad a lack of trust in governing officials could only be, ultimately, the collapse of representative government and its replacement by some thing else.

Unhappily for the present stability of the American form, a good many students, scholars, members of the New Left and the Radical Right seem to be making just such a dangerous case.

Sounding very little different than the quite-limited folk who complain that "all politicians are crooks," today's extreme critics shout that "the system" is managed by evil men who must, for society's good, somehow be thwarted in their purposes.

Actually, if mistrust so sweeping as this were a proper response, then the American citizen could have faith in nothing, including himself. Perhaps that is what some of the critics unwittingly are saying about themselves to day.

For the people in public office are drawn from among us all. They were students once, and some of them were scholars. Some, too, were pretty militant. They are a good cross-section of society.

To say that none of them is to be trusted is to say, in effect, that no one can be trusted. In their wholesale condemnation, the critics damn themselves and the "humanity" in whose name they profess to speak.

What system of government could they erect which would be any better, since inevitably it would have to draw upon the same badly flawed human materials?

Nothing in their own protest offers encouragement. Whatever else their "politics of disruption and violence" may be, it has nothing to do with free, democratic government. It is the opposite.

At base, the "don't-trust-anybody-in-the-system" theme is a massive cop-out. Any political observer worth his salt, anyone at all who has had any continuing contact with political figures, knows that trust can fairly be reposed in countless numbers of them—men fundamentally honest, able, hardworking, conscientious.

Among their ranks, true, there are always some who do not merit trust or do not perform to proper standards of ability and energy. The incapable burden upon the citizen, as the chooser of his representative governing leaders, is to separate the good from the bad, the able from the incompetent.

To shrink this responsibility is not, as the critics would have it, to recoil from evil. It is rather to withdraw from the practice of freedom—and to demean, tragically, one's self and all one's fellows.

Drew Pearson Says Senator Yarborough of Texas Weakens Senate Ethics Code

WASHINGTON—Dimpled, diligent Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., has emerged as the champion of special privileges for Senators.

He led the recent Senate floor battle against a strong code of ethics, even persuaded the Senate, in the name of ethics, to sanction slush funds, which previously had been considered improper.

During Richard Nixon's Senate days he got into trouble for hitting up businessmen for contributions to help pay his expenses. Despite the nationwide disapproval of this practice, Yarborough recently pleaded that Senators should be permitted to solicit money from private interests, because "we will not vote ourselves enough money to run our offices."

He neglected to tell the Senate that, all along, he has been collecting slush money from the labor unions while at the same time pushing pro-labor measures. He happens to be chairman of the Senate subcommittee which handles labor legislation.

Earlier, Yarborough led the fight inside the Senate Civil Service Committee against barring relatives from the public payroll. During the debate, he invoked the memory of George Washington, who, it seems, had appointed a step-son to work on his staff at Yorktown.

Yarborough didn't mention that his own son, Richard, was the highest paid relative on the Congressional payroll.

Back in 1964, Yarborough blasted Robert McNamara, then Secretary of Defense, for suggesting that the Army Reserves should be abolished and overseas junkies eliminated. This, of course, would have ended junketeering of the Army and Air Force Reserve units on Capitol Hill.

Yarborough denounced this heresy as "a departure away from the long-accepted status of the citizen soldier." He said nothing about his own status as a Reserve Colonel, whose three weeks of "active duty" each year are usually spent touring the vacation spots of Europe or Asia.

Ellender's Private Property

During the debate over ethics, Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., demanded whether the new code would require Senators to report the true value of the property they own.

"Am I to understand," he asked Senate Ethics Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., "that, when a report is made by a Senator, no matter what the property cost him he must more or less state the market value at the time he makes his report? Is that not what it amounts to?"

Perhaps Ellender had in mind four acres of choice Louisiana land, which he purchased for $10,000 from the South Downs Sugar Company. This was considerably less than what real estate experts say the land was worth, and the company flatly refused to sell four adjacent acres for the same price to a businessman who got wind of the Ellender deal.

At the same time that Ellender picked up this splendid bargain from the sugar company, he was promoting sugar legislation that would benefit the company. One of the witnesses at a hearing, called by Ellender, was none other than the company president, Wallace Kemper.

Stennis hastily reassured Ellender that the new code of ethics, while requiring a confidential listing of real estate worth more than $10,000 would not demand any embarrassing figures.

Note—The debate on Senate ethics was touched off, of course, by the censure of Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., which, in turn, came about through the courage of four of his employees. The struggle they experienced in arriving at their difficult decision is told in the book by James Boyd, "Above the Law."

Dangerous Pipelines

It transpired behind closed doors the public wouldn't learn which Congressmen were not concerned about public safety, but there was some bitter wrangling in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee over the gas pipeline safety bill.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has been the toughest protector of the public. Rep. Torbert Macdonald, D-Mass., who has been good in the past, this time defended rather weakly a subcommittee bill that would bar federal inspection of pipeline "gathering facilities" in rural areas.

"I'm not saying that this is an ideal bill, but it is the best I could get out of the subcommittee which I head," declared Macdonald.

"It's a terrible bill and why don't you admit it?" shot back Dingell. "Federal inspection should apply to pipelines at all points. By that I mean gathering facilities, wherever located, as well as the transmission and distribution of gas by pipeline."

"Suppose there are leaks from inferior pipelines at gathering facilities in rural areas. Won't that endanger pollution of farm crops?"

"Now, you're nitpicking, in my opinion," snapped Macdonald.

"I resent that," bridled Dingell. "This is highly important legislation. Members of the committee not only have a right but a duty, a responsibility, to question all phases of it. And farmers should know if they are receiving ample protection."

"Listen, I've sweated blood to get this legislation out of subcommittee," shouted Macdonald. "It's the best compromise I could obtain and I'm going to stick by it."

"Maybe you are bound by it, because you agreed to it; but the rest of us on this committee didn't agree to your subcommittee bill and we are not committed to it," argued Dingell.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The natives in the small village north of Khong crouched along the bank of the Mekong, washing clothes in the chocolate water. An elder lifted his head. Then a young woman looked up at the sky, out of the teak forest they heard music. It was not something sweet, like native Lao-Lao cymbals and tinkling bells. It was Tijuana Brass.

The villagers fled. Around the bend of the river sped an object they had never seen. It was an American houseboat with two big outboard engines behind it. The ripping syncopation was coming from the boat. In the forest two young men remembered. They pointed. It was nothing to be afraid of. This was Mikka Moush.

Mikka Mouse is the name of the wildest hospital ship in the world. Ship? It's 43 feet long, has a generator, a clinic, an operating room and movies. The engines died, the boat moved into shallow mud, the blaring jazz scared the hell out of the boat constrictors, an everybody laughed.

Once there was a man named Tom Dooley. He died helping the natives of Southeast Asia learn how to live. His successor is his old friend, Dr. Verne Chaney, president of the Dooley Foundation. Chaney is a blue-eyed man with a high forehead. He's a chest surgeon. He could have earned a lot of money if he had remained on the edge of the white-spummed rocks at Monterey, Calif.

He chuckled to help the natives. There is a 50-bed hospital at Ban Houei Sai and another one 600 miles down the Mekong at Khong Island. The Bank of America donated the beds and furniture. American drug companies donated the pills, nostrums and bandages. The boats, which visit villages between the two hospitals, are called Mikka Mouse, Sneezy, Pinocchio and Dopey.

Dr. Chaney is not a hero. He does not hope to save the world. In fact, his goals are modest. He would like to teach the people of Laos: (1) to wash their hands with soap; (2) to boil water; (3) to cook their food. That's it.

The Laotians have a mortality rate of 40 per cent. Any baby who lives to the age of five is a winner. The natives die of malaria, dysentery, tropical ulcers, bronchitis, tuberculosis and malnutrition. Two thousand cases are treated each week at the hospitals or aboard the showboats.

The Laotians fear needles, pills and pale-faced doctors. To get them aboard Mikka Mouse, Chaney needs loud music. Second, when they come aboard, he shows Mikka Mouse films. The natives expose their betel-nut teeth in molasses laughter. Then a nurse, wearing puppet gloves, does an amusing show about soap and boiling water. After that come the medical examinations.

None of it is easy. Dr. Chaney has deeded the hospitals, the boats, the films to the government of Laos. There is no American flag. Thus the prefecture governnors can say to the villagers: "See what your government is doing for you." Chaney wants no credit.

Nurses are paid $150 a month plus room and board. Doctors earn $300 a month. There are four of them. Sometimes, they make a mistake. One day they vaccinated an entire village. The following week, when the natives saw the boat and heard the screaming of Tijuana Brass, they fled for the hills. Someone forgot to tell them that the first shot would give them sore arms.

They did a minor hernia operation on a boy. In the middle of it, for no discernible reason, the heart stopped. The doctor tried manual chest massage. It didn't work. He cut open the chest and massaged the heart with his hands. The boy was truly dead. That evening, the word spread up and down river: "No wonder" boy died. White devils cut heart out of him and played with it in their hands."

It was not easy for Mikka Mouse to live it down. The work goes on. The two hospitals and four showboats cost $735,000 a year to operate. This includes the pay for doctors and nurses.

Somewhere donated an old lot off to Dr. Chaney at 442 Post Street in San Francisco. Inside there are a half dozen Golden Gate volunteers who open envelopes. Some days, there is no mail at all.

Drop him a note. Any kind of cheerful note will do. The best, of course, is a bank note.

Court Procedure Guidelines

By JON ANDERSON
Chicago Sun-Times Special

CHICAGO—The American Bar Association has issued guidelines for emergency procedures for courts, police and lawyers during urban disorders.

The guidelines are in a special Manual on Justice During Riots, drawn up by a 15-man committee of the ABA for distribution to bar associations, judges and public officials.

They are designed to speed and clarify the administration of courts in riot situations, and to enable already crowded courts to handle the thousands of persons arrested during riots.

The manual recommends mobilization of the courts, extra judges, prosecuting and defending lawyers, special detention facilities and special courts on an unprecedented scale.

The committee also called on bar associations in every city to review current laws on riot control, use of force, arrest methods, detention proceedings, bail methods, cooperation of law-enforcement agencies and the types of crimes with which rioters can be charged.

The committee recommended that lawyers be assigned as observers at police stations, booking areas, courts and jails during riots. "To eliminate both abuses and false claims of abuses."

Laws concerning emergency powers, police procedures, individual rights and other aspects of civil disorders should be publicized "accompanied by simple explanations of the principles involved."

The committee said police should be given legal instruction on what crimes to arrest people for during a riot.

For minor infractions, the committee recommended giving arrested persons tickets or court summonses, and then freeing them, rather than holding them in jails.

Cities should plan for emergency booking facilities in such places as churches, garages or warehouses near potential riot areas, and extra staffs for these facilities should be trained, the committee said.

Each center should have a public information system so families of those arrested can find and communicate with them immediately.

The committee was established by the ABA last year. Its chairman is Thomas R. Sheridan, a Los Angeles lawyer who directed the McCone Commission's investigation of the Watts riot in 1965.

Uninterrupted Deficits

With an uninterrupted string of budget deficits that have accumulated to the sum of $50 billion, this is no time to spend $2 billion a week more—commensurate with the costs of the Vietnam war. This equal expenditure has been urged by some civil rights workers for the alleviation of the crisis in the cities.

Richard M. Nixon, front-runner for the Republican nomination for President, gave our alarming budget deficit as the reason he will not engage in competitive bidding with his rivals "to buy the allegiance of the Negro." He realizes that the Negro would suffer the most should our economy fail. It was in a sense also an answer to Gov. Nelson A. To say that none of them is to be trusted is to say, in effect, that no one can be trusted. In their wholesale condemnation, the critics damn themselves and the "humanity" in whose name they profess to speak.

What system of government could they erect which would be any better, since inevitably it would have to draw upon the same badly flawed human materials?

Nothing in their own protest offers encouragement. Whatever else their "politics of disruption and violence" may be, it has nothing to do with free, democratic government. It is the opposite.

At base, the "don't-trust-anybody-in-the-system" theme is a massive cop-out. Any political observer worth his salt, anyone at all who has had any continuing contact with political figures, knows that trust can fairly be reposed in countless numbers of them—men fundamentally honest, able, hardworking, conscientious.

Among their ranks, true, there are always some who do not merit trust or do not perform to proper standards of ability and energy. The incapable burden upon the citizen, as the chooser of his representative governing leaders, is to separate the good from the bad, the able from the incompetent.

To shirk this responsibility is not, as the critics would have it, to recoil from evil. It is rather to withdraw from the practice of freedom—and to demean, tragically, one's self and all one's fellows.

Drew Pearson Says Senator Yarborough of Texas Weakens Senate Ethics Code

WASHINGTON—Dimpled, diligent Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., has emerged as the champion of special privileges for Senators.

He led the recent Senate floor battle against a strong code of ethics, even persuaded the Senate, in the name of ethics, to sanction slush funds, which previously had been considered improper.

During Richard Nixon's Senate days he got into trouble for hitting up businessmen for contributions to help pay his expenses. Despite the nationwide disapproval of this practice, Yarborough recently pleaded that Senators should be permitted to solicit money from private interests, because "we will not vote ourselves enough money to run our offices."

He neglected to tell the Senate that, all along, he has been collecting slush money from the labor unions while at the same time pushing pro-labor measures. He happens to be chairman of the Senate subcommittee which handles labor legislation.

Earlier, Yarborough led the fight inside the Senate Civil Service Committee against barring relatives from the public payroll. During the debate, he invoked the memory of George Washington who, it seems, had appointed a step-son to work on his staff at Yorktown.

Yarborough didn't mention that his own son, Richard, was the highest paid relative on the Congressional payroll.

Back in 1964, Yarborough blasted Robert McNamara, then Secretary of Defense, for suggesting that the Army Reserves should be abolished and overseas junkies eliminated. This, of course, would have ended junketeering of the Army and Air Force Reserve units on Capitol Hill.

Yarborough denounced this heresy as "a departure away from the long-accepted status of the citizen soldier." He said nothing about his own status as a Reserve Colonel, whose three weeks of "active duty" each year are usually spent touring the vacation spots of Europe or Asia.

Ellender's Private Property

During the debate over ethics, Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., demanded whether the new code would require Senators to report the true value of the property they own.

"Am I to understand," he asked Senate Ethics Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., "that, when a report is made by a Senator, no matter what the property cost him he must more or less state the market value at the time he makes his report? Is that not what it amounts to?"

Perhaps Ellender had in mind four acres of choice Louisiana land, which he purchased for $10,000 from the South Downs Sugar Company. This was considerably less than what real estate experts say the land was worth, and the company flatly refused to sell four adjacent acres for the same price to a businessman who got wind of the Ellender deal.

At the same time that Ellender picked up this splendid bargain from the sugar company, he was promoting sugar legislation that would benefit the company. One of the witnesses at a hearing, called by Ellender, was none other than the company president, Wallace Kemper.

Stennis hastily reassured Ellender that the new code of ethics, while requiring a confidential listing of real estate worth more than $10,000 would not demand any embarrassing figures.

Note—The debate on Senate ethics was touched off, of course, by the censure of Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., which, in turn, came about through the courage of four of his employees. The struggle they experienced in arriving at their difficult decision is told in the book by James Boyd, "Above the Law."

Dangerous Pipelines

It transpired behind closed doors the public wouldn't learn which Congressmen were not concerned about public safety, but there was some bitter wrangling in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee over the gas pipeline safety bill.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has been the toughest protector of the public. Rep. Torbert Macdonald, D-Mass., who has been good in the past, this time defended rather weakly a subcommittee bill that would bar federal inspection of pipeline "gathering facilities" in rural areas.

"I'm not saying that this is an ideal bill, but it is the best I could get out of the subcommittee which I head," declared Macdonald.

"It's a terrible bill and why don't you admit it?" shot back Dingell. "Federal inspection should apply to pipelines at all points. By that I mean gathering facilities, wherever located, as well as the transmission and distribution of gas by pipeline."

"Suppose there are leaks from inferior pipelines at gathering facilities in rural areas. Won't that endanger pollution of farm crops?"

"Now, you're nitpicking, in my opinion," snapped Macdonald.

"I resent that," bridled Dingell. "This is highly important legislation. Members of the committee not only have a right but a duty, a responsibility, to question all phases of it. And farmers should know if they are receiving ample protection."

"Listen, I've sweated blood to get this legislation out of subcommittee," shouted Macdonald. "It's the best compromise I could obtain and I'm going to stick by it."

"Maybe you are bound by it, because you agreed to it; but the rest of us on this committee didn't agree to your subcommittee bill and we are not committed to it," argued Dingell.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The natives in the small village north of Khong crouched along the bank of the Mekong, washing clothes in the chocolate water. An elder lifted his head. Then a young woman looked up at the sky. One of the teak forest they heard music. It was not something sweet, like native Laotian cymbals and tinkling bells. It was Tijuana Brass.

The villagers fled. Around the bend of the river sped an object they had never seen. It was an American houseboat with two big outboard engines behind it. The ripping synchopation was coming from the boat. In the forest two young men remembered. They pointed. It was nothing to be afraid of. This was Mikka Moush.

Mikka Mouse is the name of the wildest hospital ship in the world. Ship? It's 43 feet long, has a generator, a clinic, an operating room and movies. The engines died, the boat moved into shallow mud, the blaring jazz scared the hell out of the boa constrictors, an everybody laughed.

Once there was a man named Dr. Tom Dooley. He died helping the natives of Southeast Asia learn how to live. His successor is his old friend, Dr. Verne Chaney, president of the Dooley Foundation. Chaney is a blue-eyed man with a high forehead. He's a chest surgeon. He could have earned a lot of money if he had remained on the edge of the white-spummed rocks at Monterey, Calif.

He chucked it to help the natives. There is a 50-bed hospital at Ban Houei Sai and another one 600 miles down the Mekong at Khong Island. The Bank of America donated the beds and furniture. American drug companies donated the pills, nostrums and bandages. The boats, which visit villages between the two hospitals, are called Mikka Mouse, Sneezy, Pinocchio and Dopey.

Dr. Chaney is not a hero. He does not hope to save the world. In fact, his goals are modest. He would like to teach the people of Laos: (1) to wash their hands with soap; (2) to boil water; (3) to cook their food. That's it.

The Laotians have a mortality rate of 40 per cent. Any baby who lives to the age of five is a winner. The natives die of malaria, dysentery, tropical ulcers, bronchitis, tuberculosis and malnutrition. Two thousand cases are treated each week at the hospitals or aboard the showboats.

The Laotians fear needles, pills and pale-faced doctors. To get them aboard Mikka Mouse, Chaney needs loud music. Second, when they come aboard, he shows Mikka Mouse films. The natives expose their betel-nut teeth in a molasses laughter. Then a nurse, wearing puppet gloves, does an amusing show about soap and boiling water. After that come the medical examinations.

None of it is easy. Dr. Chaney has deeded the hospitals, the boats, the films to the government of Laos. There is no American flag. Thus the prefecture governors can say to the villagers: "See what your government is doing for you." Chaney wants no credit.

Nurses are paid $150 a month plus room and board. Doctors earn $300 a month. There are four of them. Sometimes, they make a mistake. One day they vaccinated an entire village. The following week, when the natives saw the boat and heard the screeching of Tijuana Brass, they fled for the hills. Someone forgot to tell them that the first shot would give them sore arms.

They did a minor hernia operation on a boy. In the middle of it, for no discernible reason, the heart stopped. The doctor tried manual chest massage. It didn't work. He cut open the chest and massaged the heart with his hands. The boy was truly dead. That evening, the word spread up and down river: "No wonder, boy died. White devils cut heart out of him and played with it in their hands."

It was not easy for Mick Mouse to live it down. The work goes on. The two hospitals and four showboats cost $735,000 a year to operate. This includes the pay for doctors and nurses.

Somebody donated an old loft office to Dr. Chaney at 442 Post Street in San Francisco. Inside there are a half dozen Golden Gate volunteers who open envelopes. Some days, there is no mail at all.

Drop him a note. Any kind of cheerful note will do. The best, of course, is a bank note. . .

Court Procedure Guidelines

By JON ANDERSON

Chicago Sun-Times Special

CHICAGO—The American Bar Association has issued guidelines for emergency procedures for courts, police and lawyers during urban disorders.

The guidelines are in a special Manual on Justice During Riots, drawn up by a 15-man committee of the ABA for distribution to bar associations, judges and public officials.

They are designed to speed and clarify the administration of courts in riot situations, and to enable already crowded courts to handle the thousands of persons arrested during riots.

The manual recommends mobilization of the courts, extra judges, prosecuting and defending lawyers, special detention facilities and special courts on an unprecedented scale.

The committee also called on bar associations in every city to review current laws on riot control, use of force, arrest methods, detention proceedings, bail methods, cooperation of law-enforcement agencies and the types of crimes with which rioters can be charged.

The committee recommended that lawyers be assigned as observers at police stations, booking areas, courts and jails during riots "to eliminate both abuses and false claims of abuses."

Laws concerning emergency powers, police procedures, individual rights and other aspects of civil disorders should be publicized "accompanied by simple explanations of the principles involved."

The committee said police should be given legal instruction on what crimes to arrest people for during a riot.

For minor infractions, the committee recommended giving arrested persons tickets or court summonses, and then freeing them, rather than holding them in jails.

Cities should plan for emergency booking facilities in such places as churches, garages or warehouses near potential riot areas, and extra staffs for these facilities should be trained, the committee said.

Each center should have a public information system so families of those arrested can find and communicate with them immediately.

The committee was established by the ABA last year. Its chairman is Thomas R. Sheridan, a Los Angeles lawyer who directed the McCone Commission's investigation of the Watts riot in 1965.

McCarthy Supporters Prefer Humphrey to RFK

PRINCETON, N. J., April 27—If for any reason Senator Eugene McCarthy were to drop out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, Vice President Hubert Humphrey would be the chief beneficiary and not Senator Robert Kennedy as is widely believed.

On the other hand, if Kennedy were to drop out of contention, his supporters would turn to McCarthy in greater numbers than to Humphrey. These findings emerge from the latest survey in which supporters of each of the three leading Democratic hopefuls—McCarthy, Humphrey and Kennedy—were asked to choose between his two rivals.

Humphrey Backers Prefer McCarthy

The survey also shows that Humphrey supporters would back Senator McCarthy to a greater extent than Senator Kennedy.

A representative of the nation's adults (representing Republicans, Democrats and Independents in correct proportion) were asked this question:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Democratic convention is between Senator Robert Kennedy, Senator Eugene McCarthy, and Vice President Hubert Humphrey. Which ONE would you prefer to have the Democratic convention select?"

All persons in the survey were then asked to vote in two-way races between Kennedy and McCarthy, Humphrey and McCarthy, and Humphrey and Kennedy.

Kennedy Leads With Democrats

When the views of Democrats only are taken into account, Kennedy emerges with a lead in a three-way race, as reported earlier.

But when the views of Independents and Republicans are included, McCarthy takes over the lead and the three-way race stands as follows: McCarthy—33 per cent, Kennedy—28 per cent and Humphrey—25 per cent.

McCarthy's appeal outside party lines is also apparent in test election contests between the three Democrats and Richard Nixon. Although McCarthy is third in terms of support within his own party, he runs as strong a race against Nixon as does Kennedy. Both men trail the former Vice President by 3 percentage points. Humphrey trailed by 9 points when the study was made.

McCarthy Less Well Known Than Rivals

An important factor to bear in mind when assessing the relative strength of the three Democratic hopefuls is the extent to which each man is known to the voters of the nation. Senator McCarthy currently suffers under the real handicap of being far less known than his two rivals.

Here is how supporters of each man divide when asked to choose between his two rivals, with results based on all adults:

McCarthy Supporters Prefer:

Humphrey 42%
Kennedy 31%
Undecided 27%

Kennedy Supporters Prefer:

McCarthy 50%
Humphrey 36%
Undecided 14%

Humphrey Supporters Prefer:

Kennedy 28%
Undecided 18%

Patterns of Support

A question frequently asked in political circles is which man—McCarthy or Kennedy currently has the greater appeal among the nation's youngest voters?

The answer is Kennedy, but the division is close—47 per cent of all young adults (those 21 through 29) support Kennedy in a two-way contest, while 43 per cent back McCarthy.

Senator Kennedy wins considerable support from those groups that backed his brother, John Kennedy, in the 1960 campaign: Negroes, Catholics, persons with less than a high school background.

Labor union leaders have expressed open hostility to Senator Kennedy's candidacy, but their views are not reflected in the vote of the union rank-and-file. In the three-way race, as well as two-way races, Kennedy holds the lead with this group.

McCarthy Is Strong Outside Party Ranks

Senator McCarthy has a clear margin over his two rivals among persons with a college background. He is also considerably more popular with Independents and with Republicans than is either Kennedy or Humphrey.

Vice President Humphrey's support is greatest among older persons in the populace (those 50 and over) and he leads Kennedy with this group, although his support falls below that of McCarthy.

Rosendale, New York

Editor, The Freeman:

Since at the present time I rent in the Rondout Valley School District, I cannot speak to you as a taxpayer, but since my husband and I are in the process of buying a home, I can speak as a future taxpayer. As a future taxpayer, I am as concerned as anyone about our schools taxes; as a parent, I am concerned with good education.

This year we are confronted with Permanent Personal Registration in our school district, which simply means if you do not register you may not vote at the annual school board meeting to be held on May 7th at the high school. Judging from the very small amount of registered people (185 in Rosendale as of 4/24/68), I am sure most of the people are not aware of what is at stake in this election. It is this factor that has moved me to write this letter.

The two main issues to be voted on this year are: (1.) the school budget, (2.) three members to the school board. On the first issue, most of the people have received a copy of the proposed budget. While the budget stated that we would realize a 2% to 5% decrease in taxes, because the state aid was larger than expected, we will actually realize a 5% to 10% decrease. However, if this budget is not voted through, (and right now most of our registered people are NO votes), it will be our children who will suffer. Here are some of the things that will be cut:

1. Transportation—Children in high school will walk to school under three miles and those under elementary under two miles.
2. Extra-curricular Activities—There will be no sports program, plays, after school clubs, etc.
3. Cafeteria—no hot lunch program.
4. Several Guidance Counselors.
5. New Library books.

The second issue, the election of three board members is perhaps our most serious one. The people of Rosendale have had a longstanding Gentlemen's Agreement, that they would have at least one member representing Rosendale on the school board. This year that agreement is in jeopardy. The Marbletown Citizens Organization is running three candidates, namely, Mr. Wm. Suplee, Mr. M. H. Felson and Mr. B. E. Shoemaker. These men are running on an economy platform, and while we are all interested in economy, I personally feel that board members should have a balanced concept. A board that is totally orientated to monetary values, in the end neglects its main function—quality education! Here are a few of the things that these men have spoken out for:

That the new Rosendale

School be a wooden building. Eliminating the safety factor and just looking at this from a monetary point of view, while this plan would represent a savings of approximately $3,000 a sq. ft., upon investigation you find that the fire insurance would be astronomical and the upkeep of such a building would far outweigh any savings. I think at this point it is interesting to note that one of these three men is the owner of a lumber company and the other two are building contractors.

Split sessions for our children.

Elimination of School Psychologists.

Elimination of Sports Programs. Are these the things we want to happen in our school district? If not, there are three highly qualified men who are running in opposition: Mr. R. Shields, Mr. J. Bartel and Mr. A. Sperath. Mr. Sperath is the representative from Rosendale. But you must register in order to vote!

In closing I would like to say to the people of the Rondout Valley Central School District that we need more people out to vote no school. Please contact your neighbors and friends and explain what is going on. You may only register up until 9 p. m., Tuesday, April 30th, so as you can see, time is running out.

VIENTIANE, LAOS (NEA)

Two can play at the game of infiltration. The Viet Cong have received a great deal of publicity for penetrating South Vietnam's cities during their Tet offensive. It's not well-known, but the South Vietnamese quite covertly and effectively penetrate areas governed by the Viet Cong, sometimes with striking results.

On one occasion the South Vietnamese guerrilla forces, knowing that this reporter had been a guerrilla in World War II, let me go in with them on some covert operations within a cluster of Viet Cong hamlets. This was on the understanding that the location of these operations would not be disclosed and that certain details of the operations would not be mentioned.

This particular series of operations was carried out by a group of three 10-man guerrilla teams, each scheduled to penetrate one hamlet in a three-hamlet cluster, primarily for intelligence and psychological-warfare operations. These operations were designed as first-strike or softening-up maneuvers, laying the ground for future major strikes. They were based on some of Mao Tse-tung's highly effective techniques.

The Viet Cong, like ourselves, don't have enough troops to occupy all their hamlets at all times. We picked a time when the VC troops were absent on extended patrol, then moved in. It was raining and the crops were fairly high, giving us some cover. There were a few shots in the distance as we moved in. We ducked and hugged the mud, but it turned out we were over-reacting. The shots weren't aimed at us.

One of the women in the group was known by the Vietnamese equivalent of "Shotgun Annie" because she was deadly with that weapon. Actually, her job on the team was to move from house to house, helping the women with their housework, giving them tips on improving their diet and living conditions.

The three teams this reporter went in with varied somewhat in composition. But each had 10 men or nine men and one woman. Two in each team were propagandists—psychological warfare specialists. They plastered propaganda statements on the walls of the houses, gave the children T-shirts bearing the national flag, provided "black pajama" work clothes for the elderly and needy. In other villages, the VC had come back, attempted to rip the T-shirts off the children and raised a storm of wrath.

This reporter went around one hamlet with the team's medic—a young man with a week or two of medical training and a case holding 30 standard remedies—one for stomachaches, another for headaches, another for headaches and so on. It wasn't much in the way of medicine, but the people were quite happy. It was a lot more than they were getting under the VC.

Our team, like all such teams, had an intelligence man. His job was to help the men with their work in the rice fields and with their chores and to listen to what they said in idle conversations. He'd hear about this house where a great many people came and went at night or about a family whose 20-year-old son disappeared for days or weeks at a time.

This indirect intelligence approach was calculated to expose the VC underground structure so that it could be weakened or eliminated, determine which villagers might co-operate when the government moved in with force.

These teams show promise of being a highly effective political weapon in winning the war.

"No, Edwin—it's not YOU!"

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

April 29, 1958 — Jerome "Jerry" Singer, a Kingston High School Junior, has been awarded a four-year, $3,000 scholarship to Syracuse university based on a state-wide competition, it was announced today by Principal M. Clifford Miller.

Floyd Robert Elting, 27, the father of three pre school children, was taken to Kingston Hospital early this morning with severe burns suffered in a fire of undetermined origin that heavily damaged a 1½-story frame dwelling in the Blue Mt. section of the Town of Saugerties.

April 29, 1948—Kerhonkson received a $350,000 bond issue to modernize its school.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said he would appoint Robert S. Evory of 42 Shufeldt Street to the Board of Police Commissioners.

Editor, The Freeman:

Since at the present time I rent in the Rondout Valley School District, I cannot speak to you as a taxpayer, but since my husband and I are in the process of buying a home, I can speak as a future taxpayer. As a future taxpayer, I am as concerned as anyone about our schools taxes; as a parent, I am concerned with good education.

This year we are confronted with Permanent Personal Registration in our school district, which simply means if you do not register you may not vote at the annual school board meeting to be held on May 7th at the high school. Judging from the very small amount of registered people (185 in Rosendale as of 4/24/68), I am sure most of the people are not aware of what is at stake in this election. It is this factor that has moved me to write this letter.

The two main issues to be voted on this year are: (1.) the school budget, (2.) three members to the school board. On the first issue, most of the people have received a copy of the proposed budget. While the budget stated that we would realize a 2% to 5% decrease in taxes, because the state aid was larger than expected, we will actually realize a 5% to 10% decrease. However, this budget is not voted through, (and right now most of our registered people are NO votes), it will be our children who will suffer. Here are some of the things that will be cut:

1. Transportation — Children in high school will walk to school under three miles and those in elementary under two miles.
2. Extra-curricular Activities — There will be no sports program, plays, after school clubs, etc.
3. Cafeteria — no hot lunch program.
4. Several Guidance Counselors.
5. New Library books.

The second issue, the election of three board members is perhaps our most serious one. The people of Rosendale have had a longstanding Gentlemen's Agreement, that they would have at least one member representing Rosendale on the school board. This year that agreement is in jeopardy. The Marbletown Citizens Organization is running three candidates, namely, Mr. Wm. Suepfe, Mr. M. H. Fellson and Mr. B. E. Shoemaker. These men are running on an economy platform, and while we are all interested in economy, I personally feel that board members should have a balanced concept. A board that is totally orientated to monetary values, in the end neglects its main function — quality education! Here are a few of the things that these men have spoken out for:

That the new Rosendale

School be a wooden building. Eliminating the safety factor and just looking at this from a monetary point of view, while this plan would represent a savings of approximately $3.00 a sq. ft., upon investigation you find that the fire insurance would be astronomical and the upkeep of such a building would far outweigh any savings. I think at this point it is interesting to note that one of these three men is the owner of a lumber company and the other two are building contractors.

Split sessions for our children. Elimination of School Psychologists. Elimination of Sports Programs. Are these the things we want to happen in our school district? If not, there are three highly qualified men who are running in opposition: Mr. R. Shields, Mr. J. Bartel and Mr. A. Sperath. Mr. Sperath is the representative from Rosendale. But you must register in order to vote!

In closing I would like to say to the people of the Rondout Valley Central School District that we need more people out to vote pro school. Please contact your neighbors and friends and explain what is going on. You may only register up until 9 p. m. Tuesday, April 30th, so as you can see, time is running out. (Mrs.) Barbara DeStefano
President of the Rosendale P.T.C.

VIETNAMESE, LAOS (NEA)

Two can play at the game of infiltration. The Viet Cong have received a great deal of publicity for penetrating South Vietnam's cities during their Tet offensive. It's not well-known, but the South Vietnamese quite covertly and effectively penetrate areas governed by the Viet Cong, sometimes with striking results.

On one occasion the South Vietnamese guerrilla forces, knowing that this reporter had been a guerrilla in World War II, let me go in with them on some covert operations within a cluster of Viet Cong hamlets. This was on the understanding that the location of these operations would not be disclosed and that certain details of the operations would not be mentioned.

This particular series of operations was carried out by a group of three 10-man guerrilla teams, each scheduled to penetrate one hamlet in a three-hamlet cluster, primarily for intelligence and psychological-warfare operations. These operations were designed as first-strike or softening-up maneuvers, laying the ground for future major strikes. They were based on some of Mao Tse-tung's highly effective techniques.

The Viet Cong, like ourselves, don't have enough troops to occupy all their hamlets at all times. We picked a time when the VC troops were absent on extended patrol, then moved in. It was raining and the crops were fairly high, giving us some cover. There were a few shots in the distance as we moved in. We ducked and hugged the mud, but it turned out we were over-reacting. The shots weren't aimed at us.

One of the women in the group was known by the Vietnamese equivalent of "Shotgun Annie" because she was deadly with that weapon. Actually, her job on the team was to move from house to house, helping the women with their housework, giving them tips on improving their diet and living conditions.

The three teams this reporter went in with varied somewhat in composition. But each had 10 men or nine men and one woman. Two in each team were propagandists—psychological warfare specialists. They plastered propaganda statements on the walls of the houses, gave the children T-shirts bearing the national flag, provided "black pajama" work clothes for the elderly and needy. In other villages, the VC had come back, attempted to rip the T-shirts off the children and raised a storm of wrath.

This reporter went around one hamlet with the team's medic—a young man with a week or two of medical training and a case holding 30 standard remedies — one for stomachaches, another for headaches, another for headaches and so on. It wasn't much in the way of medicine, but the people were quite happy. It was a lot more than they were getting under the VC.

Our team, like all such teams, had an intelligence man. His job was to help the men with their work in the rice fields and with their chores and to listen to what they said in idle conversations. He'd hear about this house where a great many people came and went at night or about a family whose 20-year-old son disappeared for days or weeks at a time.

This indirect intelligence approach was calculated to expose the VC underground structure so that it could be weakened or eliminated, determine which villagers might co-operate when the government moved in with force.

LBJ Taking Two Courses

have done during the past month is taken as an indication of their thinking and what they are likely to do. U.S. officials have not found encouragement for their occasional hopes of negotiating a compromise settlement before the end of the year.

Yet the North Vietnamese reaction to Johnson's initial bombing limitation and call for talks on March 31 has provided enough surprises to make the future uncertain.

Biggest Surprise

Hanoi produced the biggest surprise at the outset of the exchange by agreeing quickly to make contact. That was on April 3 and was so unexpected that Johnson and his advisers took several hours to decide on their next move. They had thought it would be a number of weeks before North Vietnam digested Johnson's invitation for discussions.

Some hours after the North Vietnamese said they would be prepared to have contacts between U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives, Johnson announced the U.S. also was ready to "establish contact."

That exchange of public statements set the stage for the long negotiations which have followed over selection of a site for what would in effect be preliminary talks.

The United States has sent North Vietnam five notes since Johnson made his first move a month ago and has acknowledged receiving three notes from Hanoi. The exchange has defined a deadlock.

The North Vietnamese have insisted on Warsaw, Poland, or Phnom Penh, Cambodia, and the United States has objected to those two and offered 15 other places in Asia and Europe which Hanoi has termed inadequate.

In this exchange the United States has been in a weaker propaganda position than North Vietnam because of Johnson's widely proclaimed readiness of recent years to send a representative anywhere, anytime to talk peace.

Hanoi has tried to use this declaration to force the U.S. into accepting Warsaw, but Johnson has said the site must be a neutral place with secure communications, access for the U.S. and its Asian allies, and free of psychological advantages for either side. He said there should also be access for news coverage.

The most recent major contact came last Thursday when North Vietnamese diplomat Nguyen Chen invited U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan to his house in Vientiane, Laos, for a talk, the nature of which was not announced.

Showned Willingness

deadlock but at least North Vietnam showed continuing willingness to keep in touch with the United States.

The administration's judgment now is that North Vietnam probably intends to get into preliminary talks at the ambassadorial level at some point. The deadlock is not taken as evidence of a real unwillingness to negotiate, stalling the present contacts to death. The most general assessment of the current situation, accepted in the government here, is this:

The North Vietnamese and the United States have in fact begun negotiations over a possible peace settlement. Neither side can possibly know what the true aims of the other are. Both sides therefore are probing and testing for strengths and weaknesses.

Washington officials are uncertain how to assess the ground war in South Vietnam and therefore how to predict its effect on peace negotiation prospects. They continue to insist they have received no suggestions from any source—such as the Soviet Union or another Communist government—that North Vietnam has been deliberately de-escalating the war.

Johnson said March 31 that he would make the bombing pause complete if North Vietnam would respond to the restraint he had shown in limiting the bombing. His associates say they have seen no evidence of such restraint, that North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam during March and April has been extremely heavy.

They also say some new enemy offensive around Saigon, the northern city of Hue, or some-other prime targets must be expected.

Hints and Speculations

There have been hints in private comments that a major new military outburst by North Vietnam could bring an end to the partial bombing stop, now a month old. There have also been speculations, some in official quarters, that the President even under present circumstances might halt the rest of the bombing and confine U.S. aerial strikes to enemy positions in South Vietnam and Laos.

Highly placed informants here insist neither of these alternatives is in the cards. Johnson has placed no time limit on his partial bombing pause.

have done during the past month is taken as an indication of their thinking and what they are likely to do, U.S. officials have not found encouragement for their occasional hopes of negotiating a compromise settlement before the end of the year.

Yet the North Vietnamese reaction to Johnson's initial bombing limitation and call for talks on March 31 has provided enough surprises to make the future uncertain.

Biggest Surprise

Hanoi produced the biggest surprise at the outset of the exchanges by agreeing quickly to make contact. That was on April 3 and was so unexpected that Johnson and his advisers took several hours to decide on their next move. They had thought it would be a number of weeks before North Vietnam digested Johnson's invitation for discussions.

Some hours after the North Vietnamese said they would be prepared to have contacts between U.S. and North Vietnamese representatives, John son announced the U.S. also was ready to "establish contact."

That exchange of public statements set the stage for the long negotiations which have followed over selection of a site for what would in effect be preliminary talks.

The United States has sent North Vietnam five notes since Johnson made his first move a month ago and has acknowledged receiving three notes from Hanoi. The exchange has defined a deadlock.

The North Vietnamese have insisted on Warsaw, Poland, or Phnom Penh, Cambodia, and the United States has objected to those two and offered 15 other places in Asia and Europe which Hanoi has termed inadequate.

In this exchange the United States has been in a weaker propaganda position than North Vietnam because of Johnson's widely proclaimed readiness of recent years to send a representative anywhere, anytime to talk peace.

Hanoi has tried to use this declaration to force the U.S. into accepting Warsaw, but Johnson has said the site must be a neutral place with secure communications, access for the U.S. and its Asian allies, and free of psychological advantages for either side. He said there should also be access for news coverage.

The most recent major contact came last Thursday when North Vietnamese diplomat Nguyen Chen invited U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan to his house in Vientiane, Laos, for a talk, the nature of which was not announced.

Showing willingness they did not break the site

deadlock but at least North Vietnam showed continuing willingness to keep in touch with the United States.

The administration's judgment now is that North Vietnam probably intends to get into preliminary talks at the ambassadorial level at some point. The deadlock is not taken as evidence of a real unwillingness to negotiate, stalling the present contacts to death. The most general assessment of the current situation, accepted in the government here, is this:

The North Vietnamese and the United States have in fact begun negotiations over a possible peace settlement. Neither side can possibly know what the true aims of the other are. Both sides therefore are probing and testing for strengths and weaknesses.

Washington officials are uncertain how to assess the ground war in South Vietnam and therefore how to predict its effect on peace negotiations.

They continue to insist they have received no suggestions from any source—such as the Soviet Union or another Communist government—that North Vietnam has been deliberately de-escalating the war.

Johnson said March 31 that he would make the bombing pause complete if North Vietnam would respond to the restraint he had shown in limiting the bombing. His associates say they have seen no evidence of such restraint that North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam during March and April has been extremely heavy.

They also say some new enemy offensive around Saigon, the northern city of Hue, or some other prime targets must be expected.

Hints and Speculations

There have been hints in private comments that a major new military outburst by North Vietnam could bring an end to the partial bombing stop, now a month old. There have also been speculations, some in official quarters, that the President even under present circumstances might halt the rest of the bombing and confine U.S. aerial strikes to enemy positions in South Vietnam and Laos.

Highly placed informants here insist neither of these alternatives is in the cards. Johnson has placed no time limit on his partial bombing pause.

Local Talent To Perform at Hurley Show

More than 20 different talent acts will be presented in this year's Hurley Lions Show at the Hurley School May 4.

Local young people will perform song and dance, instrumental, rock and roll and folk-singing numbers.

Miss Janis Johnson, as Miss Ulster County, and Jim Thompson will participate. Special numbers will be presented by an 11-guitar ensemble and Pete Mathews and a surprise Hurley Lions Chorus.

An added feature this year is the publication of the Hurley Historical Digest—1968. The 40-page brochure will contain recorded history of Old Hurley and 26 pictures of old and new Hurley. It will have a directory of all Hurley town officials and organizations including names of men in service, Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Girl and Brownie Scouts. The program for the Memorial Day events at Old Hurley Cemetery is included.

The booklet will be available to each ticket purchaser but will be sold after the show.

The profits of the show and brochure will go for Hurley Lions Community fund expenditures.

Upstate Man Drowned Sunday In Louisiana

BURRWOOD, La. (AP) — James A. Butler, 37, of Watertown, N.Y., was drowned Sunday when trapped in a workover oil rig that sank in the Mississippi River.

The cause of the sinking was not determined.

The rig was near the mouth of the river. The water was calm, although visibility was poor.

Charles J. Beaupre, operations superintendent for Dresser Offshore Services Inc., owner of the rig, said another 15 men got off safely. Beaupre added that Butler was the only man missing.

Butler was employed by Statton and Statton, an offshore catering company with headquarters in Morga City, La.

Workover rigs clean out sand sections of operating wells in addition to other maintenance services.

Financial and Commercial

By ED MORSE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved higher early Monday in a generally inflationary atmosphere.

Gains outstripped losses by nearly 2 to 1 and the New York Stock Exchange index gained slightly.

Advances among most leading issues were fractional, some going to a point or so.

Chock Full O'Nuts was active and up 2 on unconfirmed reports of a possible takeover by another company.

Gains of a point or so were made by Phelps Dodge, Du Pont and Owens Illinois.

Norwich Pharmaceutical was up a fraction and Revlon was about unchanged following news that Revlon had acquired a substantial stock interest in Norwich.

Fractional gains were made by Montgomery Ward, Gulf Western, Commonwealth Oil and Ogdan Corp.

The Wall Street background included the March rise in consumer prices, the biggest in eight months and a report from the commerce department that most of the 21 leading business indicators point toward stronger inflationary pressures just ahead.

Quotations by Loeb, Rhoades & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange, Kingston Branch, 245 Wall Street, Kingston, N. Y., Frank D. Hoornbeek, manager.

Mayor Reviews Firemen's Data Of Fact-Finder

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan today made his official recommendations of a fact-finder's report in the wage dispute between the city and its firemen, turning the report "wholly unacceptable." The fact-finder had supported the firemen.

In forwarding his opinion of the fact-finder's recommendations to John F. Hans, director of conciliation for the State Public Employee Relations Board, Garraghan repeated his offer to the firemen that calls for a $350 raise for each fireman over his 1967 salary and an increase in the clothing allowance from $75 to $150.

Garraghan writes that "this is the exact agreed salary and uniform allowance increase which was completely acceptable to the members of the Police Department from the chief on down."

Garraghan then lists some of the benefits the firemen have received during his administration including a $2,128 salary increase for the chief, a 25-year retirement plan, hospitalization and a career plan.

Report 'Tornado' In Lake Katrine

A "small tornado" that reportedly carried a 16-foot camp trailer 200 feet and slammed it against a pine tree and parked car off the Sawkill Road in Lake Katrine on Sunday, was reported to Kingston State Police.

Mrs. Charles P. Baechtle on whose property the trailer was parked, said the family was at home about 1 p.m. when they heard "a terrific noise caused by the tornado." She reported the wind carried the newly purchased trailer from the driveway of her home a distance of 200 feet through the property of a neighbor, ripping off one side of a pine tree and damaging a parked car.

"My husband and I were home with our three children at the time we were startled by the noise of the tornado," Mrs. Baechtle told a newsman. "It only lasted a few seconds."

The resident said other persons had reported they saw the "tornado" coming in over the Thruway from the direction of Saugerties before it hit the Lake Katrine property. Mrs. Baechtle said the trailer, which was purchased recently was destroyed. The entire top was ripped off, she noted.

Trooper Craig Bremer investigated the report.

As far as could be learned no other damage was reported in the area.

A spokesman at the State Commerce Department Administration weather bureau in Albany said that office had no record of any tornado activity. He said "it would have had to be on a very small scale. There was nothing in the weather pattern that would cause such a situation." He added "it might have been a local wind gust."

FBI Continues Bechtold Beach Murder Probe

The Federal Bureau of Investigation in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is continuing its investigation into the pistol murder of Neil R. Bechtold and his 20-year-old woman companion, Dorothy Long, daughter of a Ramey Air Force Base school teacher.

Both Bechtold, a sergeant in the U. S. Air Force 72nd Security Police Squadron stationed at the Caribbean Air Base, and Miss Long were found early Thursday morning on an isolated section of a beach within the military installation by the woman's father.

Bechtold was the son of the 1967 Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor of Kingston, C. John Bechtold. He enlisted in the Air Force in 1965 and was a 1964 graduate of Kingston High School.

Farsighted Grandfather
Should Consult a Lawyer

Q—I am a 77-year-old grandfather who wants to invest some savings set aside for my three grandsons aged 8, 12 and 14. I have in mind Jersey Standard, Southern Co., Skill and American Hospital Supply. Any changes in your opinion? How should I have the certificates made out, just in case I might require the use of this money for a temporary emergency of my own? Will you also please comment on my Tennessee stock, now below cost?—C.D.

A—You are fortunate in being able to provide for your grandsons' future needs and you have selected some good stocks. But unless you want the income from Southern Co., I would substitute for it one of the growth stocks from my column recommendations that could possibly do more for you. I think you should see your lawyer about the details of a plan that would both provide for your grandsons and also protect yourself.

Tenneco has been a slow mover for some months, but I would be inclined to hold on and not sell at a loss, it seems to have been unduly influenced by its earlier image of a federally regulated gas company. Actually Tenneco is a broad-based, well-managed energy company deriving less than half its revenues from government-regulated pipeline operations.

Q—Please recommend bonds paying about 6 per cent, partly exempt from federal income tax. I understand such bonds are issued and should be about AA grade—R.C.

A—The bonds you have in mind, issued by states, municipalities and sundry authorities under their jurisdiction, provide income fully exempt from federal income tax. Since their yield to an investor depends on his tax bracket, I can only advise you that they are best suited to persons in the higher brackets. If you are one of these you might consider State of Maryland 2 1/2's of 1976-77 and 3.70's of 1981. Both are rated triple A and are currently quoted under par.

Financial and Commercial

BY ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved higher early Monday in a generally inflationary atmosphere.

Gains outstripped losses by nearly 2 to 1 and the New York Stock Exchange index gained slightly.

Advances among most leading issues were fractional, some going to a point or so.

Chock Full O'Nuts was active and up 2 on unconfirmed reports of a possible takeover by another company.

Gains of a point or so were made by Phelps Dodge, Du Pont and Owens Illinois.

Norwich Pharmaceutical was up a fraction and Revlon was about unchanged following news that Revlon had acquired a substantial stock interest in Norwich.

Fractional gains were made by Montgomery Ward, Gulf Western, Commonwealth Oil and Ogen Corp.

The Wall Street background included the March rise in consumer prices, the biggest in eight months and a report from the commerce department that most of the 21 leading business indicators point toward stronger inflationary pressures just ahead.

Mayor Reviews Firemen's Data Of Fact-Finder

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan today made his official recommendations of a fact-finder's report in the wage dispute between the city and its firemen, turning the report "wholly unacceptable." The fact-finder had supported the firemen.

In forwarding his opinion of the fact-finder's recommendations to John F. Huns, director of conciliation for the State Public Employees Relations Board, Garraghan repeated his offer to the firemen that calls for a $350 raise for each fireman over his 1967 salary and an increase in the clothing allowance from $75 to $150.

Garraghan writes that "this is the exact agreed salary and uniform allowance increase which was completely acceptable to the members of the Police Department from the chief on down."

Garraghan then lists some of the benefits the firemen have received during his administration including a $2,128 salary increase for the chief, a 25-year retirement plan, hospitalization and a career plan.

Report 'Tornado' In Lake Katrine

A "small tornado" that reportedly carried a 16-foot camp trailer 200 feet and slammed it against a pine tree and parked car off the Sawkill-Ruby Road in Lake Katrine on Sunday, was reported to Kingston State Police.

Mrs. Charles P. Baechtle on whose property the trailer was parked, said the family was at home about 1 p.m. when they heard "a terrific noise caused by the tornado." She reported the wind carried the newly purchased trailer from the drive in way of her home a distance of 200 feet through the property of a neighbor, ripping off one side of a pine tree and damaging a parked car.

"My husband and I were home with our three children at the time we were startled by the noise of the tornado," Mrs. Baechtle told a newsman. "It only lasted a few seconds."

The resident said other persons had reported they saw the "tornado" coming in over the Thruway from the direction of Saugerties before it hit the Lake Katrine property. Mrs. Baechtle said the trailer, which was purchased recently was destroyed. The entire top was ripped off.

A spokesman at the State Commerce Department Administration weather bureau in Albany said that office had no record of any tornado activity. He said "it would have had to be on a very small scale. There was nothing in the weather pattern that would cause such a situation." He added "it might have been a local wind gust."

50-Year Hercules Man Feted, Retires Tuesday

The first employee to mark 50 years of service at the Port Ewen plant of Hercules Incorporated was honored at a special banquet Friday night.

He is Arthur (Chick) Maurer who was the guest at a dinner at the Capri 400. The event was attended by more than 200 persons. Master of ceremonies was H. Irving Etchells, administrative assistant to the manager, and speakers included B. H. Sleight Jr., Port Ewen plant works manager, and several Hercules executives from the corporate headquarters in Wilmington, Del. Maurer will retire on April 30.

Started in 1918
Maurer, who was born and raised in Connelly, started working at the plant March 4, 1918, when it was owned by Aetna Explosives. Hercules acquired the facility in 1921.

His first assignment was as a clerk doing secretarial work in the office. In 1925 he was named in charge of warehouse and shipments in the Delay Department. He held several other supervisory positions in various departments before being named production supervisor, a position he has held since 1945. An ardent baseball fan, Maurer played semi-professional ball for 20 years in the Kingston area as a pitcher and in the outfield. He played on the Hercules' plant baseball team for a number of years and has been an active bowler.

Maurer is a former director of the Kingston Red Cross, a member of the Knights of Columbus and is a life member of the Hasbrouck Engine Company.

He has a son, Arthur, a lab technician at the plant, and his brother Francis I. (Ira) Maurer retired in 1960 as supervisor of maintenance after being employed 36 years with the company.

Three-State Plans

He and his wife, the former Anna Maria DeCicco of Kingston, reside at 21 Madison Avenue. Their future plans are "to spend winters in Florida" and the summer in Kingston and in Minnesota visiting relatives. They also plan to spend time traveling in other parts of the country.

Maurer is one of only five persons who have attained 50 years of employment with Hercules, a chemical company with more than 30,000 employees. The company has 37 plants in 23 states and foreign subsidiaries number 33 plants in 15 countries.

The Port Ewen facility currently employs 549 people. The plant manufactures electrical blasting caps for commercial explosives, and electronic devices for commercial, aerospace, industry, and military uses.

ARTHUR MAURER, right, receives citation for 50 years of service with Hercules Incorporated from B. H. Sleight Jr., Port Ewen plant works manager. Maurer will retire from the company April 30.

Keating, a former U.S. senator, was cited at the school's commencement exercises Sunday.

50-Year Hercules Man Feted, Retires Tuesday

The first employee to mark 50 years of service at the Port Ewen plant of Hercules Incorporated was honored at a special banquet Friday night.

He is Arthur (Chick) Maurer, who was the guest at a dinner at the Capri 400. The event was attended by more than 200 persons. Master of ceremonies was H. Irving Etchells, administrative assistant to the manager, and speakers included B. H. Sleight Jr., Port Ewen plant works manager, and several Hercules executives from the corporate headquarters in Wilmington, Del. Maurer will retire on April 30.

Started in 1918
Maurer, who was born and raised in Connelly, started working at the plant March 4, 1918, when it was owned by Aetna Explosives. Hercules acquired the facility in 1921.

His first assignment was as a clerk doing secretarial work in the office. In 1925 he was named in charge of warehouse and named production supervisor, a position he has held since 1945. An ardent baseball fan, Maurer played semi-professional ball for 20 years in the Kingston area as a pitcher and in the outfield. He played on the Hercules' plant baseball team for a number of years and has been an active bowler.

Maurer is a former director of the Kingston Red Cross, a member of the Knights of Columbus and is a life member of the Hasbrouck Engine Company.

He has a son, Arthur, a lab technician at the plant, and his brother Francis I. (Ira) Maurer retired in 1960 as supervisor of maintenance after being employed 36 years with the company.

Three-State Plans

He and his wife, the former Anna Maria DeCicco of Kingston, reside at 21 Madison Avenue. Their future plans are "to spend winters in Florida" and the summer in Kingston and in Minnesota visiting relatives. They also plan to spend time traveling in other parts of the country.

Maurer is one of only five persons who have attained 50 years of employment with Hercules, a chemical company with more than 30,000 employees. The company has 37 plants in 23 states and foreign subsidiaries number 33 plants in 15 countries.

The Port Ewen facility currently employs 549 people. The plant manufactures electric blasting caps for commercial explosives, and electro-explosive devices for commercial, aerospace, industry, and military uses.

ARTHUR MAURER, right, receives citation for 50 years of service with Hercules Incorporated from B. H. Sleight Jr., Port Ewen plant works manager. Maurer will retire from the company April 30.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio has publicized a slogan which proclaims "Profit is not a dirty word in Ohio."

During a recent legislative session, state Rep. Keith McNamara, Columbus, brought a chuckle from the Rev. Alvin Duane Smith, Ohio House chaplain, when he passed a slip of paper on which was written: "Profit is not a dirty word in Ohio."

White Plains Woman Remembers Late Czech Official

By BARBARA CRAMPTON

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)

—The last time Mrs. Kay Bednarik saw the late foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, Jan Masaryk, was in October, 1947, four years after she left her job as his personal secretary in the Czech Embassy in London.

Now a White Plains resident, she vividly recalled the meeting. "When I saw him, I was shocked to my very bones. He must have seen it in my face, for the first thing he said to me was, 'I look terrible, don't I?' And, he did look terrible."

Masaryk was on a visit to New York when he summoned his former secretary. Staunchly pro-western, he was in a dangerous position in post-war Czechoslovakia, and Mrs. Bednarik urged him to stay in the United States.

"I can't stay," he told her. "I can't leave Mr. (Edward) Benes (Prime Minister), home alone."

Several months later, Masaryk was dead.

"I do not believe it was a suicide," Mrs. Bednarik said.

And, only now is the story of the foreign minister's death coming to light. Many charge he was a victim of Stalinists, murdered, his death made to look like suicide.

Although the health of the foreign minister had been undermined—Mrs. Bednarik reported his arm was in a black arm sling when she saw him, an indication he had suffered a slight stroke—she says that sources "who should know" told her that Masaryk was poisoned.

He was dead before he hit the ground outside the Foreign Ministry in Prague she claims. He allegedly jumped from a bathroom window.

"That window was eight feet off the floor, they tell me. And, besides," said Mrs. Bednarik, "he would never have done a thing like that. He was not the kind to like to attract attention."

If Masaryk was going to commit suicide, she said, he would have done it privately and quietly.

Reflecting on the personality of the Czech leader with whom she worked for four years during the London blitz, Mrs. Bednarik observed:

"He had enormous charm. He was a brilliant thinker, but he could be in the most rosy mood before luncheon and then in a rotten mood all afternoon. He had a certain tendency to be melancholy."

More than 20 years have elapsed since she last saw Masaryk, and Mrs. Bednarik has lived in New York City and White Plains. Now she operates a travel agency.

And, she likes White Plains. "It's hilly. It reminds me of home."

Establishment Candidate

Humphrey Has Old Fashioned Zest for Political Combat

By HARRY KELLY
Labeled A Scraper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The eyes glisten. The high pink forehead shines under the lights. The hands pump and batter the smoky air. The voice crackles and thunders.

"Sock it to 'em, Hubert!" bellows an enthusiastic fan. A hall full of admirers cheers. Signs wave. A red-coated band blares another chorus of "Minnesa Rowser."

And there on the dais, beaming, stands Hubert Horatio Humphrey, number two and trying hard for almost four years. From now on he'll be trying for number one, and in dozens of halls, dining rooms and gymnasiums the people will see Hubert Humphrey in his element.

In an era of the "cool" candidate and the "New Politics," Humphrey brings an old fashioned zest for political combat and Fourth of July oratory, featuring a machine-gun delivery. Barry Goldwater once clocked at 275 words a minute with gusts up to 340.

An administration official who has watched Humphrey operate shakes his head with wonder: "Hubert is a scraper. Most people when they have to mix it up do it as a job that has to be done. But Hubert enjoys getting into the pit and mixing it up. His juices flow."

And the name of Bobby Kennedy is almost certain to stimulate the flow even more. Kennedy was manager for his brother's campaigns in the Wisconsin and West Virginia primaries when John F. Kennedy knocked Humphrey out of the 1960 race for the Democratic nomination. West Virginia was a tough campaign. Even Humphrey's lack of military service in World War II came up. And when Robert F. Kennedy arrived at the Humphrey's West Virginia headquarters to offer the victor's salutation to the loser, Mrs. Humphrey is said to have turned away.

Humphrey, his aides say, is not a vengeful politician. "He doesn't even keep a black book to write down the names of the people who have stabbed him," says one. But he has a memory, and ambitions, and an awareness of how times have changed.

As he stands in his natty suit with a semi-continental cut, facing a middle-aged labor crowd, Humphrey seems to aim his pitch at the Lawrence Welk generation rather than the young swingers mustered under the banners of Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy. Humphrey's old colleague in Minnesota's Democratic-Farmer-Labor party, "Maturity," "patience" and "experience" are words that crop up frequently in his speeches.

It is not a put-down of the younger generation by a grandfather who will be 57 on May 27. Humphrey enjoys visits to the halls of ivy as much as Kennedy or McCarthy, but more than either of his two Democratic rivals, Humphrey can point to his record in the Senate and his experience as Democratic whipman during the Kennedy administration and as vice president under Lyndon B. Johnson.

Humphrey recalls, "I stood through many long, hard days as majority whip of the United States Senate alongside President John Kennedy, as we sought a nuclear test ban treaty, as we had to face up to Khrushchev's threat of nuclear weapons in Cuba."

"I have been with President Johnson in the meetings of the National Security Council—and alone with him at lonely hours in the White House—not once but dozens of times—in review of various policy alternatives facing our country in Southeast Asia."

Johnson and Humphrey entered the Senate the same year, 1949, both hailing from small towns and familiar with hard times of the depression. ("I came up the poor route," says Humphrey.) In four years Johnson, a favorite of the Southern leadership in the Senate, became Democratic leader.

When Johnson brought the liberal evangelist from Minnesota into the Senate's inner circle he called Humphrey "my link with the bomb throwers."

Endorsed By Labor

Now Humphrey—whose battle for a stronger civil rights plank in the 1948 platform caused Democrats to bolt the party—is the man of the Establishment, endorsed by some of the biggest names of big labor, and apparently the most favored of the three regular Democrats south of the Mason-Dixon line.

He also has developed rich contacts by being Johnson's liaison man with U.S. mayors and has built up a stack of political blue chips by being the most ac-good note on which to end our talk. But he said his door would be open to anyone.

But while the four years have apparently broadened his constituency among businessmen, blue collar workers and southerners, they have also left scars.

The deepest scars are from the wounds over the war. Despite his work for civil rights and welfare legislation, some of Humphrey's old liberal colleagues have called him a betrayer of the cause for his support of the administration's Vietnam policy.

He has been pictured as a cheerleader for the war. The board of the Americans for Democratic Action, the liberal group Humphrey helped organize, endorsed McCarthy's candidacy. The party in his home state divided so sharply in caucuses that there was a possibility that McCarthy forces could control the Minnesota delegation to the Democratic Convention in Chicago. (Humphrey said a Minnesota associate, had lost touch with his home base: "these new kids in the party don't even know Hubert.")

One long-time liberal colleague said Humphrey received him very courteously last winter when he traveled to the vice president's Capitol Hill office to tell him he was going to support McCarthy. "Then he gave me a lecture on Vietnam. When he was through I told him that his role as advocate for the Johnson Administration had spoiled his powers of critical analysis. But I told him that if he became president the war would be over in six months. Hubert said maybe that was a

He didn't look in the direction of the waiting Humphrey plane.

Recently a two-engine Air Force plane used to carry the vice president on short out of town jaunts was pulled up awaiting his arrival at Washington's National Airport. Parked directly in front of it, tail to nose, was a gleaming four-engine Electra, identical to the chartered plane. "The Happy Warrior," Humphrey used in his 1964 vice presidential campaign.

A Humphrey aide looked wistfully at the big plane and observed, "It looks like the Happy Warrior, doesn't it?" There was a pause, then he added, "We won't be able to use that (name) this time." He said with a grin, "This isn't a year for warriors."

Bobby Didn't Look Suddenly Bobby Kennedy and wife Ethel strode out of the terminal, the brisk April wind blowing Kennedy's hair as he hurried over to shake hands with a television camera crew, then bounded into the Electra which was to carry him into Indiana for a round of campaign-

Town and County of Ulster Taxpayers:YOUR PROPERTY TAX WILL INCREASE
UNLESS YOU PROTEST FOR CHANGES ON WED., MAY 1

The State of New York has proposed to build a non-access arterial highway cutting through the heart of the commercial area of the Town of Ulster from the Caldor area on the north to Route 32 Kingston City line on the south.

This proposal, as it stands, will seriously jeopardize this rapidly growing regional commercial and business area. This area is your main economic tax base which supports the low tax rate for all properties in the Town of Ulster (residential and commercial) and strongly supports a substantial portion of the county's tax base, the Kingston Consolidated School tax base, the Ulster Water District tax base, the Ulster Lighting District tax base, and the proposed Ulster Sewer District tax base.

1. The proposed non-access road will destroy half of the present 209-9W Cloverleaf (at Caldor's) and create a hazardous bottleneck of traffic so that traffic from the north, south, east and west will not be able to get in and out of the vast business and commercial area on Rt. 9W and Albany Avenue Extension with safety and adequate accessibility.

2. The proposed non-access road will destroy and landlock much valuable lands to the east of Rt. 9W, on which lands commercial development has been planned and already publicly announced (Duggan property—Ulster Shopping Mall).

3. The proposed non-access road will cause the immediate abandonment of the present state highways known as Rt. 9W, Rt. 209, Albany Avenue Extension and East Chester Street Extension (although these state roads have been planned and promised to be improved by their present owner, the State).

4. Unless you secure amendments to the present proposal, the state's non-access highway will seriously jeopardize the present stability and future growth of this area and will probably mean the deterioration of the area, its valuable present and future economic tax base and thus an increased tax burden which every property owner in the entire town (residential and commercial) will have to pay.

The Town Planning Board and Town Board have requested that the state cure the devastating effect of this proposed road but have not received any satisfactory solution.

After considerable study we urge every property owner to

THIS IS YOUR ONE AND ONLY CHANCE TO BE HEARD!

We URGE YOU TO

(1) Demand the immediate improvement (to a 4-lane undivided highway, widening within the present right of way, with adequate storm drainage) of State Highways Rt. 9W and 209 (Albany Avenue Extension and East Chester Street Extension) from the city line to the Caldor area before any other state road is proposed or built in the Town of Ulster (these improvements have been planned and promised by the state for many years but are not forthcoming, notwithstanding their great immediate need). Unless this is done, valuable taxable properties will deteriorate, and

(2) Absolutely oppose the present proposed arterial unless it is modified to retain the present

cloverleaf interchange at Caldor, thus eliminating the proposed dangerous bottleneck and inadequate access. (This can be done by simply moving the proposed arterial highway about 1,000 feet to the east), and

(3) Demand that the valuable taxable lands available for development, such as the Duggan property shopping mall, and adjacent lands, not be interfered with. (This can be done by simply moving the proposed arterial highway about 1,000 feet to the east), and

(4) Demand more adequate and safer traffic pattern at Shop-Rite Square. The present proposal would create a dangerous and inadequate connecting road at Shop-Rite Square intersection.

We stand strongly for additional good roads in our community, but we strongly oppose roads which may destroy a thriving community and its needed economic tax base.

You may see and study the proposed plans now at the Town Supervisor's Office at 35 Vincent Street, Town of Ulster.

Establishment Candidate

Humphrey Has Old Fashioned Zest for Political Combat

By HARRY KELLY
Labeled A Scrapper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The eyes glisten. The high pink forehead shines under the lights. The hands pump and batter the smoky air. The voice crackles and thunders.

"Sock it to 'em, Hubert!" bellows an enthusiastic fan. A half-dozen admirers cheer. Signs wave. A red-coated band blares another chorus of "Minnesota Rowser."

And there on the dais beaming, stands Hubert Horatio Humphrey, number two and trying hard for almost four years. From now on he'll be trying for number one, and in dozens of halls, dining rooms and gymnasiums the people will see Hubert Humphrey in his element.

In an era of the "cool" candidate and the "New Politics," Humphrey brings an old-fashioned zest for political combat. Fourth of July oratory, featuring a machine-gun delivery of Barry Goldwater once clocked at "275 words a minute with guests up to 240."

An administration official who has watched Humphrey operate shakes his head with wonder. "Hubert is a scrapper. Most people when they have to mix it up do it as a job that has to be done. But Hubert enjoys getting into the pit and mixing it up. His juices flow."

And the name of Bobby Kennedy is almost certain to stimulate the flow even more. Kennedy was manager for his brother's campaigns in the Wisconsin and West Virginia primaries when John F. Kennedy knocked Humphrey out of the 1960 race for the Democratic nomination. West Virginia was a tough campaign. Even Humphrey's lack of military service in World War II came up. And when Robert F. Kennedy arrived at the Humphrey's West Virginia headquarters to offer the victor's salutation to the loser, Mrs. Humphrey is said to have turned away.

Humphrey, his aides say, is not a vengeful politician. "He doesn't even keep a black book to write down the names of the people who have stabbed him," says one. But he has a memory, and ambitions, and an awareness of how times have changed.

As he stands in his natty suit with a semi-continent cut, facing a middle-aged labor crowd, Humphrey seems to aim his pitch at the Lawrence Welk generation rather than the young swimmers mustered under the banners of Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy. Humphrey's old colleague in Minnesota's Democratic-Farmer-Labor party, "Maturity," "patience" and "experience" are words that crop up frequently in his speeches.

It is not a put-down of the younger generation by a grandfather who will be 57 on May 27. Humphrey enjoys visits to the halls of ivy as much as Kennedy or McCarthy, but more than either of his two Democratic rivals. Humphrey can point to his record in the Senate and his experience as Democratic whip during the Kennedy administration and as vice president under Lyndon B. Johnson.

Humphrey recalls, "I stood through many long, hard days as majority whip of the United States Senate alongside President John Kennedy, as we sought a nuclear test ban treaty, as we had to face up to Khrushchev's threat of nuclear weapons in Cuba."

"I have been with President Johnson in the meetings of the National Security Council—and alone with him at lonely hours in the White House—not once but dozens of times—in review of various policy alternatives facing our country in Southeast Asia."

Johnson and Humphrey entered the Senate the same year, 1949, both hailing from small towns and familiar with hard times of the depression. ("I came up the poor route," says Humphrey.) In four years Johnson, a favorite of the Southern leadership in the Senate, became Democratic leader.

When Johnson brought the liberal evangelist from Minnesota into the Senate's inner circle he called Humphrey "my link with the bomb throwers."

Endorsed By Labor

Now Humphrey—whose battle for a stronger civil rights plank in the 1948 platform caused Democrats to bolt the party—is the man of the Establishment, endorsed by some of the biggest names of big labor, and apparently the most favored of the three regular Democrats south of the Mason-Dixon line.

He also has developed rich contacts by being Johnson's liaison man with U.S. mayors and has built up a stack of political blue chips by being the most active administration speaker in the party bonodocks.

But while the four years have apparently broadened his constituency among businessmen, blue collar workers and southerners, they have also left scars.

The deepest scars are from the wounds over the war. Despite his work for civil rights and welfare legislation, some of Humphrey's old liberal colleagues have called him a betrayer of the cause for his support of the administration's Vietnam policy.

He has been pictured as a cheerleader for the war. The board of the Americans for Democratic Action, the liberal group Humphrey helped organize, endorsed McCarthy's candidacy. The party in his home state divided so sharply in caucuses that there was a possibility that McCarthy forces could control the Minnesota delegation to the Democratic Convention in Chicago. (Humphrey said a Minnesota associate had lost touch with his home base; "these new kids in the party don't even know Hubert.")

One long-time liberal colleague said Humphrey received him very courteously last winter when he traveled to the vice president's Capitol Hill office to tell him he was going to support McCarthy. And "Then he gave me a lecture on Vietnam. When he was through I told him that his role as advocate for the Johnson Administration had spoiled his powers of critical analysis. But I told him that if he became president the war would be over in six months. Hubert said maybe that was a good note on which to end our talk. But he said his door would be open to me at any time.

Force plane used to carry the vice president on short out of town jaunts was pulled up awaiting his arrival at Washington's National Airport. Parked directly in front of it, tail to nose, was a gleaming four-engine Electra, identical to the chartered plane. "The Happy Warrior," Humphrey used in his 1964 vice presidential campaign.

A Humphrey aide looked wistfully at the big plane and observed, "It looks like the Happy Warrior, doesn't it?" There was a pause, then he added, "We won't be able to use that (name) this time." He said with a grin, "This isn't a year for warriors."

Bobby Didn't Look

Suddenly Bobby Kennedy and wife Ethel strode out of the terminal, the brisk April wind blowing Kennedy's hair as he hurried over to shake hands with a television camera crew. Then bounded into the Electra which was to carry him into Indiana for a round of campaigning the flesh, then into the plane, all business, his face suddenly serious.

denly serious.

And then up, up and away

and bright with the joy of press-

THE 'REPUBLICANS for BELL' COMMITTEE

Invites You to Be Their Guests

AT THE HEADQUARTERS OPENING

MONDAY, APRIL 29th FROM 6 to 8 P. M.

AT 251 CLINTON AVENUE, KINGSTON

A Buffet Supper Will Be Served

ATTENTION!

Town and County of Ulster Taxpayers:

YOUR PROPERTY TAX WILL INCREASE

UNLESS YOU PROTEST FOR CHANGES ON WED., MAY 1

The State of New York has proposed to build a non-access arterial highway cutting through the heart of the commercial area of the Town of Ulster from the Caldor area on the north to Route 32 Kingston City line on the south.

This proposal, as it stands, will seriously jeopardize this rapidly growing regional commercial and business area. This area is your main economic tax base which supports the low tax rate for all properties in the Town of Ulster (residential and commercial) and strongly supports a substantial portion of the county's tax base, the Kingston Consolidated School tax base, the Ulster Water District tax base, the Ulster Lighting District tax base, and the proposed Ulster Sewer District tax base.

1. The proposed non-access road will destroy half of the present 209-9W Cloverleaf (at Caldor's) and create a hazardous bottleneck of traffic so that traffic from the north, south, east and west will not be able to get in and out of the vast business and commercial area on Rt. 9W and Albany Avenue Extension with safety and adequate accessibility.

2. The proposed non-access road will destroy and landlock much valuable lands to the east of Rt. 9W, on which lands commercial development has been planned and already publicly announced (Duggan property—Ulster Shopping Mall).

3. The proposed non-access road will cause the immediate abandonment of the present state highways known as Rt. 9W, Rt. 209, Albany Avenue Extension and East Chester Street Extension (although these state roads have been planned and promised to be improved by their present owner, the State).

4. Unless you secure amendments to the present proposal, the state's non-access highway will seriously jeopardize the present stability and future growth of this area and will probably mean the deterioration of the area, its valuable present and future economic tax base and thus an increased tax burden which every property owner in the entire town (residential and commercial) will have to pay.

The Town Planning Board and Town Board have requested that the state cure the devastating effect of this proposed road but have not received any satisfactory solution.

After considerable study we urge every property owner to Attend the Public Hearing on Wed., May 1, 1968
at 7 P. M. at the Chambers School and make your own individual strong protest.

We URGE YOU TO

(1) Demand the immediate improvement (to a 4-lane undivided highway, widening within the present right of way, with adequate storm drainage) of State Highway Rt. 9W and 209 (Albany Avenue Extension and East Chester Street Extension) from the city line to the Caldor area before any other state road is proposed or built in the Town of Ulster (these improvements have been planned and promised by the state for many years but are not forthcoming, notwithstanding their great immediate need). Unless this is done, valuable taxable properties will deteriorate, and

(2) Absolutely oppose the present proposed arterial unless it is modified to retain the present

cloverleaf interchange at Caldor, thus eliminating the proposed dangerous bottleneck and inadequate access. (This can be done by simply moving the proposed arterial highway about 1,000 feet to the east), and

(3) Demand that the valuable taxable lands available for development, such as the Duggan property shopping mall, and adjacent lands, not be interfered with. (This can be done by simply moving the proposed arterial highway about 1,000 feet to the east), and

(4) Demand more adequate and safer traffic pattern at Shop-Rite Square. The present proposal would create a dangerous and inadequate connecting road at Shop-Rite Square intersection.

We stand strongly for additional good roads in our community, but we strongly oppose roads which may destroy a thriving community and its needed economic tax base.

You may see and study the proposed plans now at the Town Supervisor's Office at 35 Vincent Street, Town of Ulster.

150 Participate in New Paltz March

About 150 people marched through the streets of New Paltz Saturday protesting the war in Vietnam and what they termed the war against black people.

Included in the march, led by Wade Thompson, professor of English at the State University College at New Paltz, were members of the Ulster County Peace Committee, the Ellenville Peace Committee, and the New Paltz Peace Committee, along with a contingent of Quakers attending a conference at Lake Minnewaska.

Also in the peace and civil rights walk were some members of the Blacks for Black Liberation, an organization formed on the college campus two weeks ago. According to Abdul Nangi, a foreign student from Africa, the purpose of the organization is to "seek the economic, social, and cultural well being of the black people."

The group plans to work in the community.

The march started at the Elting Library on Main St., to the Empire Market at the east end of town. Then the group turned around and headed toward the town offices on Plattekill Ave., where the walk ended.

Sheriff William B. Martin was on hand to observe the march. He drove in back of the march and a village police car drove in front, red lights flashing.

Professor Thompson spoke to the assembled participants in front of the town building and said, "We are facing a crisis of identity," referring to recent U. S. and North Vietnam peace moves and President Johnson's withdrawal from the Presidential race.

Wray Bailey of the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker organization, said, "We believe in black power," and he defined it as the "total black community" seeking its "fair share" of the economic, social, and cultural bounty of the nation.

Bailey received applause when he declared, "We must have justice in the courts, for without justice in the courts we have no country."

He claimed that none of the black militants ever "brought about the progress that Martin Luther King had," and he said that non violence was the key to the civil rights struggle.

Sheriff Martin and the New Paltz village police were applauded for what Thompson called their "helpful attitude."

Anti-Missile Shield Plan Acknowledged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's chief scientist has provided the first official acknowledgment that the $5 billion U. S. defense planned against any Red Chinese missiles also is a first step toward an anti-Soviet shield.

Dr. John S. Foster, director of Defense Research and Engineering, told the Senate Armed Services Committee the proposed antiballistic missile (ABM) system, called Sentinel, could be the foundation for an expanded defense against the Soviets.

Foster made clear, however, that current U. S. plans and capabilities are only to try to handle the rather rudimentary missiles Red China is expected to have in the early 1970s.

Former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the same group the Sentinel system was technically capable of intercepting Soviet missiles but only in small numbers.

Testimony by both men came in early February but was publicly released only recently.

The issue came up when Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., asked Foster to explain why the administration seemed to be ignoring the Soviet missile threat while tackling a lesser Chinese threat.

Foster replied: "I believe that the action the United States is now taking is all the action the United States can take, whether in an attempt to stop an all-out Soviet attack, or whether to provide damage denial against a Chinese ICBM...."

Symington: "But if I may say so, the Department of Defense specifically stated it was to protect us from China."

Foster: "That is correct, sir."

Symington: "... Are you saying that actually it is the first step that we could take in protection against the Soviets?"

Foster: "The statement that was made by Mr. McNamara, and concurred in by Gen. (Earle G.) Wheeler was that this deployment is consistent with the first phase of a deployment against the Soviet Union."

Foster said he didn't recommend "thickening" the antimissile defense because the U. S. does not now possess the means of intercepting huge numbers of ICBMs nor an adequate ability

H. Clark Bell

Saugerties GOP

Guest Speaker

H. Clark Bell, Republican candidate for the assembly, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of Saugerties Republican Club held at Jim's Restaurant in Woodstock.

Bell, Kingston lawyer, who will oppose Peter J. Savago in the June primary for the Republican nomination, spoke on national and local issues. A question and answer period followed.

Announcement was made by the club's president, Paul Pavlovich concerning the spring dinner-dance for which tickets will be available next week. Dinner chairman George Terpenning said that the event has been scheduled for June 1 at the Flamingo Restaurant.

Councilman George Turner asked for opinions on the proposed dog ordinance and urged citizens to contact him on the matter in order that he may make a comprehensive assessment of what is required to best serve the interest of all the people.

The club reminded residents that the deadline for filing by property owners for the over-65 exemption is May 1. Everyone must file annually.

Three Petition

School Board

Three candidates for election to the Saugerties Board of Education filed petitions prior to the deadline of April 23, according to superintendent of schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold. Two candidates, Charles P. Emerick and Robert Herb, are present incumbents and seek re-election to a three-year term.

John H. Bragg, the third candidate, is manager of the Hudson Valley Lightweight Aggregate Company and resides in the Blue Mountain area.

Herb is presently serving as an appointed replacement for the late Jack O. Pakanen. He previously served on the Board of Education from 1955 to 1965, the last four years as president. Herb is a resident of Malden and is the owner of the Mark IV Printing.

Emerick has served on the board from 1965 to 1968. He is a resident of West Camp and is employed by the Kingston Laboratory.

The election of board members will take place at the Main Street School auditorium from noon to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, May 8.

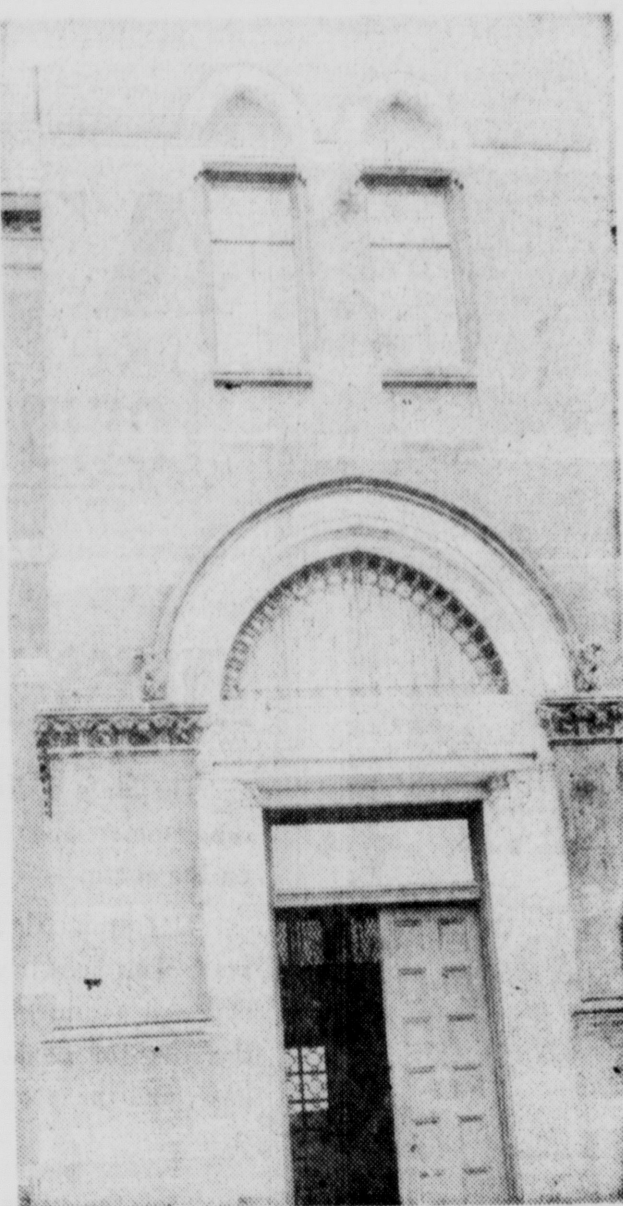

Almost adjacent to the Mayor's office window are these havens for a flock of pigeons who, day after day and night after night, roost, coo and cohabit on the very front of City Hall. Were these nesting and resting places wired off, the outrageous mess shown on the steps of City Hall in the picture immediately below would not exist

Needless to say, the Common Council members couldn't care less. They go in the side doors of City Hall, as does "His Honor."

What an impression for a Kingston resident or an out-of-town visitor to have, going into City Hall and trekking through this pigeon glop.

"Uptown No Man's Land"

The top picture is that of a prominent building on John Street just off the corner of Wall Street. Here the pigeons have deluxe quarters. Some noble soul put "man-made," crescent-shaped, sun, wind and rain protectors over the man-made shelves whereon the dear feathered creatures sleep, flirt and woo.

Immediately below the metal man-created pigeon havens are "man-made" wooden nests, as seen between two wooden slabs, that form deep love nests for these foul birds.

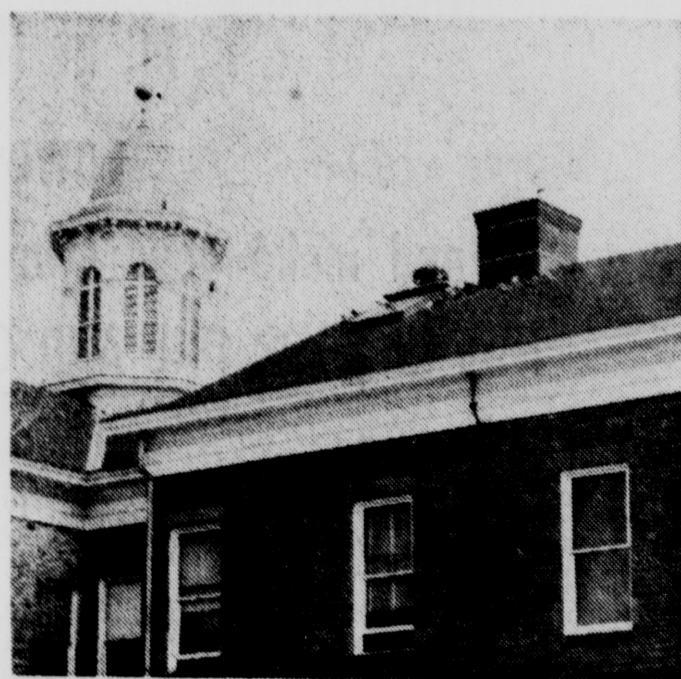

The picture immediately below this "pigeon drop" shows what can happen when one walks by without a hat.

Isn't this a lovely sight for the heart of the Kingston uptown business section?

"Thank you, Mr. Glynn"

"Lace Pigeon Justice"

The Ulster County Courthouse roof is the chief assembly place for the pigeon herd of Kingston. This picture shows only a small group present at the time it was taken but the speckled roof gives its own testimony as to the kind of filth these birds create. This matter has been called to the attention of the "Fiddlers Thirty-Three" and Mr. Joseph Gentile, in charge of County buildings, on numerous occasions. But no one—but no one cares!

Oh, yes, some fake owls were purchased. For ten days the pigeons wondered, and since then they stick their tongues out at these phony birds. As of now, nothing is being done to rid this building of this menace created by the pigeons.

The awning protruding from a shoe store on Wall Street gives full evidence as to what happens daily as from out of the sky above it comes from the pigeon herd which lurks above some Wall Street buildings. Anyone thinking that these foul birds do not have deadly aim, just stand and look in the window of the shoe store some day when the awning is not down—thank you, Mr. Glynn, for giving the audience some protection from these feathered bombers.

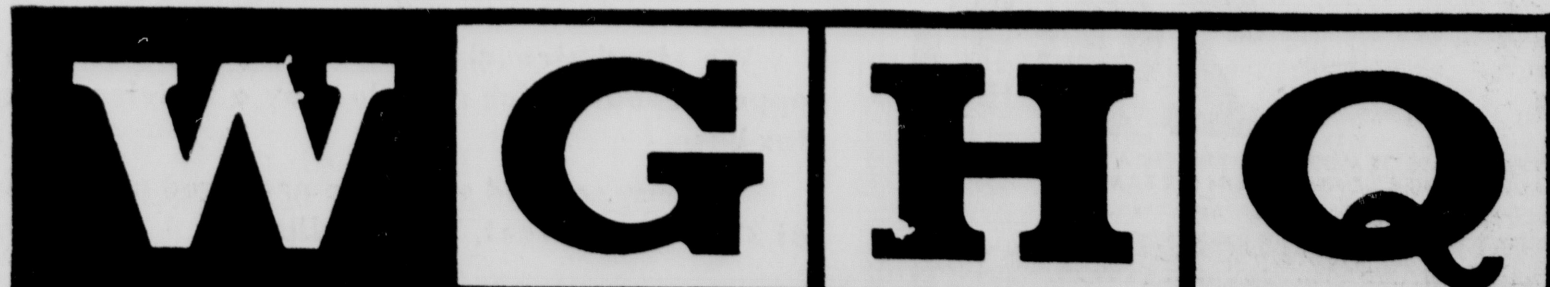

"Sorry, Dad, I'm Hatching"

On the side of the Ulster County Agricultural Building at the corner of John and Crown Streets is this love nest for the pigeon flock. As shown in the picture, Dad Pigeon is waiting for dinner, but as shown by the arrow Mama is busy cooking eggs. Not for her love-mate to eat but to further the pigeon menace in the City of Kingston. Scores of these nests exist throughout Uptown Kingston and no one does anything about them, so it seems.

P.S. There are other hatcheries on this same "county" building.

Saugerties H. Clark Bell Saugerties GOP Guest Speaker

H. Clark Bell, Republican candidate for the assembly, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of Saugerties Republican Club held at Jim's Restaurant in Woodstock.

Bell, Kingston lawyer, who will oppose Peter J. Savago in the June primary for the Republican nomination, spoke on national and local issues. A question and answer period followed.

Announcement was made by the club's president, Paul Pavlovich concerning the spring dinner-dance for which tickets will be available next week. Dinner chairman George Terpenning said that the event has been scheduled for June 1 at the Flamingo Restaurant.

Councilman George Turner asked for opinions on the proposed dog ordinance and urged citizens to contact him on the matter in order that he may make a comprehensive assessment of what is required to best serve the interest of all the people.

The club reminded residents that the deadline for filing by property owners for the over-65 exemption is May 1. Everyone must file annually.

Three Petition For Saugerties School Board

Three candidates for election to the Saugerties Board of Education filed petitions prior to the deadline of April 23, according to superintendent of schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold. Two candidates, Charles P. Emerick and Robert Herb, are present incumbents and seek re-election to a three-year term.

John H. Bragg, the third candidate, is manager of the Hudson Valley Lightweight Aggregate Company and resides in the Blue Mountain area.

Herb is presently serving as an appointed replacement for the late Jack O. Pakanen. He previously served on the Board of Education from 1955 to 1965, the last four years as president. Herb is a resident of Malden and is the owner of the Mark IV Printing.

Emerick has served on the board from 1965 to 1968. He is a resident of West Camp and is employed by the Kingston Laboratory.

The election of board members will take place at the Main Street School auditorium from noon to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, May 8.

to a hospital at Oaxaca, Francois Laville of Montreal and Crescencio de los Santos and Carmelo Salmas were ordered held for trial by Judge Joel Amago Garcia. Garcia said the Mexicans testified that all three were involved in the slaying.

Laville contends that he was asleep on the beach when the 31-year-old bride was attacked. Other tourists supported Laville's assertion, but the judge held that there was sufficient evidence to bring all three to trial.

No date was set for the trial. The men are being held in a Oaxaca jail without bail.

SALTON CITY, Calif. (AP)—Adrift in a wrecked boat on the Salton Sea, his wife's body at his side, John D. Lairazolo waved frantically at other boats for 24 hours before being rescued.

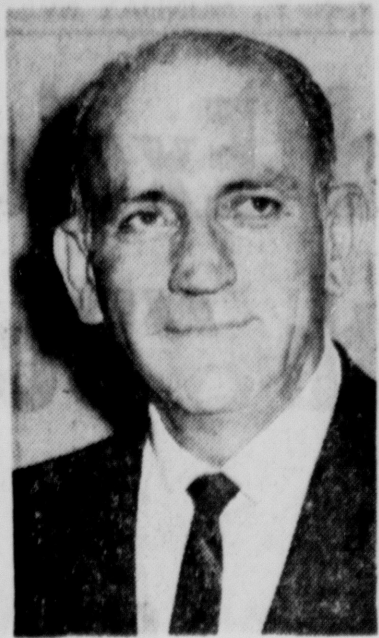

Lairazolo and his wife Margaret were boating on the inland sea Friday when their 18-foot outboard craft struck a drifting plank. Lairazolo told authorities he was thrown into the water and knocked unconscious, but was kept afloat by a life jacket.

Swimming back to the boat, he found his wife's body caught beneath the craft. She apparently had fallen overboard and been struck in the back of the head by the boat's propeller.

Lairazolo tugged her back into the boat. He attracted help from other boaters late Saturday.

Three Hurt, One Cited After Mishaps

Three persons were injured and a motorist was cited for a traffic law violation as the result of motor vehicle accidents investigated early Sunday by Kingston State Police.

Two 19-year-old Saugerties women were injured when the car in which they were riding went out of control on Route 32 in the Town of Saugerties and struck a utility pole. Alana Pesce of R.D. Saugerties was driving the car south on the highway when it went off the left side of the pavement.

The operator suffered lacerations and contusions of the head and face. A passenger, Joanne Pesce, of R.D. Malden, sustained contusions of the arms. Both were taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment. Trooper David Wachtel investigated.

Richard H. O'Brien, 36, of 16

Irving Street, Valley Stream, was injured at 3:25 a.m. yesterday when his car hit a sign and tree off Route 375 in the Town of Hurley. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctors Ambulance and treated for lacerations.

Sergeant Donald Paulson said Trooper E.A. Zeboris reported O'Brien was traveling north on the highway when the car veered off the right side. O'Brien was summoned for driving at a speed not reasonable and prudent.

Trooper Richard Dempsey reported that Walter W. Falk, 29, of Palenville, escaped injury 9:15 p.m. Sunday when his car struck a cow that crossed Route 32 north of Route 212, Town of Saugerties, in the path of his car. The vehicle was damaged and the cow injured.

Can Opener Clan Gourmet Bachelors

NEW YORK (AP) — If canned soups and peanut butter weren't around, many a wary bachelor would be more willing Leap Year material.

Although men's magazines feature gourmet recipes and give the impression that single men-about-town are marvelous cooks, the truth is that many top eligibles, if they can cook at all, only bother when there are dinner guests.

An informal survey of some sophisticated single men reveals that when there's no one to feed but themselves, the canned food cupboard from frozen dinners are quick and easy answers to hunger pangs.

The foods they store for nights when they are not dining out are surprisingly unexotic. Canned hearty soups, chunky peanut butter, instant mashed potatoes with canned gravy, and good wine are staples with all of them. Each bachelor, however, has his own easy-to-throw-together dinner.

Morton Hunt, the tall, genial author of "The World of the Formerly Married," likes soup, a couple of slices of rye bread, sliced tomatoes with bottled dressing, and a marble parfait made of canned vanilla and chocolate pudding swirled together.

Giant Hamburger
"I might really cook something more elaborate," he says, "except I detest washing pots. A giant hamburger is about as much real cooking as I'll do just for myself."

Composer John Kander, who wrote the score of "Cabaret," and next season's musical "Zorba," stores lots of caviar and a whole case of vegetable juice in addition to staples, and canned cat food for the neighbor's wandering feline. But his addiction is peanut butter Dagwoods, built up of plenty of peanut butter, raspberry preserves, mayonnaise, onion, cucumber, leftover steak bits of chicken. "After that, the kind of bread doesn't matter," he grins. "It's very good. The sort of sandwich you remember all night."

Living on board a boat where the electrical systems might go out and let refrigerated food spoil is a special reason Bob Mackall stocks canned foods which are easily chilled in the ocean. The suave president of a public relations firm lives aboard his 85-foot yacht "Firebird" most of the year and likes baked beans and hot dogs when he's facing the galley himself.

Even as someone's dinner guest Mackall's taste runs to simple, hearty food.

"The fancy dishes you can always get in a good restaurant. But try and find yellow cornmeal pancakes with a slice of baked ham anywhere," says Mackall.

The legitimate theater forces actors like Larry Blyden currently starring in "You Know I Can't Hear You When The Water's Running" to eat on the double or after midnight. According to Blyden, "You don't have to knock yourself out to eat decently."

Blyden likes omelettes with toast and coffee, and in his dressing room spoons chocolate pudding straight out of a can. A widower with two young children, he also stocks plenty of sodas, cookies, "and all those doo-dad breakfast cereals kids can't live without."

"Sure I cook for myself, when I can't inveigle a girl friend into pampering me," says comedian Godfrey Cambridge. "Now that I've got an eye-level broiler I'll make hamburgers. Before I was too tired to stoop over."

Cambridge's favorite can-opener meal is Polish sausage and sauerkraut.

No matter how simple his solitary meal, the big-city bachelor solved that problem.

Midwife Is Back as Certified Nurse

By ELLEN JACOBSON
The Record

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The midwife had a face lifting. After being retired to the annals of folk medicine, the woman who was responsible for bringing infinite generations of children into the world, has been taken off the shelf, given a thorough overhauling, and is back in business.

Trained in institutions such as Columbia, Yale, and Johns Hopkins, today's midwife is a registered nurse who has earned the privilege of tacking on C.N.M. (Certified Nurse Midwife) to her name by passing a rigorous program in nurse mid-wifery (pronounced mid-whiffery).

Columbia, one of the nine institutions with such a training program, has been graduating nurse midwives since 1956. The current class numbers 13.

An instructor in mid-wifery at Columbia, Miss Phyllis Leppert of Ridgewood said she entered the field "because in practice as an R.N. I was confronted with maternity patients and found that I didn't have enough to give these mothers-to-be. I just didn't know how to deal with them. That's when I realized that mid-wifery was the answer."

As a C.N.M. Miss Leppert, an attractive young woman, is qualified, depending on the state in which she works, to deliver children under the supervision of the attending physicians. In New York, which licenses midwives, the women work at hospitals such as Harlem and Kings County, where there are not enough physicians to cope with the number of deliveries. New Jersey hospitals do not have midwives working in that capacity despite the number of C.N.M.s who live in the state.

"The great pressure for better prepared nurses in maternity care and the need for assistants to help relieve the burdened obstetricians were partially responsible for the evolution of the modern midwife," said Miss Bernice Derby, assistant professor of nursing, Department of Nursing, on the faculty of Medicine at Columbia.

Not all people in the medical profession share the midwives' enthusiasm for their program. "When I told a doctor about my plans to enter the course at Columbia he was horrified," said Miss Leppert. "He thought that we were going back to the dark ages and that no nurse could be competent in the field of obstetrics."

Basic Misunderstanding
According to Miss Leppert and Miss Derby this attitude reflects a basic misunderstanding about the role of the modern midwife.

"In the beginning we fought open rebellion. Now there's only passive resistance," said Miss Derby. "Mid-wifery has grown slowly because it has to work hard to prove it has something to offer. Some doctors feel that midwives pose a threat to their practices but the midwife is not being trained to enter private practice. She is being prepared to function under the supervision of doctors to handle normal deliveries so that the doctor can devote his energies to the complications of childbirth."

To prepare themselves to cope competently with the patients, the midwives trained at Columbia undergo an intense 11-month course which gives them an M.S. as well as a C.N.M. degree. In order to qualify, the applicant must have a BS or BSA, and RN, be licensed to practice in one state, and usually have had one year of professional nursing.

Before she has been graduated the student will have done between 30 and 40 deliveries. While programs vary, Columbia's is one of the most concentrated. Most others take at least two years.

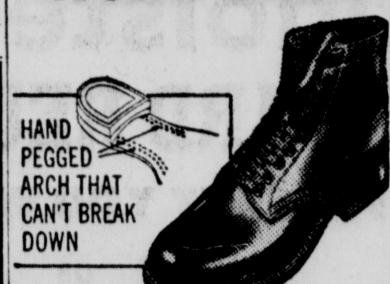

While many states do not have positions for midwives in clinical practice, there are other challenging opportunities. Many go into education on the undergraduate and graduate levels. Others take positions as administrators of obstetrical services, consultants in voluntary and official agencies, or instructors in parent education.

Here's How Families Get Out in Tent Campers

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature Writer

A modern version of the covered wagon is hitching Mother to outdoor housekeeping. The message is, "Look Ma, no snakes, no worms, no soggy bed." New recreational vehicles such as tent campers provide everything from wall-to-wall vinyl floors to four-burner ranges. It's Ma being wooed to the outdoors as a cook, floor mopper or outdoor companion. It's a little of all three, says industrial designer Andrew Kostanecki of New Canaan, Conn. He confirms that "the tendency to luxury in interiors in camping vehicles has Mother in mind" but it isn't because of cooking privileges. The outdoors has become a family enterprise, so why not make Mother comfortable, he explains.

Then too, it's one way to get certain men outdoors. Some tent campers are automatic, unfolding at the turn of a knob—a function that appeals to some men.

It isn't easy to design a camper to please the man who prefers hard work, Kostanecki explains. A great many rugged men—though unfortunately, he points out, their numbers are dwindling—still want to live it up trapper-like in the outdoors.

"We try to provide features that won't interfere with his feeling that he is in control of making camp. If he looks at time philosophically, he probably enjoys having more time to roam the woods, fish, build a fire or whatever. A man doesn't need to feel that being miserable and working hard is the only way to enjoy the outdoors."

Outdoor Man

Kostanecki is an outdoor man, himself, one reason why he has been interested in designing for the outdoors—sailboat gizmos, a woodland house which won an award in 1966 and tent campers which he began designing three years ago.

One eight-sleeper, the hard-top Catalina (Trade Winds), has an automatic crank that pops up beds. It has a fully equipped double-decker 70-inch galley with range, stainless steel sink and 25-pound ice box below. There is a heater, a collapsible clothes locker, and decorative accents such as walnut paneling, beige vinyl flooring, blue-berber color cushions.

Kostanecki, who began his career with world-famed designers Henry Drewfus and Eliot Noyes 10 years ago after graduation from Cornell, sizes up space and then designs elements to fit into it.

"It's the only way you can make space pay off, one reason why mobile homes are ahead of the building industry in space utilization. They have units to build compact space rather than relying on what is provided by architectural catalogs."

Family Togetherness

Kostanecki loves to sail but thinks that camping provides the best family togetherness experiences. His three children are at loose ends on his boat—there is nothing for children to do aboard. Though he is a champion sailor, he takes his youngsters to the woods.

"Camping provides experiences besides fulfilling man's basic need to get back to nature. Children can be given jobs such as gathering wood, and it can be a game to see who can bring back the largest wood collection."

Last year more than 40 million Americans went camping, and by the year 2,000 there should be a camping increase of 238 per cent, says the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Etiquette for Young People

Etiquette Begins at Home

Etiquette Begins at Home
Part I
By ELIZABETH L. POST
(This is the first of a series of 12 articles excerpted from "The Emily Post Book of Etiquette for Young People," by Elizabeth L. Post, published by Funk & Wagnalls.)

Etiquette isn't a set of stuffy, rigid regulations; it is good common sense linked to thoughtfulness for others, and its purpose is to make you more attractive and easy to get along with. You'll find that if you make these "rules" a part of your personality they'll help you become more popular and get more fun out of being with, not only older people, but your own age group too.

Rules of good behavior have been built up over hundreds of years, worthless ones discarded, usually being discarded and those proven to be useful are kept and improved upon. All this doesn't mean much to anyone about to become a teen; all he's interested in is getting away from mother's apron strings and he doesn't much care how he does it. But by the time he's come out at the other end—seventeen, eighteen, or nineteen years old—and has a year or two of college under his belt, he probably will begin to see the value of experience, education, and some of these principles.

Your Parents

The manner in which you speak to your parents is important. Call them "Mom" and "Dad" or whatever derivative of "Mother" and "Father" you prefer. But please, don't call them by their first names, or cute nicknames which might imply any sort of disrespect.

The tone of your voice is a dead giveaway. A long suffering "What now?" note in your voice every time your mother calls you can effectively cut off all communication. A reasonably cheerful "What is it, Dad?" or "What do you want, Mom?" tells them you're willing to cooperate—and if you are, so are they.

Your attitude when your parents say "No" can make life easier or harder. Save your ammunition for important things. If you don't put up an argument or make a crisis out of every adverse decision they hand down, they'll be much more willing to listen when you ask calmly, not hysterically, for a really important permission.

If only for tactical reasons, don't pull out that overdone "But everyone else does!" line. It's like rubbing sandpaper on an exposed nerve and it won't—and shouldn't—work. Think up your own good reasons. If your argument is sound, and not based entirely on the fact that this is the current practice or fad, you'll have a much better chance of winning parental approval.

YOUR BROTHERS AND SISTERS

Privacy is terribly important. Diaries and letters are inviolable—they may never be opened or read without the owner's permission. Telephone calls are too. Listening in on sister's conversation on another extension may be an entertaining diversion for brother, but it violates every rule of decent behavior.

Your Home Life

Every member of a family has a right to his own separate life. The ability to allow your parents and your brothers and sisters to lead their private lives is important. Don't, unless asked, involve yourself in their problems. For instance, if you brother's keeper does not mean telling your parents about his behavior. Tattletales effectively and quickly kill any rapport between themselves and other members of their families.

YOUR PARENTS' FRIENDS

When older guests come to your house, they should be treated with more of that same respect you show your parents. It's a great chance to practice your manners; pretend you're an assistant host or hostess and try out various kinds of warm greetings. I love to go to houses where the young people, when they hear my voice, come to the hall with a friendly "Hi, Mrs. Post, how've you been?" Or, "Did you have a good summer?" Or, "What's Cindy been doing?"

A prompt, firm handshake rather than a nod, after an introduction, puts everyone at ease. You don't, of course, want to intrude too long, but you really should stay around and chat for just a few minutes.

Money Matters

Every boy and girl should have some money of his own to do with exactly as he wishes. Families who can afford it generally give teenagers some allowance, free and clear, with no strings attached. This can be augmented by part-time or summer jobs. As to the actual amounts for allowances, it is impossible to say because requirements vary so in different areas, as do family circumstances.

A possible scale for weekly allowance, necessarily subject to change to fit the circumstances, might run something like this:

15-17 years	$3-$5

Some boys and girls contribute to the family exchequer as soon as they earn money of their own, and others help to pay college tuition and other expenses with scholarships or by taking part-time campus jobs.

Your Room and Your Clothing

Your first duty in the neatness department is to care for your own room and your clothes. It's just as easy to hang up clothing or put it in the laundry basket the moment it's taken off as it is to do so the next day after your mother's nagging. It asks calmly, not hysterically, for a really important permission.

Family Rooms

In addition to caring for your own private bailiwick, the responsibility for the community rooms—living room, family room, dining room, and kitchen—should be shared by everyone. I don't mean that you should do the regular housework; that is, of course, your mother's department. I do mean that after you and your friends have used these rooms it is up to you to empty ashtrays, throw out pop bottles, pick up magazines, cards, and so on from the floor, and in general leave the room ready for the next person who wishes to use it.

Kitchen Rules

Kitchen rules are up to your mother, but she should not be expected to cope with all the dirty dishes or glasses that teen-agers can accumulate. It takes about twenty seconds to rinse out your own glass and put it on the drainboard or in the dishwasher, but if one person has to do them all the seconds rapidly add up to hours!

see Mom and Jane having a serious discussion, don't butt in with "What are you two talking about?" Make yourself scarce until they're through, and forget about it. If either one wants to tell you about it she will, but that is her choice, not yours.

The most obvious way to cooperate is to share—willingly—in the chores. It is up to your parents to decide in what areas they need your assistance, and together you should settle on a fair schedule. It may involve setting the table, washing the dog, polishing the car, or anything else which affects the whole group. Whatever it is, accept your jobs with good grace, and do your full part.

Equal in importance to sharing the chores is willingness to take blame and criticism. If you try to wriggle out of every accusation, true or untrue, you'll find that everyone in the family goes out of his way to put the blame on you. There's nothing wrong in admitting a mistake, but the way in which some people try to deny or justify a trivial fault magnifies it into a crime of the first degree. When you're at fault, admit it. If an apology is in order, make it with sincerity, correct the fault if possible, and avoid a repeat.

The third essential that makes a happier home life for everyone is participation. Enthusiasm for family projects and willingness to enter into them is awfully important. However, let's face it—we all do have moods and times when we just don't feel like taking part in a group activity. When one of these "isolationist" moods hits, your parents should respect your feelings, and not force you to participate.

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

The gold crisis has died down for a while although it may revive at any moment. I do not pretend to understand it. Somebody has too much gold or not enough, somebody wants to buy it, buying it is against the interests of people in general, and Fort Knox is not as reliable as we thought. And so forth. National finance is a subject that makes my mind shut up. It is in the same class as social security forms, insurance policies, and the income tax. I can keep the family books, I can write checks, if I have to I can balance the check book, but I don't ask me to fill in those blanks, carefully subtracting Line 6 from Line 9.

However, going back to gold, a fellow columnist and friend has had a paragraph or two about gold, which is worth quoting. He is Thomas Hornsby Ferril, poet and editor of the Rocky Mountain Herald, out in Denver, Colo. It seems that William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Board of Governors of Federal Reserve System, denounced gold as a "barbarous metal." Meaning that it was causing a lot of trouble.

Mr. Ferril's ire was aroused. Barbarous, indeed. The streets of heaven, he reminds us, are still paved with gold and some day we shall walk those golden streets with our long-lost dear ones and play our golden harps for all eternity.

Mr. Ferril goes on: "Gold is mystically identified with excellence. The Golden Age is the best age. The best opportunity is a Golden opportunity. Gold means life. When death intervenes, 'The Golden Bowl' is broken." We have the Golden Mean and the Golden Rule."

If gold is barbarous, it is the same barbarism that gave us the stories of Gargam and Midas, of Jason and the Golden Fleece.

Mr. Martin implies that belief in financial salvation by gold is a mistake; he recommends that we believe in the value of the dollar instead. It takes a financial expert to be a real mystic. A dollar is a piece of paper with George Washington's picture on it. Sometimes it buys five dozen eggs as it did in 1932; sometimes you are lucky to get one dozen and a quart of milk.

Mr. Martin may believe in the dollar if he likes; I, too, have a certain fondness for it. But the idea of gold, the feel of gold, gold in poetry and legend, gold on your finger, and gold as security—even George Washington's picture cannot take its place, and I yield to no one in my admiration for that great man.

Mandbags... for Men, of Course

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The jokes about what a lady carries in her pocketbook will probably stop. People may quit pointing out that women control the pursestrings of the nation.

Handbags are now also being made for men. Mandbags, they are called.

"You may not recognize your male friends, through. If he is shy, he may choose a style disguised as a camera case dangling from his shoulder. On the other hand, a bolder man may make no pretense about his two-tone, canvas shoulder-strapped, everything holder.

Besides canvas, the mandbags also are made of rugged elephant hide. "I was very careful not to use anything that smacked of a woman's handbag design," said Sam Smith, a gray-eyed North Carolinian who created them for the 90-year-old H. Margolin Co.

The tall man in a black snug-fitted Nehru suit had just set piloted a canvas and brass shoulder bag a dozen blocks down Fifth Avenue.

Smith believes these are natural progression in the menswear revolution that started a short time ago with turtle-necks. "With suits fitting close to the body and with pockets disappearing, a man has to have something else for his belonging to keep from looking like he's smuggling grapefruit."

European men already have accepted the handbags-for-men idea and Smith says it is only a matter of time before American men adopt it, too. Several New York specialty stores already have stocked a sizable supply as Father's Day gifts.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am writing this for my son because the idea is completely his. So I'll sign his name as he is anxious to see it in your column.

While brushing my little daughter's hair, a rubber band broke and I asked my son to bring me another. He brought several and said, "Put these extra ones on the brush handle, so next time you need one, you'll have some handy!"

Steve Wilson

P.S. I think this is a wonderful idea for mothers who use rubber bands on pony tails or the ends of little girls' pigtails.

Not only is this a great idea, but I think Steve is wonderful to think of it.

You may not recognize your male friends, though. If he is shy, he may choose a style dis- guised as a camera case dan- gling from his shoulder. On the other hand, a bolder man may make no pretense about his two-tone, canvas shoulder- strapped, everything holder.

Besides canvas, the mandbags also are made of rugged ele- phant hide. "I was very careful not to use anything that smacked of a woman's handbag design," said Sam Smith, a gray-eyed North Carolinian who created them for the 90-year-old H. Margolin Co.

The tall man in a black snug- ly-fitted Nehru suit had just test piloted a canvas and brass shoulder bag a dozen blocks down Fifth Avenue.

Smith believes these are nat- ural progression in the men's- wear revolution that started a short time ago with turtle-necks. "With suits fitting close to the body and with pockets disap- pearing, a man has to have something else for his belong- ings to keep from looking like he's smuggling grapefruit."

European men already have accepted the handbags-for-men idea and Smith says it is only a matter of time before American men adopt it, too. Several New York specialty stores already have stocked a sizable supply as Father's Day gifts.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am writing this for my son because the idea is completely his. So I'll sign his name as he is anxious to see it in your column.

While brushing my little daughter's hair, a rubber band broke and I asked my son to bring me another. He brought several and said, "Put these extra ones on the brush handle, so next time you need one, you'll have some handy!"

Steve Wilson

P.S.

I think this is a wonderful idea for mothers who use rubber bands on pony tails or the ends of little girls' pigtails.

— Special Series —

Etiquette Begins at Home

Etiquette Begins at Home Part I

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(This is the first of a series of 12 articles excerpted from "The Emily Post Book of Etiquette for Young People," by Elizabeth L. Post, published by Funk & Wagnalls.)

Etiquette isn't a set of stuffy, rigid regulations; it is good common sense linked to thoughtfulness for others, and its purpose is to make you more attractive and easy to get along with. You'll find that if you make these "rules" a part of your personality they'll help you become more popular and get more fun out of being with, not only older people, but your own age group too.

Rules of good behavior have been built up over hundreds of years, worthless ones are continually being discarded and those proven to be useful are kept and improved upon. All this doesn't mean much to anyone about to become a teen; all he's interested in is getting away from mother's apron strings and he doesn't ap- preciate how he does it. But by the time he's come out at the other end—seventeen, eighteen, or nineteen years old—and has a year or two of college under his belt, he probably will be- gine to see the value of ex- perience, education, and some of these principles.

Your Parents
The manner in which you speak to your parents is im- portant. Call them "Mom" and "Dad" or whatever derivative of "Mother" and "Father" you prefer. But please, don't call them by their first names, or cute nicknames which might imply any sort of disrespect.

The tone of your voice is a dead giveaway. A long suffering "What now?" note in your voice every time your mother calls you for communication. A reasonably cheerful "What is it, Dad?" or "What do you want, Mom?" tells them you're willing to co- operate—and if you are, so are they.

Your attitude when your parents say "No" can make life easier or harder. Save your ammunition for important things. If you don't put up an argu- ment or make a crisis out of every adverse decision they hand down, they'll be much more willing to listen when you ask calmly, not hysterically, for a really important permis- sion. If only for tactical rea- sons, don't pull out that over- done "But everyone else does!" line. It's like rubbing sandpaper on an exposed nerve and it won't—and shouldn't—work.

Think up your own good reasons. If your argument is sound, and not based entirely on the fact that this is the cur- rent practice or fad, you'll have a much better chance of win- ning parental approval.

Don't brood over real or imagined injustice. Frankness and communication are vital to family harmony. If you have a beef, out with it! Often your parents don't even know why you've been going around for three days with a face like a thunderstorm. Airing problems has always been the best way to solve, or at least, diminish them.

YOUR BROTHERS AND SISTERS

Privacy is terribly important. Diaries and letters are inviol- able—they may never be opened or read without the owner's per- mission. Telephone calls are too. Listening in on sister's conver- sation on another extension may be an entertaining diversion for brother, but it violates every rule of decent behavior.

"Sneaking" is inexcusable. If you know that, against your parents' wishes, your brother lights up a cigarette the minute he leaves the house, talk to him about it if you want to, but don't snitch to your parents. It's his problem, and being your brother's keeper does not mean telling your parents about his behavior. Tattletales effectively and quickly kill any rapport be- tween themselves and other members of their families.

YOUR PARENTS' FRIENDS

When older guests come to your house, they should be treated with more of that same respect you show your parents. It's a great chance to practice your manners: pretend you're an assistant host or hostess and try out various kinds of warm greetings. I love to go to houses where the young people, when they hear my voice, come to the hall with a friendly "Hi, Mrs. Post, how've you been?" Or, "Did you have a good sum- mer?" Or, "What's Cindy been doing?"

A prompt, firm handshake rather than a nod, after an in- troduction, puts everyone at ease. You don't of course, want to intrude too long, but you really should stay around and chat for just a few minutes.

Money Matters
Every boy and girl should have some money of his own to do with exactly as he wishes. Families who can afford it gen- erally give teenagers some al- lowance, free and clear, with no strings attached. This can be augmented by part-time or summer jobs. As to the actual amounts for allowances, it is impossible to say because re- quirements vary so in differ- ent areas, as do family circum- stances.

A possible scale for weekly allowance, necessarily subject to change to fit the circum- stances, might run something like this:

15-17 years	$3-$5

Some boys and girls con- tribute to the family exchequer as soon as they earn money of their own, and others help to pay college tuition and other expenses with scholarships or by taking part-time campus jobs.

Your Room and Your Clothing
Your first duty in the neatness department is to care for your own room and your clothes. It's just as easy to hang up cloth- ing or put it in the laundry basket the moment it's taken off as it is to do so the next day after your mother's nagging. It takes the same amount of time in either case, and certainly things that can be worn are in better condition if they've been on a hanger instead of lying in a heap on the floor.

Family Rooms

In addition to caring for your own private bailiwick, the re- sponsibility for the community rooms—living room, family room, dining room, and kitchen—should be shared by every- one. I don't mean that you should do the regular house- work; that is, of course, your mother's department. I do mean that after you and your friends have used these rooms it is up to you to empty ash trays, throw out pop bottles, pick up magazines, cards, and so on from the floor, and in general leave the room ready for the next person who wishes to use it.

Kitchen rules are up to your mother, but she should not be expected to cope with all the dirty dishes or glasses that teenagers can accumulate. It takes about twenty seconds to rinse out your own glass and put it on the drainboard or in the dishwasher, but if one person has to do them all the seconds rapidly add up to hours!

Your Home Life

Every member of a family has a right to his own separate life. The ability to allow your parents and your brothers and sisters to lead their private lives is important. Don't, unless asked, involve yourself in their problems. For instance, if you see Mom and Jane having a serious discussion, don't butt in with "What are you two talking about?" Make yourself scarce until they're through, and forget about it. If either one wants to tell you about it she will, but that is her choice, not yours.

The most obvious way to co- operate is to share—willingly—in the chores. It is up to your parents to decide in what areas they need your assistance, and together you should settle on a fair schedule. It may involve setting the table, washing the dog, polishing the car, or any- thing else which affects the whole group. Whatever it is, accept your jobs with good grace, and do your full part.

Equal in importance to shar- ing the chores, is willingness to take blame and criticism. If you try to wriggle out of every accusation, true or untrue, you'll find that everyone in the family goes out of his way to put the blame on you. There's nothing wrong in admitting a mistake, but the way in which some people try to deny or justify a trivial fault magnifies it into a crime of the first degree. When you're at fault, admit it. If an apology is in order, make it with sincerity, correct the fault if possible, and avoid a repeat.

The third essential that makes a happier home life for everyone is participation. En- thusiasm for family projects and willingness to enter into them is awfully important.

However, let's face it—we all do have moods and times when we just don't feel like taking part in a group activity. When one of these "isolationist" moods hits, your parents should respect your feelings, and not force you to participate.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN BED LINENS

Beautiful, comfortable, and perhaps even disposable bed linens are no longer just "for special," but can be enjoyed by everyone. The new types of sheets now appearing on the market are offering many advantages, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

Durable-press sheets and pillowcases are now available in pastel colors and prints as well as in white. They come from dryer or line smooth and easy to fold, and keep their fresh ironed look after they have been used on the bed.

A blend of cotton and polyester fibers (Blue C, Fortrel, Kodol, Vycron, Dacron — all registered trade-marks) is generally used for no-iron sheets. The percentage of each fiber varies from 65 per cent polyester/35 per cent cotton to 65 per cent cotton/35 per cent polyester. Experimenting is continuing and consumer reaction will eventually help determine the most desirable fiber blend. There are some 100 per cent cotton which have been treated to give ease of care, also. Each sheet manufacturer has his own brand name designating sheets with easy-care features.

Flat sheets with a durable-press finish do shrink much less than the all-cotton non-treated flat sheet; therefore, you may find the stated size for a double bed sheet to be 81 inches by 104 inches rather than 81 inches by 108 inches. The length given is the length before hemming, the sheet is four to 6 inches shorter. Durable-press fitted sheets are sized in the same way as the regular percale or muslin fitted sheets.

One difficulty with all durable-press and perma-press articles has been the removal of certain stains and soils, particularly grease and oil-based ones. Manufacturers are marketing sheets and tablecloths as well as clothing which has been treated with a soil resistant finish. This alters the surface of the polyester fiber so that oils which are easily absorbed by the polyester can be removed more efficiently.

The finish does not mean the fabric won't stain. If a spot remains untreated for as long as a week or is subjected to heat from dryer or iron, stains may be nearly impossible to remove. Two or three washings may be necessary to get good results or it still may be necessary to pretreat stubborn spots before laundering. But if proper procedure is used the stain will come out.

Students to Study In Spain, France

Six Dutchess Community students will study first hand the language and culture of Spain and France this summer.

Under the supervision of Miss Roslyn Grant, assistant professor of languages at DCC, four young women from the Community College will enroll in a six weeks' course at the University of Salamanca, Spain, while another two will be in a comparable program at the Institute de Touraine, Tours, France.

Donna Bernazza, Ann Thompson, Carol Kedzielawa, all from Poughkeepsie and Deborah Taylor, Rhinebeck, will be going to Spain, while Carol Severing, Poughkeepsie, and Paulette Diette, Amenia, will journey to France.

The American Institute for Foreign Study has organized the programs.

In addition to classroom study and discussion groups, all the students will participate in field trips and attend cultural programs.

The Dutchess students will leave the United States from Kennedy Airport on July 24.

Screening for Eye Defects to Be Held Saturday, May 4

On Saturday, May 4, a free open screening for the detection of Amblyopia and other eye defects in pre-school age children will be conducted by the Kingston Welcome Wagon Club. The screening will be held at the old Community College, 214 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, during the hours of 9 a. m. to noon. The screening will be done by volunteers from Welcome Wagon who have been trained by the New York State Commission for the Blind and Visually Handicapped. This program is under the sponsorship of the Ulster County Public Health Department and has the approval of the Ulster County Medical Society. All parents of children between the ages 2-5 are invited to have their child's vision screened at this open screening.

Amblyopia is often referred to as "lazy eye blindness" meaning that one eye sees sharply while the other eye sees poorly. It is a rather common eye disorder in young children, but if it is detected soon enough, usually before age 6, the lazy eye may be treated successfully.

There is no charge for this service and parents are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to have their child's vision checked. Parents will be notified if there is any doubt about their child's vision, and if a thorough eye examination by an eye specialist is recommended.

Miss Karen Pink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Pink, RD 5, Conifer Lane, Kingston, is one of 47 seniors at Keuka College, Keuka Park, who have been recognized for high scholastic achievement for work completed during the winter quarter. She has been named to the Merit List.

To be named to the Merit List, a student must receive at least a 3.1 grade point average. The Merit List honor for work completed in the fall or winter quarters, is in addition to the Dean's List honor for yearly scholastic achievement.

All freshmen at Brockport are enrolled in the liberal studies program for the first two years. While in this program each student, with the help of his academic adviser, makes a choice of the major field he wishes to pursue as an upperclassman. Currently there are 16 majors and 17 minors available in the six academic divisions of the college.

Albert Friedberg, Rt. 2, Box 68, Accord, has been accepted as a student for the fall semester at the State University College at Brockport, Ralph R. Pascale, director of admissions, announced. Albert attended Rondout Valley Central School.

MRS. DONALD SNELL, left, YWCA membership chairman, greets Mrs. Robert Mackey, Mrs. Joseph Stinton and Mrs. Uwe Deising arriving for a tea held by her committee on Thursday, Apr. 25, at the YWCA. The local association is joining with other YWCA members across the country in the observance of National YWCA Week. A fitting conclusion to the observance was a tea and art exhibition today at 2. The tea was arranged by Miss Emily D. B. Hoysradt and members of art classes. The exhibit will be on display through Friday, May 3. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

MR. AND MRS. A. J. CORDEAU of Kingston are pictured with Captain Robert E. Lindquist of Sarasota, Fla., aboard the SS Constitution as they embark on a 67-day cruise. The Constitution will call at 48 ports in the Caribbean, the Mediterranean, Africa, the Middle East, the Adriatic, the Black Sea and the fabulous Greek Islands. Commanded by Capt. Lindquist, the Constitution will return to New York on Wednesday, May 1.

Indian Image Suffers

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — An Indian beauty queen believes television and motion pictures have not done much to improve the image of the American Indian.

"Script writers conveniently forget that Indians were defending their territorial rights," says Angelina Medina, Miss Indian Expo 1967.

"They overlook the fact that the white man is in truth the invader of the North American continent."

Miss Medina, a Fort Lewis College student who hopes to become a high school teacher is a member of the Acoma-Zia Indian Tribe of New Mexico.

She was named Miss Indian Expo 1967 in ceremonies last October in California. Miss Medina, who speaks the dialects of New Mexico Indian tribes fluently, received a $1,000 scholarship upon winning her crown.

Miss Medina believes the American Indian hasn't taken advantage of opportunities available to them.

"There is no reason why we cannot accept the best of modern knowledge and still retain our culture, our rich heritage, and especially our pride," she said. "One of the greatest rights we have as Americans is the right to free public education."

Screening for Eye Defects to Be Held Saturday, May 4

On Saturday, May 4, a free open screening for the detection of Amblyopia and other eye defects in pre-school age children will be conducted by the Kingston Welcome Wagon Club. The screening will be held at the old Community College, 214 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, during the hours of 9 a. m. to noon. The screening will be done by volunteers from Welcome Wagon who have been trained by the New York State Commission for the Blind and Visually Handicapped. This program is under the sponsorship of the Ulster County Public Health Department and has the approval of the Ulster County Medical Society. All parents of children between the ages 2-5 are invited to have their child's vision screened at this open screening.

Amblyopia is often referred to as "lazy eye blindness" meaning that one eye sees sharply while the other eye sees poorly. It is a rather common eye disorder in young children, but if it is detected soon enough, usually before age 6, the lazy eye may be treated successfully. There is no charge for this service and parents are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to have their child's vision checked. Parents will be notified if there is any doubt about their child's vision, and if a thorough eye examination by an eye specialist is recommended.

Indian Image Suffers

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — An Indian beauty queen believes television and motion pictures have not done much to improve the image of the American Indian.

"Script writers conveniently forget that Indians were defending their territorial rights," says Angelina Medina, Miss Indian Expo 1967.

"They overlook the fact that the white man is in truth the invader of the North American continent."

Miss Medina, a Fort Lewis College student who hopes to become a high school teacher is a member of the Acoma-Zia Indian Tribe of New Mexico.

She was named Miss Indian Expo 1967 in ceremonies last October in California. Miss Medina, who speaks the dialects of New Mexico Indian tribes fluently, received a $1,000 scholarship upon winning her crown. Miss Medina believes the American Indian hasn't taken advantage of opportunities available to them.

"There is no reason why we cannot accept the best of modern knowledge and still retain our culture, our rich heritage, and especially our pride," she said. "One of the greatest rights

Chisox 'Streak' Keeps Stanky Jogging

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Chicago White Sox have won two of their last three games and Manager Eddie Stanky still is running in the outfield.

Stanky continued his post-game physical fitness program Sunday after Pete Ward's ninth-inning homer gave the Sox a 3-2 decision over the Minnesota Twins.

The routine, which started in the middle of Chicago's season-opening 10 game losing streak, sends Stanky jogging across the outfield swinging a lead bat after each game. Then the little skipper retires to the trainer's room for meditation.

He could have had nothing but good thoughts Sunday after Ward's poke beat Dean Chance.

In other American League games, California nipped Oakland 4-3, Washington traded shutouts with Cleveland, winning 1-0 and then losing 2-0, New York split with Detroit, winning 2-1 and losing 3-2, and Boston blanked Baltimore 3-0 before the Orioles won the second game, 6-1.

Aparicio Opens Gate

Chance was nursing a 2-1 lead on homers by Harmon Killebrew and Ted Uhlaender going into the ninth but Luis Aparicio opened with a single and after Russ Snyder lined out, Ward, connecting. The homer was Ward's fourth of the season and boosted his batting average to .340.

"We've been in every game but we've just been falling one hit short," said Ward, who made sure the Sox weren't one hit short this time.

And Stanky simply ran and swung his lead bat. He continued the post-game program even though he was ejected from the game in the sixth inning for protesting a third strike call. Roger Repoz took over the American League home run lead with his sixth of the year helping the Angels beat the Athletics. Rick Reichardt also homered for California.

single as the Yankees rallied for two eighth inning runs and a 2-1 victory over the Tigers in the first game.

In the nightcap, New York rallied, taking a 2-1 lead in the eighth but Bill Freehan and Jim Northrup hammered ninth-inning homers that won it for the Tigers.

Consecutive doubles by Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell setup a three-run Oriole rally in the fourth inning of the nightcap and Hardin held the Red Sox at bay. Carl Yastrzemski's single drove in Boston's only earned run in the opener.

Phil Ortega and Luis Tiant swapped two-hitters with Ortega scoring the only run in the Senators' first game victory and Tony Horton supplying the runs for the Indians' second game triumph.

Ortega bowled over Cleveland catcher Duke Sims in a home plate collision for the first game's only run. Ken McMullen's single, snapping an 0-for-17 slump, drove it in. Horton doubled and scored on Tommy Harper's seventh inning single, snapping a scoreless duel in the second game. Then Horton homered for an insurance run in the ninth inning.

Cubs' Regan Goes From . . .

Vulture to Vacuum Cleaner

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs' extra-base punch has given Leo Durocher some needed relief. . . and temporarily transformed the Vulture into a vacuum cleaner.

Phil Regan, the former Vulture of the Los Angeles Dodgers' bullpen, tied up in both ends of Chicago's 8-4, 5-2 doubleheader sweep over Houston Sunday in his first appearances for the Cubs.

Regan, traded from the Dodgers to Chicago last Tuesday, protected sizeable leads in the eighth inning of each game as Durocher's Cubs flattened the Astros with a 22-hit barrage that included four doubles, five triples and a home run.

A week ago Sunday, in his final relief stint for the Dodgers, the 31-year-old right-hander picked up two victories in a twin bill against the New York Mets.

Koonsman Wins 4th In National League single games, St. Louis' high-flying Cardinals trimmed Pittsburgh 4-2 for their sixth straight victory, San Francisco downed the Dodgers 6-1 behind Gaylord Perry's five-hitter, the Mets nipped Cincinnati 6-5 for unbeaten rookie Jerry Koonsman's fourth triumph and Philadelphia shaded Atlanta 4-3.

Glenn Beckert, Don Kessinger, Lou Johnson and Adolfo Phillips led the Cubs past Houston for an 8-8 season mark. Chicago has won five of its last six starts.

Beckert drilled two singles and his first 1968 homer in the opener. Kessinger stroked four hits, including a triple, in the twin bill and seized the National League batting lead with a .393 mark.

Two Men on Spree

Johnson went 5-for-8 in the day, with a triple and two doubles, and Phillips was 4-for-7, with two triples and a double.

Regan pitched two hitless innings in relief of first game winner Joe Niekro and held the As-

McCovey Homers

Willie McCovey cracked a two-run homer and run-producing single as the Giants subdued the Dodgers. Perry struck out eight and had a shutout until Willie Davis homered in the seventh. It was the first earned run off San Francisco pitching in 25 innings.

Jerry Grote paced the Mets' attack with three hits and two RBIs. The Reds chased Koonsman in the eighth, when Lee May unloaded a two-run homer, but Met relievers Danny Frisella, Billy Short and Ron Taylor com-

In other American League games, California nipped Oakland 4-3. Washington traded shutouts with Cleveland, winning 1-0 and then losing 2-0. New York split with Detroit, winning 2-1 and losing 3-2, and Boston blanked Baltimore 3-0 before the Orioles won the second game, 6-1.

Aparicio Opens Gate
Chance was nursing a 2-1 lead on homers by Harmon Killebrew and Ted Uhlaender going into the ninth but Luis Aparicio opened with a single and after Russ Snyder lined out, Ward connected.

The homer was Ward's fourth of the season and boosted his batting average to .340.

"We've been in every game but we've just been failing one hit short," said Ward, who made sure the Sox weren't one hit short this time.

And Stanky simply ran and swung his lead bat. He continued the post-game program even though he was ejected from the game in the sixth inning for protesting a third strike call.

Roger Repoz took over the American League home run lead with his sixth of the year helping the Angels beat the Athletics. Rick Reichardt also homered for California.

Sammy Ellis, with late inning relief help from Minnie Rojas, won the game—his first victory in the American League.

Mickey Mantle doubled home the tying run and then carried in the winner on Roy White's single as the Yankees rallied for two eighth inning runs and a 2-1 victory over the Tigers in the first game.

In the nightcap, New York rallied, taking a 2-1 lead in the eighth but Bill Freehan and Jim Northrup hammered ninth inning homers that won it for the Tigers.

Jim Hardin's six-hitter beat Boston in the second game and earned a split for the Orioles after Jose Santiago pitched a four-hitter for the Red Sox in the opener.

Consecutive doubles by Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell setup a three-run Oriole rally in the fourth inning of the nightcap and Hardin held the Red Sox at bay. Carl Yastrzemski's single drove in Boston's only earned run in the opener.

Phil Ortega and Luis Tiant swapped two-hitters with Ortega scoring the only run in the Senators' first game victory and Tony Horton supplying the runs for the Indians' second game triumph.

Ortega bowled over Cleveland catcher Duke Sims in a home plate collision for the first game's only run. Ken McMullen's single, snapping an 0-for-17 slump, drove it in. Horton doubled and scored on Tommy Harper's seventh inning single, snapping a scoreless duel in the second game. Then Horton homered for an insurance run in the ninth inning.

Cubs' Regan Goes From . . .

Vulture to Vacuum Cleaner

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs' extra-base punch has given Leo Durocher some needed relief. . . and temporarily transformed the Vulture into a vacuum cleaner.

Phil Regan, the former Vulture of the Los Angeles Dodgers' bullpen, tidied up in both ends of Chicago's 8-4, 5-2 doubleheader sweep over Houston Sunday in his first appearances for the Cubs.

Regan, traded from the Dodgers to Chicago last Tuesday, protected sizeable leads in the eighth inning of each game as Durocher's Cubs flattened the Astros with a 22-hit barrage that included four doubles, five triples and a home run.

games, St. Louis' high-flying Cardinals trimmed Pittsburgh 4-2 for their sixth straight victory. San Francisco downed the Dodgers 6-1 behind Gaylord Perry's five-hitter, the Mets nipped Cincinnati 6-5 for unbeaten rookie Jerry Koonman's fourth triumph and Philadelphia shaded Atlanta 4-3.

Glenn Beckert, Don Kessinger, Lou Johnson and Adolfo Phillips led the Cubs past Houston for an 8-8 season mark. Chicago has won five of its last six starts.

Beckert drilled two singles and his first 1968 homer in the opener. Kessinger stroked four hits, including a triple, in the twin bill and seized the National League batting lead with a .393 mark.

Two Men on Spree
Johnson went 5-for-8 in the day, with a triple and two doubles, and Phillips was 4-for-7, with two triples and a double.

Regan pitched two hitless innings in relief of first game winner Joe Niekro and held the Astros to one hit—a bases-empty homer by Doug Rader—in protecting Ken Holtzman's first victory over the final 1-2-3 innings of the nightcap.

Dal Maxvill poked a tie-breaking seventh inning single for his first RBI of the season and subsequently scored on a passed ball, leading the Cards past Pittsburgh. Left-handed Steve Carlton stopped the Pirates on five hits and Mike Shannon drove in two St. Louis runs with a single and homer.

McCovey Homers
Willie McCovey cracked a two-run homer and run-producing single as the Giants subdued the Dodgers. Perry struck out eight and had a shutout until Willie Davis homered in the seventh. It was the first earned run off San Francisco pitching in 25 innings.

Jerry Grote paced the Mets' attack with three hits and two RBIs. The Reds chased Koonman in the eighth, when Lee May unloaded a two-run homer, but Met relievers Danny Frisella, Billy Short and Ron Taylor com-

Trail Plainsmen By Two Points

By CHARLES J. TIANO

All-American Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia and Elliott Poggi-Asare, the star from the Republic of Ghana, scored a rare double hat trick, as the Kingston Sport Club Kickers crushed American Czechs of New York, 8-2, in a second-half goal, Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

The Kickers' spectacular explosion came in the second half when they scored seven of their eight goals after trailing 2-1 at the half.

The victory boosted Kingston's point to 24 and kept them in third place, two points behind league-leading White Plains and one behind Bavarian. The Bavarians defeated Lithuanian 6-1 and White Plains blanked Poughkeepsie, 2-0.

Average Over 4

The eight-goal harvest sent the Kickers' scoring average to 4.4 goals per contest, with 68 first goals. Coach Bob Graves charges have won 11, lost 3 and tied two in the 1967-68 carry-over League Division. They have yielded 25 goals.

Asare launched his hat trick at 33:00 of the first half, with Kingston trailing 2-0 on Czech goals by Wakiars (2 minutes) and Larria (5 minutes).

Rondout Belts Fallsburgh, 6-2

Rondout Valley struck for five runs in the first inning and rolled to a 6-2, non-league baseball win over visiting Fallsburgh Saturday afternoon.

The Ganders broke loose, starting off with a pair of Comet errors, then a sacrifice by winning pitcher, Keith Gorham to set up the first run. A single by Tom Frasier brought in the tally and the Ganders were off and running.

Gary Henitz followed with a walk and Tom Williams' single brought in two more. After Williams stole second, John Durcan walked to set up John Carle's two-run single and it was all over for the Comets.

Rondout is now 3-3 overall, winning all three non-league encounters so far. The three losses have come in UCAL games.

The Ganders next meet Wallkill, Tuesday, in a battle to decide last place in the league. Both have 0-3 records.

Cox Proves 'Giant Killer'

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — The giant killing feats of British tennis star Mark Cox could make a lot of difference to the lives of both professional and amateur players in the next few months.

Cox, 24, is the amateur who upset two professionals, Pancho Gonzalez and Roy Emerson, in the world's first open tournament—the British Hardcourt Championship.

Chevrolets Drop Pair

Ray Chevrolet, Kingston's entry in the Hudson Valley Softball League, dropped both ends of an exhibition doubleheader to Greenhaven Prison, 5-4 in the first game and a 6-0, one-hitter in the second.

The nightcap, with Jack Hyter, pitching, saw Ray's lone hit come on a clean single in the fifth inning by Richie Conklin of Ellenville, a muscular first sacker.

Hyter chalked up four whiffs against no walks, and his count minutes before the end of the game.
Kingston changed its format a bit for this "must win" contest, deploying three fullbacks, three halfbacks and four forwards.

terpart, Ray's George Norton registered seven strikeouts.
The big blow was Benetz's two-run rally.

In the first game, Bill Costello and Val Hovanyan hooked up in a pitching duel until the fifth inning.

Both men hurled blanks over the first four frames until Ray's busted loose with a quartet of runs. The tallies came as four doubles were sandwiched around an error, a wild pitch, a steal and two strikeouts. Stroking the doubles for Ray's were Rich Conklin, Rich Siekler, George Fisher (scoring two) and Mel Williams. Williams was thrown out at third, trying to stretch it.

Greenhaven came right back in the bottom half of the frame and scored five times to win the game. The prisoners used a walk, a single, a pair of doubles and a two-run homer by George Rentas to the win.

Hawks Beaten Twice

Are No-Hitted By Cortland

New Paltz State's baseball team, not known as one of the better hitting clubs in the SUNYAC, dropped both ends of a doubleheader Saturday to Cortland State, with the nightcap, a no-hitter.

In the nightcap, Steve Bruntrager pitched a near perfect game, allowing just two walks while registering 13 strikeouts.

Bruntrager kept the Hawks at bay in the second game, while at the same time, his teammates pounded Hawk pitching for 12 hits, 11 of them singles. He pitched to 21 batters, the minimum in a seven inning game.

The Hawks lost a close one in the opener, finding itself on the short end of the 8-7 score. Cortland broke out front early, banging starting pitcher Hal Sachson (a one-hitter last week) for six runs in the second inning.

Sachson got an early rest, but two innings later, the Hawks put themselves right back in the game with a five-run outburst that chased starting pitcher, Ron Greenberg.

Greenberg's reliever, Len Remington, staved off the rally and cut it short—short enough so that the Hawks couldn't grab the lead.

A pair of runs in the top of the fifth iced it for Cortland as Remington held off another rally, this time in the sixth, stopping it at two runs.

Montreal Ousts Black Hawks, 4-1

MONTREAL (AP) — There's just nothing weak about this year's Montreal Canadiens from their coach to the last rookie on the bench.

The Canadiens eliminated the Chicago Black Hawks from the best-of-7 Stanley Cup East Division final playoff Sunday with a 4-3 overtime victory in the fifth game behind the superior coaching of Toe Blake and the two-goal performance of rookie Jacques Lemaire.

Bobby Rousseau and J. C. Tremblay scored the other Montreal goals. Bob Schmutz, Stan Mikita and Wayne Maki connected for the Hawks.

Barber Survives That Zarley Finish

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — It is a little disconcerting when you know you are playing as well as ever but the man playing with you is making eagles and birdies, chipping away at your own wide lead.

That was the experience of Miller Barber, a tour veteran, as he moved toward a $20,000 prize at the end of the line Sunday if he could just outlast Kermit Zarley who was surging grimly down the stretch.

Barber made it although he may never be the same again. The chunky man from Sherman, Tex., won the $100,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic with a closing par 70 for 270—10 under for the tournament.

He got there by one stroke over the youthful Zarley, who banked an eagle with a 175-yard six iron approach shot on the 10th hole and got four birdies on the remaining holes for a six-under-par 64 competitive record over the 7,086-yard Preston Trail course.

Barber had a five-stroke lead over Harold Henning of South Africa going into the final round and seven over the slightly noticed Zarley, former University of Houston golfer from Seattle, Wash.

Barber ended with a bogey on 18 but it was after Zarley had missed a 25-foot putt by inches that would have given him a tie.

Hawks Beaten Twice

Are No-Hitted By Cortland

New Paltz State's baseball team, not known as one of the better hitting clubs in the SUNYAC, dropped both ends of a doubleheader Saturday to Cortland State, with the nightcap, a no-hitter.

The Hawks fell to Cortland by 8-7 and 12-0 scores, dropping their conference mark to 0-3.

In the nightcap, Steve Bruntrager pitched a near perfect game, allowing just two walks while registering 13 strikeouts. Bruntrager kept the Hawks at bay in the second game, while at the same time, his teammates pounded Hawk pitching for 12 hits, 11 of them singles. He pitched to 21 batters, the minimum in a seven inning game.

The Hawks lost a close one in the opener, finding itself on the short end of the 8-7 score. Cortland broke out front early, banging starting pitcher Hal Sachson (a one-hitter last week) for six runs in the second inning.

Sachson got an early rest, but two innings later, the Hawks put themselves right back in the game with a five-run outburst that chased starting pitcher, Ron Greenberg. Greenberg's reliever, Len Remington, staved off the rally and cut it short—short enough so that the Hawks couldn't grab the lead.

A pair of runs in the top of the fifth led it for Cortland as Remington held off another rally, this time in the sixth, stopping it at two runs.

Montreal Ousts Black Hawks, 4-1

MONTREAL (AP) — There's just nothing weak about this year's Montreal Canadiens from their coach to the last rookie on the bench.

The Canadiens eliminated the Chicago Black Hawks from the best-of-7 Stanley Cup East Division final playoff Sunday with a 4-3 overtime victory in the fifth game behind the superior coaching of Toe Blake and the two-goal performance of rookie Jacques Lemaire.

Montreal took the series four games to one. Bobby Rousseau and J. C. Tremblay scored the other Montreal goals. Bob Schumatz, Stan Mikita and Wayne Maki connected for the Hawks.

All-American Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia and Elliott Poggi-Asare, the star from the Republic of Ghana, scored a rare double hat trick, as the Kingston Sport Club Kickers crushed American Czechs of New York 8-2, with seven second-half goals, Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

The Kickers' spectacular explosion came in the second half when they scored seven of their eight goals after trailing 2-1 at the half.

The victory boosted Kingston's point to 24 and kept them in third place, two points behind league-leading White Plains and one behind Bavarian. The Bavarians defeated Lithuanian 6-1 and White Plains blanked Poughkeepsie, 2-0.

Average Over 4
The eight-goal harvest sent the Kickers' scoring average to 41 goals per contest, with 98 in 16 games. Coach Bob Graves charges have won 11, lost 3 and tied two in the 1967-68 carry-over League Division. They have yielded 25 goals.

Asare launched his hat trick at 33:00 of the first half, with Kingston trailing 2-0 on Czech goals by Wakiars (2 minutes) and Larria (5 minutes).

Reiner Schwebel, who scored Kingston's seventh goal (85 min.), had an assist on Asare's first tally. Another perfect pass from Schwebel set up Asare's second goal at 77 minutes. Seven minutes later, Asare completed the hat trick with a

Rondout Belts Fallsburgh, 6-2

Rondout Valley struck for five runs in the first inning and rolled to a 6-2, non-league baseball win over visiting Fallsburgh Saturday afternoon.

The Ganders broke loose, starting off with a pair of Comet errors, then a sacrifice by winning pitcher, Keith Gorham to set up the first run. A single by Tom Frasier brought in the tally and the Ganders were off and running.

Gary Heintz followed with a walk and Tom Williams' single brought in two more. After Williams stole second, John Durcan walked to set up John Carle's two-run single and it was all over for the Ganders.

Rondout is now 3-3 overall, winning all three non-league encounters so far. The three losses have come in UCAL games.

The Ganders next meet Wallkill, Tuesday, in a battle to decide last place in the league. Both have 0-3 records.

Chevrolets Drop Pair

Ray Chevrolet, Kingston's entry in the Hudson Valley Softball League, dropped both ends of an exhibition doubleheader to Greenhaven Prison, 5-4 in the first game and a 6-0, one-hitter in the second.

The nightcap, with Jack Hyter, pitching, saw Ray's lone hit come on a clean single in the fifth inning by Richie Conklin of Ellenville, a muscular first sacker.

Hyter chalked up four whiffs against no walks, and his count-terpart, Ray's George Norton registered seven strikeouts. The big blow was Benetz's two-run rally.

In the first game, Bill Costello and Val Hovanyan hooked up in a pitching duel until the fifth inning.

Both men hurled blanks over the first four frames until Ray's busted loose with a quartet of runs. The tallies came as four doubles were sandwiched around an error, a wild pitch, a steal and two strikeouts. Stroking the doubles for Ray's were Rich

"The win was a real team effort," said Coach Graves. "Reiner Schwebel was moved to the forward line with Grasmeyer, Ventriglia and Poggi-Asare and the foursome worked well under his guidance.

Great Society Legislation In Congress Appears Dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the possible exception of increased housing subsidies, Congress does not appear to be in a mood to enact any broad new programs to help the nation's poor.

There is no lack of proposals in the three main fields cited by legislators concerned about this group—jobs-income, housing and education.

Prospect Dim
But, with the 1968 session perhaps half over, sponsors of these proposals see little prospect of breakthrough legislation. They are reluctant to guess how most lawmakers will react to the intensive lobbying for jobs-and-income legislation that will be aimed at Congress during the Poor People's Campaign beginning today.

REPLACEMENT SOUGHT
The Town of Ulster wants this ancient (1891) one-lane highway span, the Leggs Mills Bridge razed and a new modern two-way steel and concrete span constructed. The proposal for the span's removal and replacement by a new bridge will be made in a form of a resolution to the County Legislature to authorize the County Highway Department to undertake the project. Traffic over the span is regulated by traffic lights. Ulster Town Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz said the proposal was some time ago to the old Board of Supervisors and no action was taken at that time. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Draft the Blind
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A blind Harvard Law School student who has been reclassified 1A by his draft board and ordered to take a pre-induction physical says he is looking forward to it.

"I'm particularly anxious to take the eye test," Harold Krentz, 23, of Mount Vernon, N.Y., said. "If I go, my ambition is to be a bombardier."

Krentz said his 2S deferment was canceled and his draft board gave him 30 days to appeal. His father called the board, he said, and was told that his blindness should not hinder him from taking a physical.

omnibus housing bill. Its backers are confident the full Senate will pass it next month.

But its prospects are quite uncertain in the House. And, even if the program becomes law, its sponsors concede that outlays for it will be minimal for at least the first year.

Hearings held
In the jobs-income field, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., has conducted some hearings on his bill to provide work for 2.4 million hard-core unemployed in the next four years.

The administration is considered certain to oppose the Clark measure since the cost would be $10.3 billion.

As to even more costly guaranteed annual income, a proposal advanced by Negro civil rights leaders, there is virtually no chance for congressional consideration this year.

The administration proposes a manpower program aimed at helping 500,000 slum dwellers get jobs in the next three years. This is based chiefly on manpower training laws now on the books and can move ahead if Congress votes the requested appropriations.

In the education field, the program relied on most heavily by the administration and Congress to improve schooling for underprivileged children is Title I of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Act.

This authorizes funds to school districts all over the nation on a formula taking into account the number of pupils from low-income families.

But the budget slowdown has heavily restricted what can be done in this field.

Congress authorized $2.7 billion for Title I in the next year but Johnson included only $1.2 billion in his budget for it.

The legislators probably will be more active this year on new programs that have no budget impact.

They already have enacted an open-housing law and are expected to pass some consumer bills.

But these, their backers agree, will be of little benefit to the low-income families.

Ulster Community College Awarded $10,229 Grant for Tech Program

Ulster County Community College has received a $10,229 federal grant to buy equipment for its electrical technology program.

The grant, under the Vocational Education Act of 1963, was approved by the Bureau of Two-Year College Programs and the Division of Occupational Education.

The equipment the college will buy under the grant will be used in a new measurement course in the electrical technology program.

The objective of this course, electrical measurements, is to teach students to make accurate measurements on the job and to recognize the problems that arise in industry when incorrect measurements are taken. The equipment will increase the students' vocational competence and usefulness to industry.

The measurements course will be taught by rotation of equipment, with each student working on a different experiment. Students will be trained in the use of the latest units through three hours of laboratory experience each week. One hour of lecture per week will cover the theoretical aspects of electrical measurements.

The electrical technology program, first introduced September, 1966, provides vocational and career preparation opportunities for post-secondary level students. Students learn basic theory and its application as well as the measurement skills necessary for employment as electronics technicians.

The program is designed for high school graduates who desire preparation for immediate employment after completing this two-year college technical program. It also is appropriate for adults who have a preparation equivalent to high school and who either do not have a skill or are desirous of retraining as preparation for entry into a new vocation.

In addition to basic technical concentration, the program places an emphasis on general education with careful attention to the role played in today's society by each individual as a productive and contributing citizen.

Students completing the program will be prepared to accept meaningful semi-professional positions, and will help to meet the greatly expanding need for well qualified personnel in today's business, industrial and technical world.

The program uses lecture, discussion and laboratory techniques. Also included are field trips, guest lectures, and demonstration of unusual types of equipment. Each student is given a maximum amount of time in practical experience to apply classroom principles to actual laboratory or work situations.

Prospect Dim

But, with the 1968 session perhaps half over, sponsors of these proposals see little prospect of breakthrough legislation. They are reluctant to guess how most lawmakers will react to the intensive lobbying for jobs-and-income legislation that will be aimed at Congress during the Poor People's Campaign beginning today.

The campaign is expected to bring thousands of poor persons—mostly Negroes—to Washington for a sustained lobbying effort.

"If a large-scale march and the massing of thousands of people here in Washington is tolerated by the federal government," Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., told the Senate, "there is more than an even chance that it will set up further riots, looting and burning within the capital city."

Members of Congress most likely to be sympathetic to the demands of the poor say the basic obstacle to enacting major new programs at this time is the continuing need to funnel money into the Vietnam war.

Economy Mood

The economy mood of the administration and the Congress resulting from this budget stringency has been heightened by the gold crisis and the weakening position of the dollar abroad.

The Senate has gone on record in favor of a $6 billion slash in President Johnson's budget for the next year.

The result of all this, say the concerned members of Congress, is that their real fight this year must be to prevent sharp cuts in the budget requests for programs already on the books.

In the housing field, the administration has presented a new program offering the most generous subsidies ever proposed to help low-income families buy homes.

This program was approved by the Senate Banking Committee last Thursday as part of an omnibus housing bill. Its backers are confident the full Senate will pass it next month.

But its prospects are quite uncertain in the House. And, even if the program becomes law, its sponsors concede that outlays for it will be minimal for at least the first year.

Hearings held

In the jobs-income field, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., has conducted some hearings on his bill to provide work for 2.4 million hard-core unemployed in the next four years.

The administration is considered certain to oppose the Clark measure since the cost would be $10.3 billion.

As to even more costly guaranteed annual income, a proposal advanced by Negro civil rights leaders, there is virtually no chance for congressional consideration this year.

The administration proposes a manpower program aimed at helping 500,000 slum dwellers get jobs in the next three years.

This is based chiefly on manpower training laws now on the books and can move ahead if Congress votes the requested appropriations.

In the education field, the program relied on most heavily by the administration and Congress to improve schooling for underprivileged children is Title I of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Act.

This authorizes funds to school districts all over the nation on a formula taking into account the number of pupils from low-income families.

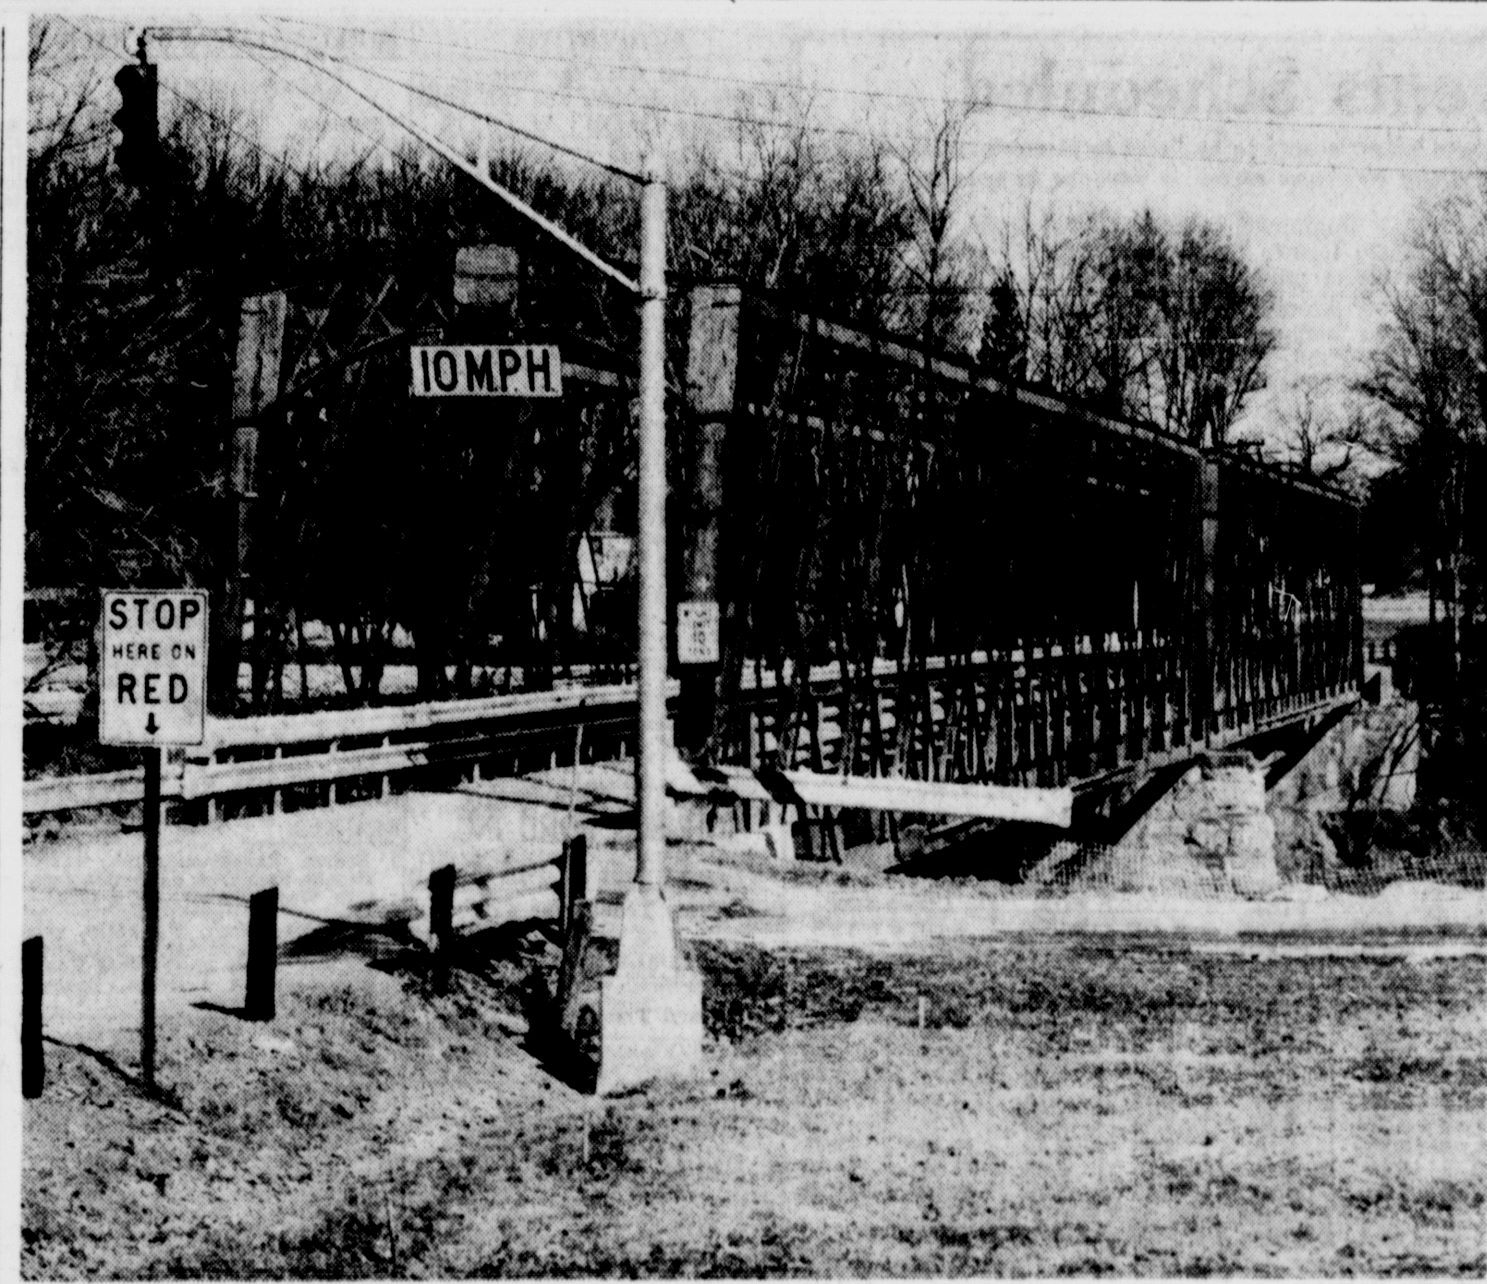

But the budget holddown has heavily restricted what can be done in this field.

Congress authorized $2.7 billion for Title I in the next year but Johnson included only $1.2 billion in his budget for it.

The legislators probably will be more active this year on new programs that have no budget impact.

They already have enacted an open-housing law and are expected to pass some consumer bills.

But these, their backers agree, will be of little benefit to the low-income families

Ulster Community College Awarded $10,229 Grant for Tech Program

Ulster County Community College has received a $10,229 federal grant to buy equipment for its electrical technology program.

The objective of this course, electrical measurements, is to teach students to make accurate measurements on the job and to recognize the problems that arise in industry when incorrect measurements are taken. The equipment will increase the students' vocational competence and usefulness to industry.

The measurements course will be taught by rotation of equipment, with each student working on a different experiment. Students will be trained in the use of the latest units through three hours of laboratory experience each week. One hour of lecture per week will cover the theoretical aspects of electrical measurements.

The electrical technology program, first introduced September, 1966, provides vocational and career preparation opportunities for post-secondary level students. Students learn basic theory and its application as well as the measurement skills necessary for employment as electronics technicians.

The program is designed for high school graduates who desire preparation for immediate employment after completing this two-year college technical program. It also is appropriate for adults who have a preparation equivalent to high school and who either do not have a skill or are desirous of retraining as preparation for entry into a new vocation.

In addition to basic technical education with careful attention to the role played in today's society by each individual as a productive and contributing citizen.

Students completing the program will be prepared to accept meaningful semi-professional positions, and will help to meet the greatly expanding need for well qualified personnel in today's business, industrial and technical world.

The program uses lecture, discussion and laboratory techniques. Also included are field trips, guest lectures, and demonstration of unusual types of equipment. Each student is given a maximum amount of time in practical experience to apply classroom principles to actual laboratory or work situations.

Movie Industry Aid Seen in Tax Ruling

BY BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film industry received a ray of hope for its economic woes last week when the California Senate passed a bill that might end the first-of-the-year slowdown that has plagued production for many years.

The Senate bill, which still faces the hurdles of the Assembly, would eliminate the copyright and exhibition value from film inventories. That would mean that when the state levies its inventory tax on corporations each March 1, movies would be assessed on the value of the film stock only, not on their potential returns at the box-office.

The assessment tax has long been a bugaboo to the studios. Traditionally production slows down at the end of the year and comes to a virtual standstill in January and February. Studios race to complete films and ship them out of the state before March 1, lest they fall prey to the state tax collector.

The hazards involved were illustrated last year when "Camelot" remained unfinished at the tax deadline. The assessment to Warner Brothers-Seven Arts was reportedly around $400,000.

Film companies and unions have petitioned the state for relief. Such a bill passed the legislature in 1963 but was vetoed by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

At least one actor, Joseph Cotten, remarked that the tax relief might bring some stimulus to film production but won't solve the industry's real ill: the flight of filming to foreign countries.

Cotten is expert in the matter; most of his pictures in recent years have been made abroad.

Why do so many American film companies shoot movies abroad?

"It's not because of the authentic locales, as some people claim," Cotten remarked. "You can't tell me that the hills of Spain look more like Arizona than the country around Tucson."

Dear Abby

A Broken Heart Does Care

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-
N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Ted) is a salesman. We've been married for 20 years. Last month, while Ted was on the road, he had a severe heart attack. His brother called me and said that Ted was extending his business trip a "few extra days" and for me not to worry, but I knew something was wrong and I finally got his brother to tell me that Ted was in the hospital with a heart attack. Naturally I immediately went to be with Ted.

I stayed for three weeks and when I asked the hospital cashier for Ted's bill, I saw his admittance form, revealing that he had had the heart attack at 2 a. m. in the apartment of a woman.

She called the ambulance and he was hospitalized, using her ADDRESS. Also, instructions were left that his bill should be sent to HER house.

When I asked Ted to explain it, he said he didn't know the woman, that she was just the AMBULANCE DRIVER!

I have since found a number of cancelled checks in my husband's desk made out to this woman, going back over a year. Now Ted says he owed her money and was just paying her back, and he refuses to talk about it further.

I spoke with this woman on the phone and found out that she is a divorcee. She says she and Ted are "good friends." Ted will be discharged next week. His doctor gave me instructions on how to care for him during his convalescence. The doctor assumes that my husband will be coming home for a three month bed rest. Under the circumstances, I'm not so sure I want him.

Whereas his heart has been damaged, mine has been broken. What should I do?

HIS WIFE
DEAR WIFE: If you say your heart has been "broken" — you must still care something for Ted. In which case, let him come home, and talk things over when his heart is stronger — and yours is lighter.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished the letter from SECOND FIDDLE. She is filled with resentment because her husband has pictures of his first wife all over the house and asked that he be buried beside her when he died.

I married my husband two years after his first wife died. He also had pictures of "her" all over the house. Before we were married, he told me that he had loved his first wife very much but he said he lived ME, too.

He passed away recently, and although our years together were few in number, they were happy. And during our marriage I felt no resentment whatsoever toward his first wife. In fact, I would have thought something was terribly wrong had he not cherished loving memories of her, as they were married for many years. Their marriage was right before God and man. And so was ours.

SECOND WIFE BUT NOT SECOND FIDDLE
DEAR ABBY: Your "Confidential to Fort Worth Willy" was good. You said, "No man works as hard for his money as the man who marries for it."

However, I happen to be a living example of a man who married more dough in 15 minutes than I could have earned in a lifetime. Besides, it's just as easy to love a rich woman as a poor one. Sign me, MAX

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bridge

Card Located by Deduction

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Fred Karpin's new book entitled 'Winning Play in Tournament and Duplicate Bridge' is a must for bridge hands that may be used in columns."

Jim: "It is mighty good reading for any player since it shows example after example of expert play. One of his first hands shows your play of a slam in the 1931 Vanderbilt. How about some comments?"

Oswald: "I see Fred does not approve of my two diamond overall. I don't either by modern methods, and it wasn't much of a bid even then, but I liked to bid in those days."

Jim: "You still do, but I agree that you wouldn't open your mouth with that hand today. Was that the way experts bid before I was born?"

Oswald: "No. Just this one expert, and I didn't make that kind of bid very often. Anyway as the subsequent bidding shows, my partner never let me off the hook and eventually I found myself in a diamond slam which depended on my avoiding the loss of a trump trick."

Jim: "Fred points out that you won the spade opening in dummy and immediately led out dummy's king of hearts."

Oswald: "Exactly. The normal correct play with 10 of a suit missing the king is to finesse. This gives a 50 per cent chance for success while the play for a drop only gives a 26 per cent chance. On the other hand East had opened the bidding and it looked as if the diamond king was likely to be misplaced for me. When West produced the ace of hearts, the chance of a successful diamond finesse dropped from even money almost to zero. East needed the king, plus distribution for his bid. So I played for the blank king and was lucky enough to have the play work."

animadversion (an-uh-mad-VURE-zhun)
an uncomplimentary remark

The homely waitress, a woman known for her vulgar animadversions, was again arguing with the diner's owner about working late hours.

The high school principal was trying to explain to the young student why he should not disrupt his classes with his unwanted animadversions about local educational policies.

Two angry-looking thugs, their hats pulled over their eyes in tough-guy fashion, were writing nasty animadversions about the city's police force on a bus stop sign.

Variety Shows to Have New Stars

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Judging from a current television trend, the time is not far off when the real stars of variety shows will be the art and set designers and the special effects men.

Sunday night's "H. Andrey Williams Kaleidoscope Company" on NBC was a good example of the trend toward the tricky. It was, at base, the fa-normous swirling Rorschach miliar Williams mixture of good guests, good music and good taste for which Andy is popular.

But the show was done in a setting of trick shots, moving patterns, geometric designs and startling contrasts. One number was literally done with mirrors.

At times it seemed to the viewer with a good color set that he had tuned into the middle of an test done in colored ink.

Although it was very gay and lively, sometimes the back-grounds seemed to overpower the performers.

Three out of four TV sets still produce only black and white pictures, so for the vast majority of viewers the full impact of the busy color was lost. But perhaps for them, the sight and sound was therefore in better balance.

Through it all Williams wandered in his detached and amused manner, singing a lot of songs, and making his guests look good. It was, on the whole, a pleasant hour.

NBC's "Today Show" Friday will devote its two hours to a study of sex on the campus. It will tackle the subject from the viewpoint of students, parents and college administrators.

The eight-grade class periodically put on classical plays such as "Romeo and Juliet," "Macbeth," and "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

In the seventh grade one day, the teacher was quizzing her students and asked if anybody knew who William Shakespeare was.

Bobby (the bright boy)—Sure. He's the guy who writes the eight-grade plays.

Mamma Owl — Baby owl worries me.

Papa Owl — Why's that?

Mamma — He never seems to give a hoot about anything.

Misconstruing a friend's intent can be fatal to your friendship.

Doctor Bishop — Have you been leading a normal life?

Tatum — Yes, I have.

Doctor Bishop — Well, you'll have to cut it out for awhile.

Johnny — Why Mama — why did the Arab call his camel Humphrey?

Mrs. Jones — Because it didn't have a hump.

Freedom from compulsion to bear arms must not become license to compel the renunciation of arms by others who do not wish to follow a pacifist course.

Jake (as he ate off the top of his company owned pencil)—I guess I'm the world's worst speller.

Mike—You should consult a dictionary whenever you're in doubt. It's as simple as that.

Jake — But Jackie, I'm never in doubt.

By observation I am convinced that marriage is sometimes like a shoe that pinches—you can bear it if you like the shoe well enough.

Cary (on phone)—I'm sorry. I won't be in today. I'm ill.

Cary—Why should I? It ain't no secret!

Country Girl—If you treat a cow with affection, it will give more milk.

City Girl—Big deal. So will the milkman.

Sitting in the showroom of an automobile dealer one day last week, we were struck by the fact that the people who looked as they couldn't afford them singled out the biggest cars to look at.

Hunter—Just met a great big bear in the woods!

Second Hunter — Good! Did you give him both barrels?

First — Both barrels were blowed. I gave him the whole blooming gun.

Man—Doctor, you remember last summer when you recommended that I go out with girls to get my mind off my business?

Doctor—Yes.

Man—Now can you prescribe something to get my mind back on my business?

Keep your close friends — give us generous ones.

She — Didn't you tell me you hunt bear?

He—Madam, you wrong me. I always wear a hunting outfit.

A smile is the light in the window of a face which shows that the heart is at home.

Policeman—Your wife fell out of the car three blocks back!

Motorist — So that's it. I thought I'd gone stone deaf for a minute.

The first of the summer replacements shows arrives Wednesday when "The Dom De Luise Show" takes over the Jonathan Winters variety hour on CBS. De Luise first emerged as a fresh talent when he was a regular on the short-lived "Entertainers" a couple of seasons back.

Humphrey Gains Fresh Endorsement

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's toughest assignment as an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination apparently will be to entice party leaders off the political fence.

Humphrey picked up some fresh endorsements with his formal entry Saturday into the contest against Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn.

But party leaders in swing states whose support he needs to assemble the 1,312 convention votes required for the nomination didn't budge from the neutral position they have taken since President Johnson announced March 31 he would not accept renomination.

In Michigan, for example, Sen. Philip A. Hart said in an interview he hasn't been able to make up his mind as between Kennedy, McCarthy and Humphrey.

Split Sentiment
Hart said he thinks sentiment is split in Michigan where the bulk of the 96-vote delegation is chosen in district contests and the remainder at a state convention in June.

He said he thinks about one-fourth of the delegates will represent organized labor. AFL-CIO President George Meany is supporting Humphrey. Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, has remained silent. Hart said he knows one

In Humphrey's native state of South Dakota, Sen. George McGovern has welcomed the vice president into the race but has declared his own neutrality.

Similarly, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington are avoiding taking sides. Sen. Edmund

S. Muskie of Maine, who heads the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, is taking the favorite-son route to stay uncommitted.

In Iowa, Gov. Harold Hughes, who is believed to lean toward Kennedy, said Humphrey has "strong, broad-based support" among labor, farm and business groups. But he said he will wait until after the May 24-25 state convention before backing a candidate.

The Humphrey announcement didn't bring Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago openly into the vice president's camp with the 118-vote Illinois delegation. Neither did it seem to alter the favorite-son plans of Gov. Richard J. Hughes as head of New Jersey's 82-vote delegation.

Neither were there outward stirrings in Ohio, with 115 votes, or Pennsylvania, with 130.

Labeled a Success
Humphrey's official announcement Saturday, before a crowd of about 2,000 supporters who cheered him to the chandeliers, was counted by all concerned as a social, political and television success.

The 56-year-old vice president spoke vigorously of maturity of judgment, national unity and priorities for peace he left no doubt he felt he was best qualified to achieve.

Israel to Defy Security Council

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government, defying the U.N. Security Council, says it will hold its Independence Day parade as planned Thursday in both the Arab and Israeli sections of Jerusalem.

About 10,000 Israelis turned out before dawn Sunday to watch military units stage a dress rehearsal along the festively decorated route. Arab residents watched from windows overlooking the streets. On display were both Israeli tanks and Soviet armor and missiles captured in the war last June.

The 15 Security Council members, including the United States, unanimously called on Israel Saturday night to cancel the parade, calling it a threat to peace efforts.

Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, Yosef Tekoah replied that Israel could not accept the resolution "because it concerns a question which under the cease-fire regime falls under Israel's jurisdiction." Israeli papers accused U.N. Secretary-General U Thant of playing into the hands of the Arabs.

Death Stops the Show

By LYNN MULVANEY
It was a "pretty swinging show"—up until the last ten minutes.

It was then that word was received that Flavio Castiglione, for whom the Sunday afternoon performance was being given, had just died.

Top talent and stars had turned out at the George Washington School to perform for the benefit of Castiglione, one of the county's outstanding musicians who had been stricken with illness about ten weeks ago while at work at the Williams Lake Hotel.

The news came from Mrs. Castiglione, calling from the Albany Hospital bedside of her husband. It was received here in Kingston by musician's local president Harry Castilian who rushed on the school stage to stop the show at Mrs. Castiglione's request.

The audience heard the announcement from Donald MacIsaac, promoter of the entertainment effort to raise funds to help defray medical expenses. The show netted more than $1,000 and additional contributions are being sought. Those wishing to donate are asked to mail their contribution directly to Mrs. Flavio Castiglione, Ulster Landing Road.

Peg Leg Bates, one of the show's main attractions delivered a short eulogy and the Rev. John E. Ward, pastor of St. Colman Church, E. Kingston offered prayers.

The curtains were drawn and a pall fell over the place, said MacIsaac, who called Castiglione "a gentle man" who although he could have made it anywhere as a musician preferred to stay in the Hudson Valley with family and friends.

Dem Hopefuls, Nixon to Appear In Indiana

Democratic presidential aspirants Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy begin their final week of campaigning to day in Indiana—their first head-on primary clash.

Richard M. Nixon, the only major Republican presidential candidate on Indiana's May 7 primary ballot, plans to campaign in the state Thursday and Friday.

In other political developments: —Backers of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said they think he will announce as an active Republican presidential candidate possibly before May 16.

"He gave us no discouragement," said Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., after a meeting with the governor. "We believe we have an active candidate."

—An aide denied reports that California Gov. Ronald Reagan told a group of Republicans in Boise, Idaho, he is a Republican presidential candidate. One of the Republicans said he got the impression Reagan intended to announce his candidacy May 26 on NBC's "Meet the Press."

—McCarthy and Republican Gov. John A. Volpe are unopposed in Massachusetts' presidential primary Tuesday. Under state law they thus will gain control, barring write-in upsets, of Massachusetts' delegate votes at their respective national conventions.

Newsweek magazine says a poll showed Kennedy with 45 per cent of the Indiana vote two weeks before the state's primary. Gov. Roger D. Branigin with 28 per cent and McCarthy with 19 per cent.
